U. N. Votes To Set Up 'Watchdog' In Balkans

Assembly Ignores New Soviet Threat, Backs U. S., Britain By 40-6 Ballot

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Flushing Meadows, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The United Nations Assembly today gave its decisive approval for setting up a Balkan commission to watch against violations to Greek independence by her three Communist neighbors.

They ignored a second Russian threat to boycott the commission and backed the United States and Britain against the Soviet bloc by a vote of 40 to 6. Eleven countries abstained, including the Arab league and Scandinavian countries.

Secretary General Trygve Lie immediately announced that the 11-nation commission would come into being November 21, as soon as the countries inform him who their representatives will be.

Budget of $611,400

A decision has yet to be taken by Lie whether the seats refused by Russia and Poland will be offered to other nations. A budget of $611,400 has already been tentatively approved, despite Soviet objections, to pay its expenses through 1948.

The commission will have the power to recommend a special session of the 57-nation Assembly if urgency is required to protect Greece from continuing aid being given to guerillas by Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania. The Assembly can then decide to recommend sanctions against those countries.

In rapid succession, the Assembly also:

Defeated by a vote of 34 to 7, with 16 countries abstaining, a Polish resolution calling for withdrawal of the American and British military from Greece.

Defeats Soviet Resolution

Defeated by 41 to 6, with 10 abstaining, a Soviet resolution blaming the partisan fighting on the Greek government, calling for withdrawal of American and British military personnel, and requiring that American aid to Greece be placed under supervision of the United Nations.

The Assembly's action is the first of Secretary of State George C. Marshall's four "vital" actions recommended on September 17 to win approval.

Although the United States was compelled to eliminate from its resolution direct blame for the fighting against the three neighbors, today's action marked a new phase of the "Greek question," which was stalemated in the Security Council for 20 months before it was brought to the Assembly.

The turbulence of today's meeting matched the hard talk that has

85 Was Record; Today's Mercury Won't Miss It Far

The temperature was due to climb into the 80s again today after setting a record 85 yesterday.

The mercury reached the 85 level at 3:34 p. m. yesterday, topping by four degrees the warmest temperature ever recorded on an October 21 in Washington.

The previous record of 81 was set in 1939.

The forecaster said today will be sunny and warm again with the temperature reaching 80 or 82. There will be gentle, variable winds.

At long-range glance, the Weather Bureau said there is a chance of cooler weather Friday or Saturday and a possibility of showers about Friday. Except for a trace last Friday, the District has had no rainfall for more than three weeks.

Roosevelt Had ...sgivings About Soviet, Byrnes Says

This is a serialization of James F. Byrnes' "Speaking Frankly"—6 of 15 chapters of the book published October 15, 1947, by Harper & Brothers. Copyright, 1947, by James F. Byrnes Foundation (a charitable trust).

By James F. Byrnes

PROBABLY NO new President ever faced a swifter pageant of great events than did Mr. Truman in his first weeks in office. The collapse and surrender of Germany and the San Francisco Conference held the center of stage before a world audience that was stirred by victory and filled with high hopes for the future.

But those of us who were familiar with Soviet activities following the Yalta Conference found our high hopes mingled with great concern.

Before President Roosevelt's death, in fact, even before his return from Yalta, difficulties had arisen with the Soviet Union regarding the action to be taken on the agreements reached. The two major points of difficulty were Poland and Romania.

In the Declaration on Liberated Europe the three governments had exchanged pledges to "concert during the temporary period of instability in liberated Europe the policies of their three governments in assisting the peoples liberated from the domination of Nazi Germany and the peoples of the former Axis satellite states of Europe to solve by democratic means their pressing political and economic problems." It stated further that the three governments "will jointly assist" the peoples of this area "to form interim governmental authorities broadly representative of all democratic elements in the population and pledged to the earliest possible establishment, through free elections, of governments responsive to the will of the people." And finally, it added that "when, in the opinion of the three governments, conditions in any European liberated state or any former Axis satellite state in Europe make such action necessary, they will discharge the joint responsibilities set forth in this declaration."

Nevertheless, on February 24, only two weeks after the conference, when the American and British members of the Allied Control Council for Romania requested a meeting of the council, their request was refused by the Soviet chairman. On that same day, Ambassador Harriman was instructed to indicate to the Soviet government our desire to see an orderly development of the Romania situation under the Allied Control Council or else consultation among the three countries on a higher level.

Three days later we got our answer. Mr. Molotov's deputy, Andrei Vyshinski, went to Bucharest and presented a demand for the dismissal of the Radescu government and the formation of a new Romanian government. At the same time, Mr. Molotov informed our Ambassador that the Radescu government was unable to maintain order and fulfill the armistice terms and that the Allied Control Council would take the necessary

Goods Hoard Revealed by U.S. in Greece

Griswold Believes Some Commodities Held Off Market To Keep Prices Up

Athens, Oct. 21 (AP).—The American Aid Mission announced today it had uncovered supplies in warehouses and on docks originally worth 75 million dollars and said the discovery would save six million dollars or more in American expenditures under the aid program.

Dwight P. Griswold, head of the Greek aid mission, told reporters he believed some of the consumer goods found were deliberately held off the market to maintain high prices. He said the discovery "definitely affects" the mission's future planning.

A mission statement said the huge amount of supplies—part of one billion dollars worth sent to Greece since her liberation from the Nazis—was uncovered after a preliminary Greek government inventory and spot checks by mission personnel in the past two months.

Cigarette Stocks Found

These were the estimated savings the mission said could be achieved through discovery of the supplies: Agriculture Division, $4,200,000; Reconstruction Division one million dollars; Public Health Division one million dollars. The American Congress allotted 350 million dollars to aid Greece.

Griswold said thousands of cartons of cigarettes were found and indicated he believed these were kept off the market to maintain the price of Greek tobacco. He said the cigarettes had deteriorated in storage.

Tobacco is a chief product of Greece, but Griswold said there was evidence other products which offered competition to Greek-made items had been kept out of circulation. There was some suspicion, he added, that some equipment including farm machinery had been withheld because of wrangling among Greek ministries on the prices.

Medical Supplies

Also found was more than $2,500,000 worth of medical supplies, some beyond use.

Griswold declared the mission played a large role in uncovering the large stocks of supplies and said the Greek government is now classifying the goods and preparing a complete inventory.

The bulk of the one billion dollar in goods received by Greece since the end of the war had been shipped in by the now defunct UNRRA. This was estimated at $420,000,000.

The Greeks themselves purchased another 200 million dollars' worth, of which 25 million dollars was financed by an Export-Import Bank loan. Another 44 million dollars was in purchases of surplus United States war goods. Britain spent an estimated 320 million dollars in supplying the Greek army. Donations and other aid sent the total above one billion dollars.

Movie Agent Gave Reds Plane Plans, Hearing Told

Test Pilot Tricked, Witness Testifies; Lawyer Ejected by House Committee

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The secret of this country's newest supersonic military plane went straight to Communist Party headquarters from the hands of a prominent literary agent who got it by a trick, a House committee heard yesterday.

A thrilling melodrama, with Adolphe Menjou and novelist Rupert Hughes as costars, was unreeled in House Caucus room as the Committee on Un-American Activities swung into the second day of hearing into Communism in Hollywood.

A noisy mob scene enlivened the afternoon when a shouting, protesting lawyer for a Hollywood group was tossed from the room by Capitol police.

Menjou Tells of "Tyranny"

The debonair Menjou told the committee about the "political idiots" and "crackpots" in the film capital who, he said, have fallen for the "oriental tyranny" of communism.

The 75-year-old Hughes told of Communist threats to hurl stink bombs and slash the upholstery of every motion picture theater in the United States if an anti-Communist scenario he wrote were produced. Thousands of such threats, Hughes insisted, have kept producers from really portraying the menace of Red Fascism to the American people.

The novelist is the uncle of Howard Hughes, star of another recent congressional performance.

But the narrator of the spy story which sent some reporters racing to the Army Air Forces for confirmation was a lesser Hollywood figure—45-year-old John Charles Moffitt, plump Esquire magazine movie critic and scenarist.

X-S1 Involved

Moffitt charged that a pro-Communist Hollywood literary agent tricked an unsuspecting test pilot into revealing the secrets of the new supersonic XS-1 after the first set of 20 test flights had been completed.

He identified the agent as John Weber, head of the literary department of the William Morris Agency.

Moffitt said the pilot, Chalmers P. ("Slick") Goodlin came to Hollywood after the tests at Muroc Dry Lake, Calif. and was immediately taken in tow by Weber and his associates.

Weber, Moffitt testified, suggested to Goodlin that his experiences as a test pilot on the new plane, designed to fly at 1500 miles an hour—twice the speed of sound—would make a fine magazine article.

Goodlin explained that the XS-1

Brazil, Chile Break With Soviet Union

Santiago Government Also Severs Relations With Czechoslovakia

Rio de Janiero, Oct. 21 (AP).—Brazil severed diplomatic connections with Russia today, and a few hours later Chile announced a break in relations with both the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

The Chilean action removed last remaining diplomat in that country with ties to any nation in the Russian orbit.

Brazil said she acted over "extremel youtrageous and even calumnious" articles in the Soviet pres sattacking President Eurico Dutra and the Brazilian army.

Chile's Action Explained

In Santiago, an official said Chile's action was "intimately related with the Communis tinfiltration" in the nation's southern coal zone—recently the scene of labor unrest which Chilean authorities have attributed to Communist agitation.

It was understood that the government's decision removes any possibility of the Communist Party in Chile having contact with Moscow or the new Communist international information bureau in Belgrade through diplomatic officials.

It means the ousting not only of Soviet diplomats but also the only remaining official representative of a country regarded as being in the Russian orbit.

Yugoslavia Broke Relations

Yugoslavia broke diplomatic relations with Chile last week because of the explusion of two Yugoslav diplomats. Chilean authorities accused the two Yugoslavs of fomenting strikes in Chile.

The developments came a short time after President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla announced his intention to "end once and for all" what he described as the communist dictatorship over Chile's mine workers.

Previously, the president had accused the Communists of planning to cripple Chile's production of copper, nitrates and other strategic materials and hamper de-

Eisenhower Takes Strong Stand for UMT

Chief of Staff Terms Compulsory Training Best War Insurance

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

General Eisenhower yesterday called for adoption of universal military training by the United States as "an insurance policy against extinction by war."

The chief of staff's statement was the opening gun of a new campaign being launched by civilian and uniformed backers of UMT to secure congressional approval next session.

It was followed by a visit by Ray H. Brannaman, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, to the White House. Brannaman said he urged President Truman on behalf of the VFW to call a special session of Congress to pass a universal training act.

VFW Chief Fears Chaos

Economic and political chaos in Europe and Asia "fosters and encourages the spread of communism and military expansion of Russia" and "represents an increasing menace" to the United States, the VFW chief told the President.

Army officials said that Eisenhower's statement was issued in response to many inquiries. Though on record in favor of UMT, "Ike" had made no direct, formal indorsement of the plan in some time. At a press conference several weeks ago, he made on off-hand reference to the proposal as being more a part of the White House legislative plan than the Army's.

There followed some press comment—in connection with discussion of Eisenhower as a presidential possibility—that perhaps he was was not so strong for UMT as had been represented.

Equality of Duty, Too

Yesterday's statement, which should clear up any such conjecture, declared:

"The fundamental principle of democracy is equality—equality of burden as well as equality of opportunity. Where the defense of our country is concerned, this principle imposes on each American the duty of service in the manner most

Stop-Gap Problem

President Truman has asked leaders of Congress, Republican and Democratic, to meet with him tomorrow afternoon for "a further discussion of foreign aid."

It will be the second time in three weeks that Mr. Truman has met with the leaders to consider stopgap aid for Europe pending action on the long-range Marshall Plan.

After the first White House meeting, on September 29, Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) said that there was apparently no way to supply countries like France and Italy with needed food and fuel without a special session of Congress.

Meantime, Government financial experts are understood to feel confident they have found a way to keep distressed European countries going until Congress can appro-

Dry Weather Pushes Wheat To New Peaks

American wheat, upon which millions throughout the world depend to escape starvation this winter, continued its record-breaking upward price spirals yesterday.

Cash wheat reached a dizzy $3.38½ at Kansas City in a steady climb toward the world's record high of $3.50 paid in 1917 at Chicago.

December wheat rose to $3.10¾ at Chicago—the highest ever reached for December futures in the 97 years of the Board of Trade.

Continued dry weather in the great winter wheat belt of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, plus Government buying for export, caused most of the buying.

The market showed continued lack of attention to Government efforts to curb buying. Since the Government forced the exchanges to double margin requirements for speculative buying on October 7 the market has climbed upward every day but one.

Significantly, however, trading has been on a smaller scale, showing that the higher margins have driven many operators out. In the 11 trading days since they went into effect, 165 million bushels of wheat have been dealt in compared with 273 million in the 11 days just previous.

Since October 7 wheat futures have climbed from 17 to 29 cents a bushel; corn 7 to 13 cents and oats 7 to 12 cents.

The Associated Press Index of wholesale prices of 35 commodities set a new all-time high yesterday for the sixth consecutive day. The index rose to 197.99, compared with 197.21 Monday; 195.16 a week ago; 153.64 a year ago and 100 in 1926.

Prices of hogs and cattle declined slightly yesterday. But rubber, scrap steel, cocoa, flour, butter, lamb, corn, rye and cotton went up.

Egg prices crashed downward in Chicago the full 2-cent limit yesterday, indicating reduced buying due to the food drive. At the close buyers couldn't be found for 21 cars of eggs, at 51¼ cents a dozen.

Commodity exchange officials are still griping over the increase in margins, virtually forced upon them by President Truman.

J. A. Higgins, jr., vice president of the National Association of Commodity Exchanges and Allied Trades, termed the Government's action "political disruption of economic functions" in a blast aimed at the higher margins yesterday.

Ex-Policeman's Niece Accosted 5 Times, Told To Forget, or Get Hurt

By Dorothea Andrews and Donald Olsen
Post Reporters

Arlington police said yesterday they were investigating a threat made to Joyce Davenport, 15-year-old niece of W. R. Smith, fourth to be made in connection with a county grand jury's investigation of possible collusion between the police and gamblers.

Miss Davenport, according to Smith, one-time county policeman who signed an affidavit on which police last week raided a county gaming establishment, was first approached Saturday afternoon, and daily since.

Altogether, five men and a woman were involved. Smith said his niece told him yesterday she was accosted twice and that the second time she was told to tell him to "get out of Arlington."

The threat to the Davenport girl was the second reported yesterday. I. C. Goings, 31-year-old Arlington postal employe, told reporters yesterday that he had been telephoned Monday night at his home at 932 N. Randolph st., and told to "lay off" the case. He did not remember the exact wording which the caller used, Goings said, and he did not recognize the voice.

Prior to yesterday, threats had been made against Daniel A. Dugan, county board member, and W. R. Smith, Miss Davenport's uncle.

Goings previously had expressed surprise that he had been summoned by the county grand jury to appear before it Thursday in its investigation of a possible connection between police and gamblers.

"It was a complete surprise to me. I didn't know a thing about it," Goings said. "I have no business in it." Asked who he thought had suggested his name to the grand

Civil Service May Take Up Firings Under 'Security Risk'

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The Civil Service Commission may take up the cases of employes who have been fired on "security risk" charges from the State Department, Central Intelligence Agency and other "sensitive" agencies.

It opened the door to possible and "careful" handling of these cases in a new order yesterday which reads:

"When an employe has been removed on charges, the commission may receive the sworn statement of such employe, setting forth fully and in detail the facts surrounding his removal, and it may, within its discretion, make investigation to determine his eligibility for reinstatement insofar as suitability and fitness are concerned, and it will, after such investigation, advise such employe whether it has found him suitable for reinstatement."

The commission warned that no case would be considered unless it is sumbitted within six months from the date of removal.

The new order covers all cases except firings on loyalty charges. Loyalty cases will be considered by its to-be-created loyalty board.

The order was issued as Rear Admiral R. H. Hillenkoetter, chief of Central Intelligence, explained that his agency had fired "several" employes who were regarded as "bad security risks." The admiral explained the dismissals with this cryptic statement:

"If you're going to have a good intelligence agency, you have got to have very high security standards."

CIG serves as a clearing-house for all United States Intelligence reports from abroad.

Two of the employes discharged were members of CIO's left-wing United Public workers. The union charged they were fired because they were UPWA members and accused the admiral of running a "star chamber."

Hillenkoetter flatly denied the charge. He said that union membership was not considered in making the dismissals. "Each case," he explained, "was considered on its individual merits." Each employe, he said, was given a hearing before an impartial board.

SOME OF the employes fired were in the foreign broadcast division which monitors foreign broadcasts beamed to this country.

Hillenkoetter emphasized that the employes fired were regarded as "bad security risks." He did not say that they had been found to be disloyal. A bad security risk, in the eyes of the State Department, is one who is a heavy drinker, loose-talker, or gambler. Such high security standards are not required by all Federal agencies.

On the Civil Service order, a spokesman explained that it could not be used to force any agency to take back an employe it had fired even though he is cleared. However, Civil Service could recommend a fired employe it approves for reinstatement in another Federal agency.

In the case of CIG, that agency and all of its jobs are outside the Civil Service system. CIG operates under a special law which gives it the authority to fire any employe "when necessary or advisable in the interests of the United States."

THE CIVIL SERVICE spokesman explained the new order thusly:

"It was designed primarily to consider cases of employes who are fired because of personality complexes and because they

2 Killed, 4 Injured as Auto Blows Tire and Hits Truck

Winchester, Va., Oct. 21 (Special).—Two persons were killed and four others injured this afternoon when an auto driven by a 71-year-old man blew a tire and careened into a heavy truck.

The dead, according to Virginia State Trooper C. A. Seale, are:

Mrs. Florence J. Giles, 68, of Beaver, Pa.

Mrs. Virginia W. Lindsay, 65, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The two victims were riding with Mr. and Mrs. R. L. James of Staunton, Va., when the tire blew out on U. S. Highway 11 four miles south of here. Both James and his wife were injured, but their condition was called "fair" tonight at Winchester Memorial Hospital. A fifth passenger, Mrs. Maude B. Neely, 68, of Pittsburgh, was in serious condition.

Driver of the trunk was Ralph L. Ritenour, 32, of Stephens City, Va., who was uninjured. His passenger, whose furniture he was moving in the truck, was Mrs. Ada M. Shenk, 54, of Winchester, who suffered minor cuts.

World's 'Most Powerful'

44 Ton, 8-Jet Flying Wing Makes California Test Debut

Muroc Army Air Base, Calif., Oct. 21 (AP).—Northrop's chevron-shaped eight-jet bomber, the YB-49 Flying Wing, roared into the air today on its maiden flight from its factory at Hawthorne, and 34 minutes later landed here to start a series of grueling Army tests.

The 44-ton behemoth's first trial run was accomplished without incident, but a P-61 Black Widow, with three Northrop observers aboard, crashed near Lancaster after its occupants bailed out. Cause of the mishap was not determined.

Spokesmen for Northrop said the flying wing, its 32,000-horsepower engines working perfectly, conducted maneuvers during its 90-mile trip here. There was no hint of its maximum speed. Northrop has described it as the world's most powerful plane yet announced.

At the controls were Max Stanley of Santa Monica, Calif., test pilot, with Fred Bretcher of Cincinnati as copilot and Orva H. Douglas of Courtland, Kans., as engineer. The same trio successfully tested earlier the propeller-drive B-35 flying wing bomber, which also is here undergoing tests. The jet craft is one of two provided for in an Army contract.

It has a wingspread of 172 feet and weighs 100 tons fully loaded. It is designed to operate at altitudes above 30,000 feet and carry a crew of 13.

Wartime Profits Of Oil Firms Cited

RFC Official Tells Investigators 20 Companies Made 59 Billions Excess

By The Associated Press

The Senate War Investigating Committee heard testimony yesterday that 20 of the Nation's largest oil companies rolled up excessive profits of $59,856,000 on wartime projects.

The testimony was presented by C. Roland Larrabee, chief administrative officer of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's price adjustment board.

It came as the committee delved into the renegotiation of war contracts, a procedure set up by Congress to cut war production costs where the Government can show that original contracts resulted in extraordinary profits.

Larrabee told the committee that between 1943 and 1945, 20 oil companies were able to retain $59,856,000 in excessive profits by taking advantage of a Government-authorized program which lowered their taxes.

Tax Help Given

Under the program, Larrabee said, the Government encouraged investment of private capital in war plant expansion, for example by permitting tax reductions which returned the investments at the rate of 20 per cent a year over a five-year period. He said this was done because industry was reluctant to invest in projects that might have no use after the war.

The program also provided that if the war lasted less than five years from the time the obligation was undertaken as it did in the case of plants constructed in 1942 or 1943—the rate of amortization was accelerated. For plants started in 1943, for example, the rate was 50 per cent a year.

Larrabee, who did not name the 20 oil companies, said these firms were able to construct modern facilities which actually were built at Government expense as they were paid for out of excessive profits.

He testified that these companies realized $259,943,000 total profit from war contracts.

The RFC Renegotiation Board, Larrabee continued, determined that $65,006,000 represented excessive profits.

However, only $5,150,000 of this amount has been or will be collected because these companies were able to accelerate amortization in the amount of $59,856,000 and charged it against their excessive profits.

Md. Oyster Laws Are Outmoded, Watermen Told

Cambridge, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—The present Chesapeake Bay oyster laws on the Maryland statute books are a "hodge-podge," Chairman John E. Clark of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission told 150 watermen at a meeting here.

"With your help, the commission intends to obolish outmoded laws and replace them with legislation which will most benefit the industry," he said.

The tongers and dredgers met to elect five-man committees to advise the commission in conservation practices, under a plan authorized by the 1947 Legislature.

The tongers elected Naylor Parks, Cambridge; Ronald McLaughlin, Fishing Creek, and William Dale, Taylor's Island. Bishop's Head and Secretary will elect representatives at later meetings.

The dredgers elected: William Hubbard, Sangston Todd, Arlie Baker and Sam Fitzugh, all of Cambridge, with a Bishop's Head member to be named later.

Under the 1947 law, each Tidewater county will name committees to assist the commission.

was still a military secret and any such article would have to be cleared for security reasons with the Army Air Forces, the movie critic told the committee.

"Then Weber told Goodlin, 'Why of course, but first let us see what you can write and we'll see if it is practical for publication,'" Moffitt testified.

The pilot, completely unsuspecting, promptly drafted the article and the agent sent the uncensored article to Communist Party headquarters in New York, according to Moffitt. Then still without censorship by United States military authorities the article was published in a leading magazine.

No Comment From FBI

Goodlin, said Moffitt, was subsequently replaced as the test pilot.

"And I understand the FBI is now looking into the whole thing."

The FBI had no comment last night.

The Air Force said last night that Goodlin had been employed by Bell Aircraft and not by the Air Force. A spokesman confirmed the fact that publication of the article was without authorization.

About two months after its publication, the Army Air Forces said, some of the facts about the plane were made public.

Air Force Not Disturbed

If Goodlin's disclosure had been regarded as "violently serious," the spokesman for the Air Force said, the military authorities would have taken action under the National Defense Act.

It was indicated that Soviet Russia could have learned little from the disclosures anyway.

In Hollywood Weber declared last night that charges he obtained secret information on the new supersonic plane were "utterly fantastic."

"The charges make me fairly catch my breath. I deny them utterly and absolutely. They are fantastic," he said.

"We never had a thing to do with a serial written by Goodlin," Weber declared. "We aproached him to help with market articles he had been requested to do by various magazines.

"It is silly to assume, too, that the matter of the supersonic plane was secret. Goodlin already had been interviewed by a magazine and his story had been in print.

"Moffitt is trying to impress the committee with the fact that it was utterly secret when it wasn't at all."

Weber reiterated that all Moffitt's charges were untrue and were without basis.

Lawyer Interrupts

Moffitt charged that the Story Analysts Guild in Hollywood was dominated by Communists and named a number of analysts who seemed to him to be party line followers.

His testimony was interrupted explosively by a Hollywood Lawyer, Charles J. Katz, who represents a group of motion picture figures.

Leaping from his seat in the front row of spectators, Katz strode down the aisle shouting, 'Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman!"

"You are out of order," firmly gavelled Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.).

"I represent a number of the persons who . . ."

"You are uot of order," shouted Thomas.

"The right of cross-examination . . ." screamed Katz.

"Out of order . . . out of order," pounded Thomas.

Escorted to Sidewalk

Policemen scurried to the scene from all quarters of the crowded hearing room.

A policeman grabbed the lawyer by each arm and escorted him out of the room.

As he reached the door, he shouted:

"I thought this was to be a fair hearing."

The officers took him out to the sidewalk. Katz told reporters he represents the Screen Analysts Guild and also is associated with Robert Kenny and Bartley Crum as counsel for 19 of the Hollywood witnesses.

He said he wanted to cross-examine Moffitt to point out that his testimony was based solely on rumors and hearsay. He said that Moffitt could not point to one example of a Communist sympathizer blocking the work of an anti-Communist writer.

Crum Backs Katz

Katz made some comments on the witness stand which caused reporters to remark that his statements were not covered by congressional privilege.

The witnesses who are testifying under oath before a congressional committee cannot be sued for what they say on the stand, and the reporting of their statements is generally covered under the same law.

Statements made by persons outside a committee hearing are not subject to the same immunity from legal action.

Vice President Crum of the National Lawyers Guild, an organization described by former Attorney General Francis Biddle as a Communist front, said he wanted to associate himself with everything Katz said.

Crum Almost Follows

A few minutes later Crum almost followed Katz to the sidewalk.

The Hollywood attorney began a conference in the hearing room that carried up to the committee bench.

"Break up that conference. We must have order," demanded Thomas.

Crum popped out of his chair shouting, "We just want the same . . ." then he spotted oncoming policeman and subsided, red-faced and muttering into his seat.

Both Menjou and Hughes were loudly applauded by a packed hearing room as they finished their testimony.

Menjou Mustache Twitches

Menjou's role was as dramatic as many he has played on the screen. The setting was familiar, too, with hot lights beating down for the benefit of half a dozen movie cameras.

They caught him in a chocolate-colored suit with chalk stripes, double breasted and padded at the shoulders. They caught his famous mustache twitching as he talked.

Menjou volunteered that he is 57. He was asked his occupation.

"I am a motion picture actor," he replied in a mellow tone. He paused, smiled and added: "I hope."

Menjou was cautious about identifying any individuals definitely as Communists.

He said he knew of no members of the Screen Actors Guild who belong to the Communist Party, but:

"I know a lot of people who act an awful lot like Communists."

Most m... he said, are patriotic Americans.

Menjou te... e believes Herbert Sorrell, head of the Conference of Studio Unions, is a Communist. And he submitted to the committee what he said was a photostatic copy of a Communist Party membership card for Sorrell and a supporting affidavit from the world's greatest handwriting expert."

Associated Press Photos
ROBERT E. STRIPLING is chief investigator for the House Un-American Activities Committee, probing communism in Hollywood

"I would be very suspicious," Menjou said, "of any of the people who stood on the platform with him or supported any of his statements."

He said Sorrell is responsbile for "the most incredible brutality, beatings and overturning of cars" during a long drawn out studio strike.

In Hollywood, Sorrell said last night, "I signed a non-Communist affidavit; I have said repeatedly under oath I'm not a Communist; that's about all the reply I have for Mr. Menjou."

At one meeting, he said, Edward G. Robinson, Lume Cronyn, Paul Henreid and Alexander Knox followed Sorrell as speakers and wanted to settle the strike on Sorrell's side. Menjou said that would have meant "chaos."

"Heard" Lawson Is Red

Menjou said he "heard" but does not know that John Howard Lawson "heads the Communist Party in Hollywood."

Menjou said the Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions has "been labeled a Communist Front." When it refused to adopt an anti-Communist resolution, he said, many members deserted it, including James Roosevelt.

H said the members who remain must be Communists.

Menjou testified that he does ot know whether Director John Cromwell is a Communist, but "he cts an awful lot like one."

Committee Investigator Robert E. Stripling inquired:

"Do you believe the motion-picture industry is doing everything it can to rid itself of Communists?"

Menjou: "Yes, I do. I believe it has been that way for about a year or maybe a little more than a year now."

Derides Cencership Charge

Chairman Thomas interrupted at one point to say that the present hearings are being represented in some places as "censorship" of the movie industry.

Menjou leaned back in his chair, took a pull at a glass of water, inhaled a cigarette, blew the smoke through his nose and exploded:

"I think that's juvenile. It's infantile . . . I don't see how that statement could be made by any man with the intelligenee of a louse."

UNRRA Giving Months Pay To 'Loyal as Severance Bonus

Bonuses ranging from $333.33 to $1666.66 are being paid employes of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration now being let out by UNRRA, it was disclosed yesterday.

The bonus plan was put into effect several months ago to halt an exodus of trained employed when it became apparent the organization was to close by January 1, 1948.

Payments are not made to employes who resign. But "loyal" employes, who agreed to stay as long as needed, several months ago were promised one month with pay, when separated from the service.

Later an additional month's pay was added to keep "valuable, trained" employes from leaving. Salaries range from $2000 to $10,000 a year.

"Some of the employes would have been almost impossible to replace, and were needed for their experience," Frederick C. McMillan, in charge of administration explained.

Only employes with six months or more with UNRRA are eligible. About 600 remain on the payroll now, out of 2000 once employed here. Official expect to release all but a few for the "final wind-up" by January 1.

De Gaulle Planning Return to Power

Spokesman Says His Party May Seek Dissolution of Assembly, General Election

Paris, Oct. 21 (AP).—A spokesman for Gen. Charles de Gaulle said today the liberation leader would seek to capitalize upon his success in last Sunday's municipal voting by pressing for new parliamentary elections which might pave the way for his early return to power.

Lagging returns showed de Gaulle's new Rally of the French People (RPF) and de Gaulle-led coalition won 38.6 per cent of the popular vote thus far reported in the municipal elections, more than any other party.

Asserting that de Gaulle had nearly a third of the National Assembly's 618 deputies pledged to him even before the elections, Diomede Catroux, the spokesman, said:

"We have two courses open to us. If we can muster a two-thirds majority in the Assembly, we will vote an immediate dissolution and general elections. If we can only raise a simple majority, we will vote to hold a referendum on immediate dissolution followed by the elections and thus take the issue directly to the people."

Calls for "Return to Order"

Catroux said the elections probably had increased the parliamentary following of De Gaulle, who has declared he would not accept the premiership under the present constitution which he believes is too restrictive on the power of the chief executive.

Declaring France had been "overwhelmed" since the liberation by the black market, crime and graft, Catroux interpreted Sunday's vote as a "protest against this situation and a call for a return to order."

He declared that De Gaulle party was working to bring about a union of Europe and that it aws the "sense of the RPF" that "those who think inn terms of national entities such as Belgium, France or Luxembourg belong to the nineteenth centry."

The official popular vote from 344 communities, including Paris with a total vote of 6,680,806 and 1,755,259 abstentions, gave De Gaulle 33.1 per cent of the total. De Gaulle-led coalitions had 5.5 per cent.

Communists Have 29.3 Per Cent

The Communists had 29.3 per cent; Socialists 14.3 per cent; Socialist-led coalition 8 per cent; the Centrist Radical-Socialists 4.2 per cent; the Popular Republicans 1.7 per cent, and various splinter groups for the rest.

Catroux said he did not believe the Socialists would combine with the Communists for next Sunday's run-off in communities under 9000 persons where candidate did not obtain absolute majorities. The Communists last night invited the Socialists to participate in such a junction, although they have been fighting Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier's coalition government.

General De Gaulle, the country's first post-liberation president, resigned January 10, 1946 when he found he could not get along with the Communists in his government.

Some French Towns Vote Again Sunday

Further elections will be held Sunday in all French towns of under 9000 population where the vote of no one party proved sufficiently large to gain a majority.

In such communities, between now and next Sunday, efforts at amalgamation and fusion will be made, in order that one candidate, commanding the votes of more than one party, may get a majority of all votes cast.

About 10 million votes are expected to be cast next Sunday, it was estimated in Washington.

Under the French system of proportional representation, voters in the cities have only one chance to vote for Municipal Councilors, but voters in communities under 9000 have two chances.

Party "Lists" Presented

In last Sunday's vote, which was nation-wide, all voters were presented with party "lists" of candidates. In next Sunday's the small-town voters will choose from combined "lists" of individuals endorsed by two or more parties.

This second chance is offered so that small-town municipal councils shall get members of the necessary high caliber. In a big city it is taken for granted that the "list" of a single party, such as the Socialists or the MRP, will have candidates of the necessary learning, political experience and other qualities needed in municipal government.

But in the small communities, with fewer people to choose from, a single party in a multi-party country like France may not have enough qualified candidates. The system therefore provides that parties failing to get a majority may combine after the first vote and present combined, or fusion, lists to the voters.

Parties Can Make Deals

Suppose, in a small town, a well-qualified Socialist just fails to get a majority on the first vote. Between the first and second vote the Socialists might make a friendly arrangement with the MRP whereby the Socialist candidate would run as the candidate of the MRP as well.

Since less than seven million votes were counted in last Sunday's election, next Sunday's may alter the political complexion of municipal councils throughout France as a whole.

Communists Demand 57% Wage Increase

Paris, Oct. 21.—French Communists gave formal notice today that they have a price for labor peace and that it is marked high enough to bring down the government of Premier Paul Ramadier.

Their demands—principally for increasing the officials minimum wage level by 57 per cent—were presented to the Ramadier administration today. Government sources said they feared new inflation and an untenable position for the cabinet if the terms were met.

European Policy Succeeding, Says Will Rogers, Jr.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Will Rogers, jr., former Democratic Congressman from California, said the "American policy of containment of Communism is working and its effects are starting to be visible in western Europe."

Rogers, publisher of the Beverly Hills Citizen, arrived at LaGuardia Field after a tour of 3½ months through western Europe.

"If the United States will follow through with aid under the Marshall Plan, I think we can dissipate any fear that Communism is a menace in western Europe," Rogers said. He added that the victory of General de Gaulle in the recent French elections "shows that we are gradually winning the containment of Communism."

Rogers said the French Communist is less positive than his eastern counterpart and when it comes to a choice he will be a Frenchman first.

Humidity Blamed For Inferior Steels

Chicago, Oct. 21 (AP).—A metallurgist contended today the ability of steel to absorb hydrogen from the humidity in the air explains "timeworn arguments over the differences between pig irons made in southern and northern blast furnaces."

Dr. Carl A. Zapffe, Baltimore consultant, also told the American Socity for Metals that the discovery or hydrogen absorption during the steel-making process "explains previously puzzling differences between metals produced in summer and in winter, for the higher humidity of summer weather greatly magnifies 'potential' hydrogen absorption." This absorption weakens the metal.

Public Backing Asked For Health Insurance

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—Congress will not act on President Truman's proposal for a health insurance program "until the people become aroused and demand it," Knox Walker of Altanta, a member of the board of managers of the National College of Parents and teachers asserted tonight.

"Our national security may be at stake if we allow present health conditions to continue," he told the Virginia Branch of the National Congress at the opening general session of its annual convention.

"Probably 50 per cent of the people in the United States postpone going to a physician for examinations because of the individual cost," Walker said.

He outlined the four-point program of the present administration of the national P-TA body as school education, health, world understanding and family life education.

Horoscopes Attacked

Bucharest, Oct. 21 (AP).—All Romanian newspapers have ceased publication of horoscopes, following a Communist paper's blast at an opposition organ for carrying them. One informant said the opposition organ was suspected of issuing code message, through the horoscopes, to national liberal party leaders in the provinces.

Brazil, Chile Cut Soviet Ties

fense of the Western Hemisphere and the United States.

The two Yugoslav diplomats—Andrej Cunja, former charge d'affaires at Santiago, and Dalibor Jakasa, secretary of the Yugoslav legation in Buenos Aires who had been visiting Chile—were expelled October 8. On October 11 the Yugoslav foreign ministry announced that Yugoslavia had decided to break relations with Chile.

Here the Brazilians released the text of a note delivered to the Soviet government in Moscow accusing Russia of placing "extremely vexatious" restrictions on Brazil's Ambassador and commenting that this was a common experience of almost all foreign diplomats in the Soviet capital.

The note said Brazil had at first overlooked this in the hope that "mutual confidence and understanding" would be reestablished "between the Soviet government and democratic states," but had been disillusioned.

Cites Attack on Dutra

Failure of the Soviet government to acknowledge Brazil's protests over attacks on Dutra in the magazine Literary Gazette was the reason for the severing of relations, the note said. The Literary Gazette had called Dutra an incompetent soldier and a Fascist.

The United States had lodged a protest over an article in the same publication comparing President Truman with Adolph Hitler and it met with similar response. The United States took no further action.

Immediately after Brazil's action was announced, the Federal police threw a protective guard around the Soviet Embassy, but there were no organized demonstrations.

(In Washington, the State Department announced it has agreed to a Brazilian request to represent Brazil's interests in Russia and is so notifying the Soviet government.)

The Brazilian Congress approved the action.

The Congress has Communist lawmakers, but under consideration is a move to cancel the mandate given them by the electorate on the grounds the party was outlawed last May.

In the campaign preceding the January elections the Communists claimed 200,000 members in Brazil, the largest of any country in North or South America.

Turning Point Seen

Some diplomats here viewed Brazil's action as presaging a turning point in Latin-American relations with Russia and communism.

(Julio Ortega Frier, Dominican Ambassador, predicted to reporters in Washington that Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Paraguay would form an "anti-Communist and pro-United States bloc.")

The Russian viewpoint that articles appearing in the Soviet press could not be taken as an official expression was vigorously disputed in the Brazilian note, which declared, "It is of universal notoriety that the Soviet press is rigorously controlled by the government, whose responsibility therefore covers virtually everything published in the country."

British Laborites Open Drive To Curb House of Lords Power

London, Oct. 21 (AP).—Britain's Labor government began a battle today to curb the power of the hereditary House of Lords and drew immediately from Conservative Party Leader Winston Churchill the charge "it is a deliberate act of Socialist aggression."

King George VI, in a speech written by the Labor government for the formal opening of the new session of Parliament, disclosed the attack. The speech laid down a legislative program for the next 12 months that included early nationalization of the gas industry, but made no mention of steel.

Prime Minister Attlee later told Commons that the Labor program includes nationalization of steel or at least portions of the industry during the present Parliament, which may extend until 1950, however.

Seated near King George to observe the colorful ceremonies was Princess Elizabeth, who rode to her first state opening in a multi-windowed coach.

"Resolution, Energy" Needed

The King's address called for "resolution and energy" in boosting production to solve the economic crisis, and gave notice of the government's intention to grant independence to Burma and to introduce a new budget.

Conservatives tore immediately into the proposal to curb the power of the House of Lords, disclosed in this one sentence: "Legislation will be introduced to amend the Parliament Act, 1911." That act sets out the present authority of the House of Lords, whose origin dates back to the great councils of feudal landowners and Norman kings.

Suggestions of a general election to settle the issue arose immediately, and were expanded by Conservative newspapers.

Political Status Cited

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard said the proposal was "a fire-breathing steed on which the Socialists aim to ride to victory at the next general election," and said their slogan would be "peers versus the people." The Evening News asked if it meant Attlee was preparing for an early general election.

Attlee asserted the main feature of the legislation to curb the Lords would be to limit their power to delay enactment of legislation to one year instead of the present two-year limit, and added "this is a wise precautionary measure."

Commons can pass legislation over the Lords objection but only by acting affirmatively at three successive sessions, a progress that takes two years.

So far the Lords has not rejected any of the major Labor government measures.

Churchill delayed making a full dress speech until later in the session, but heckled repeatedly during a reply by Attlee to remarks from Anthony Eden.

Burning of Coal Underground Seen Cutting Power Cost

Cincinnati, Oct. 21 (AP).—A Federal Bureau of Mines official today foresaw power plant fuel cost savings up to 30 per cent as a possibility of an experiment in burning coal underground to produce combustible gas.

Dr. Arno C. Fieldner, chief of the bureau's fuels and explosives branch, told the national fuels conference widespread use of the method—tried out at Gorgas, Ala., by the Alabama Power Co. and the Bureau of Mines—also would save lives by eliminating much hazardous underground labor and would conserve the Nation's coal resources.

At Gorgas, he explained, a small tunnel was driven through a coal bed and the coal lighted.

The bed was allowed to burn for two months with a blower at one end of the tunnel which forced the carbon monoxide gas into a plant at the other end where it was burned to generate power.

Non-Socialists Rise in Norway

Oslo, Norway, Oct. 21 (AP).—A country-wide survey today showed that non-Socialist parties made gains in Norway's municipal elections Monday, at the expense of the Communists and the Social Democratic labor party.

The count from 252 municipalities, including 39 cities, showed the following results, with the result of the last elections in 1945 in parentheses.

Warmonger Charge Hit by Australia

U. N. Urged to Condemn Propaganda 'Falsely' Accusing National Officials

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Australia countered Soviet charges of "warmongering" today with a measure urging the United Nations Assembly to condemn untrue propaganda picturing national personages as promoters of war.

The United States delegation, one of the principal targets of Russia's "warmonger" charges, immediately indicated that it had hoped to avoid complications in imminent debate on "warmonger" allegations.

Obviously aiming at Russia, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australia's minister for external affairs, proposed formally that the Assembly castigate propaganda which "falsely" accuses national officials or other responsible persons of "warmongering."

The Australian resolution was submitted on the eve of two committee sessions at Lake Success on separate proposals by Russia and Yugoslavia which have stirred strong opposition from the United States.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, U. S. delegate, is ready to speak out in the 57-nation social committee against the Yugoslav resolution which would put the U. N. on record against "slanderous reports" that might disturb international relations. This group is scheduled to take up the Yugoslav proposal tomorrow at the same time the 57-nation political committee comes to grips for the first time with Russia's demand that the U. N. condemn what Russians call "criminal propaganda for a new war"—particularly in the United States, Turkey and Greece.

The Australian resolution was put in an amendment to the Russian demand but would be in effect a substitute.

The measures urged by Australia include a directive to member nations to encourage "fair and accurate reporting of official and other statements affecting international relations."

Navy Day Proclaimed By Governor Lane

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—Maryland will observe Navy Day October 27 by proclamation of Governor Lane, who favors a "strong sea-air power."

He requested the national and State flags be flown from all public buildings.

U. N. Sets Up 3 Committees On Palestine

By John G. Rogers

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP).—The Palestine Committee of the United Nations General Assembly refused today to take a Russian-demanded test vote on the partition of Palestine and, instead, approved creation of three subcommittees to begin spadework leading toward an attempted Holy Land solution.

The United States and 12 other cuntries joined Russia in calling for the test vote but the proposition was defeated by 26 to 14, largely because most U. N. members want to see the exact final form of a U. N. partition plan before they go on record for or against it.

The three subcommittees, approved at the suggestion of the committee chairman, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian foreign minister, will be the following:

No. 1—Subcommittee on conciliation, charged with persuading the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the Arab Higher Committee of Palestine to lessen the area of disagreement.

No. 2—Subcommittee on partition, assigned to take the present U. N. partition plan and alter some of its boundaries and figure out a system of enforcing it.

No. 3—Subcommittee on a unitary Palestine, with the task of consolidating three Arab proposals which call for the establishment of an independent Palestine controlled by its present Arab majority.

The conciliation subcommittee was approved unanimously.

The partition subcommittee was approved by 35 to 0 with eight abstentions. The subcommittee on a unitary Palestine was approved by 34 to 10, with six abstentions. The United States and Russia, which agree on partition in principle, opposed establishment of this body.

The size and composition of the subcommittee will be determined later, perhaps tomorrow.

Posner Urges Limit On Taft Labor Law

By The Associated Press

Elimination of all $75-a-week workers from the wage-hour law guaranteeing overtime pay after 40 hours was proposed to a congressional committee Monday.

Stanley I. Posner, Washington attorney representing the National Industrial Launderers and Cleaners Association, said Congress never intended such workers to enjoy the shelter of the act.

'Don't Sell Europe Short,' Armour Tells Businessmen

Boston, Oct. 21 (AP).—Norman Armour, Assistant Secretary of State for Political Affairs, told a group of business leaders today that opposition to European recovery constituted a deadly serious challenge, and urged them: "Don't sell Europe short."

Eight hundred business executives from the United States and Canada attending the nineteenth annual Boston Conference of Distribution heard Europe likened to a convalescent that had begun to mend after being broken by war.

Cites "Malignant Opposition"

Armour declared everyone was aware that the purpose of the recovery program organized by the 16 participating nations has "aroused the malignant opposition of those whose aggressive political aims can be realized only by the continuance and intensification of hunger, misery and despair."

The whole problem, Armour said, seemed made to order for American enterprise.

"Vast Reservoir of Energies"

"We are not being called upon to restore a ghost town that has outlived its usefulness . . .," he said. "We are given the opportunity to invest in the reconstruction of a former thriving and prosperous community. Europe is a vast reservoir of energies, skills and cultural values that have contributed munificently to the progress of the world in the past—and can do so again."

President James B. Conant of Harvard University said one of the exportable commodities other democracies sorely need is a highly significant American ideal—"equality of opportunity."

The large inroads of Communist philosophy and the subsequent sympathy with Soviet foreign policy in France and Italy might be traced in no small measure to the absence of this ideal, the educator declared.

Havana Trade Parley

Clair Wilcox, director of international trade policy, said an agreement on long-run policies that would reduce barriers to trade is essential to the success of efforts toward economic expansion.

He outlined plans for a United Nations conference on world trade to be held in Havana, November 21, to draw up a charter for an international trade organization.

U. N. Votes 'Watchdog'

characterized all the previous sessions.

The Soviet cudgels were carried by Dmitri Z. Manuilsky of the Ukraine, who declared the new action was a "deepening of the abyss" within the United Nations.

Since the start of the Assembly's consideration, he said, numerous "democratic" newspapers in Greece had been suspended and rumors were rife of talks between the Greek and Turkish military staffs.

The commission, Manuilsky asserted, would have no true authority because the six Slav states (of the Soviet bloc) refused to participate in its activities. Delegates considered this a certain indication that the commission would be refused permission to enter the three northern states to conduct an investigation.

Vishinsky Accuses Aranha

Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister who was informed a few hours earlier of Brazil's break with Russia, hotly accused Assembly President Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil with being swayed by "political events" in refusing a Soviet request for a paragraph by paragraph vote on the Russian resolution.

But Aranha obtained immediate backing for his refusal by a vote of 25 to 9.

Russia's refusal to participate in the commission was announced today by Andrei Gromyko. The Soviets, he declared, will "abstain from participation in the commission and will not take part in its work," he said. Because of that, Gromyko added, the election of Poland and Russia to membership on the commission "is meaningless and useless."

Other members of the commission are the United States, Britain, Australia, Brazil, China, France, Mexico, Netherlands and Pakistan.

Tsaldaris Applauded

Constantine Tsaldaris, Greek foreign minister, received loud applause from the Assembly with his plea for approval. Greece, he said, is "in no position to resist unaided the aggression now in progress."

"Let no country treat our pledges under the Charter (of the United Nations) 'scraps of paper' to bind and blindfold the trustful, but to be torn up by others when they embarrass their course of conquest," he declared.

The three Communist states, he said, "are sending more and more arms and heavier and more effective military equipment across our borders to be fired against our people."

Answering Soviet demands that British troops leave Greece immediately, Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Minister for External Affairs, pointed out that the Russians were inconsistent.

Russia, he declared, is maintaining troops in Poland and is selling arms to that country and Yugoslavia. That is all right, he added, because those governments asked for Soviet assistance. Greece also asked for British troops.

Hector McNeil, British Minister of State, declared that the "role of British troops in Greece is psychological" If they were withdrawn today, he said, "the result would not be order but further disorder."

Virginia Enjoined From Interfering In Oyster Tonging

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—Judge Julien Gunn of Richmond Circuit Court, today granted a temporary injunction to prevent the Comonwealth of Virginia from interfering with the taking of seed oysters from its tidewaters.

Judge Gunn granted the injunction until November 22 when he will decide the case "on its merits."

Plaintiffs were J. R. Hacghton of Warwick County, an oyster tonger; Cornelius Campbell, New Jersey oyster planter; and the Tongers and Seafood Workers Union 265 (AFL) of Newport News.

Defendants were Commissioner of Game and Inland Fisheries Charles M. Lankford, jr., and Attorney General Harvey B. Apperson.

The case involved the taking of seed oysters for shipment out of the State. Lankford had issued an order stipulating that no permits would be issued this season for the tonging of oysters to be shipped outside the boundaries of Virginia.

N. Y. Firm Lone Bidder On Bay Explorations

Baltimore, Oct. 21 (AP).—The Drilled-In Caisson Corp. of New York City was the only firm to submit a bid today to the State Roads Commission for sub-surface explorations for the proposed Chesapeake Bay crossing.

The New York firm offered to make the sample borings at the proposed crossing between Sandy Point, Anne Arundel County, and Kent Island, Queen Anne's County, for $274,100.

The roads commission reserved the right to reject the bid.

Hallowe'en Pranksters Get Pointed Warning

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—Washington County Halloween pranksters had a blunt warning today from Sheriff Joseph D. Baker, who said if they are "shot in the pants" it will be their own fault.

The sheriff said many county residents already had reported property destruction in advance of the holiday. "This sort of thing has got to stop," Sheriff Baker declared in warning the youngsters they will have no one but themselves to blame if they are shot at.

WE'VE HITCHED OUR Station Wagon to a Star

WE ARE not the largest auto dealer in Washington. The Willys-Overland factory in Toledo is not the largest in America—in fact, it is one of smallest. But it makes "America's Most Useful Vehicles." And we are proud to be their distributor in the Washington area.

The way the auto market is today we could sell Willys products beyond our ability to deliver even if they were only half as good. We know that—and we keep our operations geared to the time when cars will again take "selling."

IN OUR two short years of existence we have confirmed the belief we cherished when we first began business—that Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., is going places in the automotive world. It was first evident in the public acceptance of the Civilian Jeep—a hard-working, war-tested vehicle with power, stamina and reliability built into every bolt. Farmers, industrial workers, and all who require a "mechanical mule" know that the Civilian Jeep is here to stay. Satisfied owners praise the Jeep and its universal usefulness. The Willys Truck, an economical vehicle which will soon take a front place in large and small fleets, offers added proof of our belief in the Willys organization.

Then the Jeep Station Wagon came along and we've been swamped with orders ever since. The demand is tremendous, because the Station Wagon is just about perfect for every need. Its all-steel body and top provide safety and durability—and the efficient Jeep engine gives amazingly long gasoline mileage at low cost.

YOU SEE a lot of Willys vehicles on the streets of Washington, and on nearby suburban roads. We've delivered our share of them. And we're keeping their owners happy—because of the product itself—and because of the service we provide. Our everyday operations reflect our goal—to build for the years to come. We haven't forgotten to be polite—to say "Many thanks"—to treat you as good business sense indicates you want to be treated—fairly, hospitably, honestly.

We don't insist on trade-ins. When we get them our allowance is the highest possible. Deliveries are made in the order of purchase. We'll continue to do our best on deliveries—and urge you to wait if you possibly can so that you may enjoy the pleasure of Willys ownership. Drop in at your convenience for a demonstration of any or all of the Willys products.

WE HAVE hitched our Station Wagons and Jeeps and Trucks to the Willys-Overland star because we're convinced that, with Willys, we'll build a name for providing superb transportation in efficient vehicles at the lowest possible cost to you.

Poultry Decision Expected Today

Executive Food Committee May Announce End of Thursday Ban for New Plan

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The question of ending poultryless Thursday will be decided today by the executive committee of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee.

Chairman Charles Luckman passed the question to the committee yesterday, after presenting a new poultry program from poultry producers and feed manufacturers to the Cabinet Food Committee for "appraisal and analysis."

The Cabinet Food Committee is made up of Secretaries Anderson of Agriculture, Harriman of Commerce and Marshall of the State Department.

The poultrymen yesterday presented a program they assured Luckman would save 30 million bushels of grain by April 1. This would be achieved by reducing the number of broilers to three fourths the number in 1946; by trimming the Nation's egg-laying flocks by 20 million birds, by saving 12 million bushels by a feed conservation program, and by reducing the Nation's poultry flocks by 100 million birds by January 31.

The executive committee, which has power to act for the full Foods Committee, is made up of Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post; Harry A. Bullis, president of General Mills, Inc.; Dr. William I. Myers, dean of agriculture of Cornell University; William Green of the American Federation of Labor; Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; G. R. LeSauvage, of the National Restaurant Association and Mrs. J. L. Blair-Buck of the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

The new proposition, Luckman said, offers "somewhat more specific methods of reaching definite goals" than earlier offers from the poultry and feed industries.

An indication of the attitude of the Cabinet Food Committee towards the new offer was seen in a statement by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, who predicted in Pittsburgh that Poultryless Thursdays would be called off soon, possibly within 24 hours.

After a new short session with Luckman yesterday, the poultrymen declared that if Poultryless Thursday were continued they "would have to go to the public" with their problem.

Don M. Turnbull of the International Baby Chicks Association, declared "we know we've got to quit feeding poultry to save feed."

Relief Plans at Stake

Meanwhile a meeting of fraternal, veterans and similar organizations with officers of the Nation's women's clubs and other groups, including the Red Cross and farm organizations, were warned that the fate of the Marshall Plan for reconstruction of Europe rests upon the success of the food drive.

James Stillwell, special assistant to Undersecretary of State Lovett, told the group:

"It's not possible for the Marshall Plan to succeed unless the emergency job of getting food to Europe is done first. Without that aid, all of us can recognize the economic chaos, human misery and civil strife which might result from people losing hope.

"As a result," he added, "they are not going to be too particular about their political beliefs."

Radio Appeal Set Today

Luckman told the group, which pledged assistance to the drive, that the program will again be taken to the country in a Nation-wide broadcast today at 4:30 p. m. EST over the Mutual Broadcasting System. Taking part will be Luckman, George W. Welsh of Grand Rapids, Mich., president of the Conference of Mayors and Dr. Charles M. J. Hustinx, Mayor of Nijmegen, Holland.

Mrs. Blair-Buck told the group that a recent visit to Europe had convinced her that "this program is absolutely necessary."

"Europe is starving," Mrs. Blair-Buck said. "The situation is extremely serious."

Mrs. Blair-Buck added that she and her party lived for three days on the French official ration. "Each one of us went to bed hungry each of the three nights," she said.

Farm Outlook Good

She pleaded that Americans do as the French. "Not one scrap of food is left on any plate in Europe," she declared.

The Agriculture Department predicted that "Farmers will have another good year in 1948" in its Agricultural Outlook Digest.

"The outlook is that they will be able to sell most of the products at prices near the 1947 record average. As a result, income from farming again will be high.

Truman Again Calls Leaders

priate money at the regular session, beginning January 3.

However, prevailing opinion in the State Department continues to be that a special session is essential. State Department circles are known to feel that even if Congress should act wit hthe utmost dispatch there would be a considerable gap between the time when all stop-gap aid in sight would be exhausted and the time when Congress could make fresh assistance available.

The methods financial experts have in mind, apparently are those that Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) mentioned in Boise, Idaho, late in September.

At that time (it was right after Mr. Truman had met with other congressional leaders), Taft told reporters that some "ingenious person" ought to be able to find emergency credits for Europe without the necessity of a special session.

Agencies Mentioned

He mentioned Government agencies that might be able to extend emergency help, including the Export-Import Bank, the Commodity Credit Corp. and the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Since then the Export-Import Bank has authorized France to use 93 million dollars of a reconstruction loan to buy coal and other raw materials. Also, President Truman has directed the Army to buy French francs and thus provide France with another 50 million dollars. In addition, both France and Italy have been assured of their share of a gold hoard captured from the Nazis.

Even with all this, the prospect is that France will run out of dollars along about January 1, and Italy before that.

One method that has been discussed for carrying Europe and avoiding a special session involves the Commodity Credit Corporation.

"Slow Bills" Proposed

It has been suggested that this agency continue to sell France and Italy wheat and other needed products even though those countries have run ut of dollars. The Commodity Credit Corporation, according to the plan, would submit a "slow bill," that is, sell these countries the things they must have but give them what time they needed to pay for them.

The Administration is hardly likely to do this, however, unless Republican leaders in Congress are willing to go along.

It has been suggested, too, that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation might make fast loans to France and Italy. But this, apparently would require congressional approval.

Senator Taft, who was barnstorming in the West when President Truman last met with the congerssional leaders, will be at tomorrow's White House meeting.

Truman Uncommitted

President Truman has never committed himself one way or another on the question of a special session of Congress. His position has always been that he would call one if he found it necessary.

After his last meeting with the leaders, he announced that he had asked four congressional committees to meet as soon as possible and consider the question of stop-gap aid.

These committees—the Appropriations committees of both houses, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee—will meet next month.

Both Senate and House Foreign Policy committees will meet November 10.

Senator H Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, has called a meeting of his committee for November 18. Bridges and other members of the committee are now overseas.

Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, has not yet called a meeting. He has been overseas but is expected to reach New York tomorrow.

Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.), chairman of a special House group which made an on-the-spot European study of the Marshall Plan, will accompany the leaders to the White House tomorrow. He is expected to take along the committee's own tentative statistics on stop-gap aid.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, apparently will not be able to attend tomorrow's meeting at the White House. He is now in Ann Arbor, where Mrs. Vandenberg is convalescing from an operation.

Housewives Urge Return Of Controls

Baltimore, Oct. 21 (AP).—Following up testimony that it costs more to live in Baltimore than almost any other city, three housewives today suggested to Senate-House investigators that Congress reconvene immediately and enact some kind of control.

Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.), chairman of the joint congressional investigators, asked one of them if OPA should be revived.

Mrs. Carl B. Swisher, appearing at the hearing for the Maryland League of Women Voters, replied that "the league does not take a stand on that."

Representative Rich (R., Pa.) told Mrs. Swisher and her colleagues they were asking for controls "where they don't have any in Europe."

"Before we have any rationing here, we ought to request and demand that they do the same over there," he added.

20 Points Over U. S. Average

Chairman Baldwin said he thought price increases in Baltimore are perhaps greater than in any of the other East Coast cities which the investigators have visited.

A new Bureau of Labor Statistics report presented at the start of the two-day hearing here, showed food prices in the area have advanced 2.7 per cent since mid-July and the local index stands at approximately 210, using the 1935-39 average as 100. The national average in mid-June was 190.5.

Senator Baldwin expressed interest when Mrs. Roy D. Whitlock of the Baltimore Women's Emergency Council said stores in the same block often sell identical items for widely varying prices.

In last night's papers, she testified, she noticed sirloin steak varied all the way from 39 to 99 cents a pound. A bar of soap was 15 cents in one store, 19 a block away. A woman's skirt was $8.98 at one store, $15.00 at another.

Worse Off With More Pay

"We've noticed this in other cities," Senator Baldwin told her, "but not to such a degree. Do you think these stores are profiteering?"

"If you shop around you can get some things for much less," Mrs. Whitlock replied.

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) opened the hearing with a statement that Baltimore's 25-per-cent population increase during the war years contributed to the fact it is one of the costliest cities in the country to live in.

"Such a large percentage of the family income is being consumed by the increased living costs that higher wages have proved valueless to great numbers of our people," he told the congressional investigators.

"Increased salaries have been granted to persons in all walks of life, but the prevailing high prices leave the families with less than they had under former conditions."

Restaurants Pose Problem On Meat Issue

One of the first problems facing the newly organized District Citizens Food Conservation Committee at its opening meeting tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. will be how to obtain meatless menus in local restaurants on Tuesdays.

Most of the District restaurants checked in the downtown section yesterday were serving meat dishes. Some were offering a variety of them and others featured such items in front window signs.

Charles Stofberg, committee executive secretary, said the problem will "probably be discussed" at the Thursday meeting. The Washington Restaurant Association said that Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary, will return from a trip through the South in time to attend the session in the District Building board room.

Placards Prepared

The Association also disclosed that placards are being printed for member restaurants indicating that they are complying with the national food saving program. These will be sent to all members, to be used if they feel they are complying, an official revealed.

Several restaurants who served meat dishes yesterday blamed the Association for not bringing competitors into line with the program.

Other restaurants took the position that the meat saving "is up to the public." One eating place featured eight main dishes of which two were meat and declared this practice would be followed if customers continued ordering the meat entrees.

Navy units and the two cafeterias of the YWCA have been following the meatless Tuesday and poultryless Thursday directions, it was reported yesterday.

Colliflower Praised

The local food-saving committee yesterday received a telegram from Charles Luckman, chairman of the national group, commending the selection of James E. Colliflower as chairman.

Luckman declared, "I think it is very fortunate that a man as experienced and capable as yourself in public service should have been appointed chairman of the Capital's Citizen Food Committee and I am delighted to learn of your appointment.

"We want to cooperate with your District committee in every way possible and hope you will feel free to call on the President's Citizens Food Committee for any assistance we can give."

Husband Indicted For Wife's Death In Well at Home

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—Joseph H. Holland, 43, Odenton carpenter, was indicted by the Anne Arundel grand jury today on a charge of murdering his wife, Mary Estelle, 41, on September 11.

The jury heard 23 witnesses as it pondered the charge most of yesterday and again this morning.

Holland was arrested by State police a week after he reported his wife died of injuries received when she fell into a well he was cleaning at their home.

Police and the county medical examiner's office quoted Holland as saying he heard his wife call while he worked in the bottom of the well. He looked up as she fell headlong into the shaft, Holland said.

Magistrate David B. Dunker of Ferndale ordered Holland held for jury action after he pleaded innocent to the murder charge.

African Zion Bishop Hit GI Segregation

Alleges Jim Crowism on Rise in Germany, In Citing Swimming Pool, Club Instances

Bishop W. J. Walls of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church declared yesterday in a report to Army Secretary Royall that there is increasing segregation of white and colored troops in Germany.

The Rev. Mr. Walls, presiding bishop of his church's second episcopal district in Chicago, visited Europe under War Department auspices last summer as a member of a commission of 14 clergymen.

His report generally praised top Army personnel overseas and their handling of morale and racial problems, but criticized several instances of "discrimination" against Negro troops. These cases of segregation were charged:

1. White and colored troops must use the swimming pool at Andrew Barracks in Berlin on separate days. The pool is drained after colored use before the white soldiers swim.

Negroes Barred From Club

2. An enlisted man's club in front of American headquarters is "jim-crowed by permitting all enlisted men except Negroes." This is a departure, he said, from war days and during the first year of peace, when clubs were interracial.

3. Negro units have been concentrated in separate billets in Berlin, Krankfurt, Giesen, Grafenwehr and Menheim, by moving most of the colored units to different stations. This has meant setting up separate recreation facilities.

(4) There are no Negroes in the Constabulary, and most of the 8000 colored soldiers in Germany, Austria and Italy are engaged in driving and maintaining trucks and "other menial" work.

Bishop Walls said that the Army now has two Negro units in training to be employed as an experiment in the Constabulary. He declared the reason for the present exclusion of colored soldiers from the Constabulary was the transfer of all skilled Negro units forces out of the theater, leaving only truck forces.

Hits Marriage Restrictions

The Chicago clergyman took issue with Army restrictions on marriage of soldiers and German women. Declaring that it "breaks the law of nature, justice and God", he said that the question of marriage should be left to the individuals.

"I further recommend," said Bishop Walls, "that there be no discrimination here on lines of color, to avoid the impression that America is divided. Naturally, I would advise my own people against general and unlicensed social intermingling, but where it is done of their own choice I have as much respect for the rights of a German or Austrian daughter as I have of our own foreigners."

"In saying this I fear no wholesale intermarriage between the races, for I learned, contrary to the common report, that the Negro GIs welcome the Army restriction in most cases, and are freely using it to their German fraulein associates as a reason for their inability to protect their relationships. In other words, the Negroes do not wan to marry the German girls, as a whole."

Former Draft Offials Form 'Standby' Manpower Board

Selective Service board members across the Nation are formulating "standby" manpower boards, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Office of Selective Service Records, disclosed last night.

The general said that in many States, veteran board members "still bound together as a result of having taken the same shellacking during the war for their volunteer work," are holding meetings and planning how to meet manpower needs which might arise.

General Hershey said one possible need might result from passage of the universal military training legislation and another might be "some kind of mobilization." He said the boards are acting largely on their own initiative.

In the District, William E. Leahy, former director of Selective Service said local board members were following the program. Leahy, an attorney, said his group will hold four meetings a year.

In Maryland, Col. Henry C. Stanwood, head of the Maryland National Guard manpower section, said he planned to ask former Selective Service committeemen in the State to act as "standby" manpower boards ready in the event "of a national emergency."

effective for the preservation of our way of life.

"Selective Service was its wartime application. Its logical peacetime application is Universal Military Training, an equitable method of preparing the citizens for his personal defense responsibility so that—should war come again—it shall not find us unready. So long as the use of force has not been forever and effectively barred from international relationships, this responsibility must be met soberly and seriously by the United States. Universal Military Training, as proposed by the President's Advisory Commission, is an important clause in American democracy's insurance policy against extinction by war."

Montgomery Bonds Sold To N. Y. Firm

A $2,800,000 general improvement bond issue was sold yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners to the New York bonding firm of Halsey, Stuart and Co., lowest of six bidders with a proffered interest rate of 2.4731 per cent.

The money will go toward new schools and roads, and before the bonds mature in 1972 they will have cost county taxpayers a total of $970,730 in interest, officials said.

The board also sold to the Montgomery County National Bank at Rockville a bond issue of $35,000, proceeds of which will be used to build a new firehouse for the Upper Montgomery Volunteer Fire Department at Beallsville.

In other business, the Commissioners adopted an amendment to the zoning ordinance which prescribed a one-year waiting period instead of 90 days for persons reapplying for rezoning after their original petitions have been denied.

The amendment originally was proposed by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planing Commisison, and was strongly supported by the Citizens Zoning Committee of Silver Spring.

A long afternoon session was highlighted by the appearance of numerous property owners protestin gincreased assessments on their property. Commissioner Oliver W. Youngblood was instructed to study the need for parking meters in the Silver Spring and Takoma Park commercial areas.

Pakistan Troops Seize State With Ties to Kashmir

New Delhi, Oct. 21 (U.P.).—Sheikh Abdullah, president of the Kashmir National Conference, charged today that Pakistan troops have seized Poonch, a small Moslem state in the Punjab which pays tribute to Kashmir.

Abdullah said the troops drove Kashmir state forces out of Poonch.

Pakistan action presumably was in retaliation for the blockading of the princely state of Junagadh, midway between Bombay and Karachi, by Indian forces last week.

Junagadh's Moslem ruler indicated a desire to join Pakistan, although his state is predominantly Hindu, and surrounded by Indian commonwealth states.

Kashmir, on the other hand, is ruled by a Hindu—Maharajah Sir Hari Singh—but is predominantly Moslem and is surrounded by Pakistan Punjab.

The two small states and Hyderabad, a vast domain in South Central India ruled by a Moslem, are the only princely states whose future has not been decided.

Ten Experts, Knutson End Tax Review

A 10-man panel of tax experts headed by Roswell Magill yesterday concluded a four-month review of the Federal tax structure, but withheld formal recommendations until November 3.

The advisory group, named to comb the tax laws for "inequities" and possible new revenue sources, will make its findings public on the eve of a November 4 meeting of the House Wayns and Means Committee here.

Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), who is expected to launch a long-range tax revision bill immediately following action on another "quickie" tax reduction measure sat in with the expert group.

The advisory body is believed to favor "split income" tax privileges for husbands and wives paralleling benefits now restricted to community property States. Magill pointed out, however, that this was merely one of many changes the committee studied.

While Magill declined comment on the others, the committee is known to have been considering revision of capital gains provisions and estate and gift taxes, eliminating double taxation of dividends, special treatment of earned income and possible application here of the Canadian form of general manufacturers excise tax.

A report spread that the group favored lowering the top income-tax rate from 85 to 50 per cent, but a committee source said the group wasn't dealing with specific rates. It is dealing chiefly with tax principles, methods and policy.

To balance a recommendation that husbands and wives in all States be extended community property "split income" benefits, the group is expected to ask removal of estate tax "inequities" complained of by taxpayers in 13 community property States.

2 Union Officials Face Trial on Disorderly Count

Denton, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—Caroline County authorities said today two union officials will be called for trial Thursday in circuit court on disorderly conduct charges growing out of work stoppages at plants of the Excelsior Pearl Works at nearby Ridgely and Federalsburg.

The accused are Irwin J. Jaffe, assistant regional director, International Ladies Garment Workers Union, AFL, from Baltimore, and Lawrence Christopher, another union organizer.

They were arrested after an incident at the Ridgely plant October 9.

A third union man, Charles T. Tillman, jr., of Norfolk, Va., was arrested October 15 at Ridgely on charges of disorderly conduct and illegal parking. No hearing has yet been set in his case.

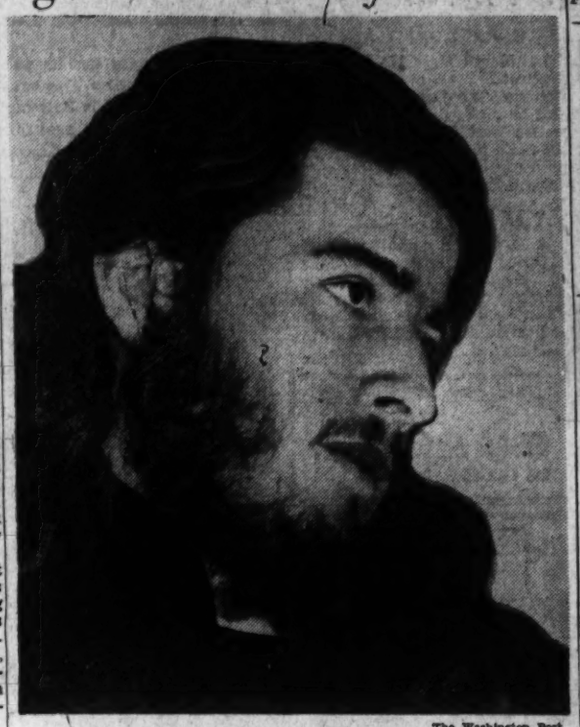
Avak, the Faith Healer, Sees Sights Here Like Any Tourist



The Washington Post

MAN OF PRAYER—Avak, the faith healer from Iran, has prayed for more than 6000 persons since his arrival in America in May

If not someone out of this world, then certainly no closer than the edge of it is Avak, faith healer from Tehran, Iran.

Avak arrived in Washington yesterday as a member of a group touring the United States. Dr. Clem Davies, Methodist Episcopal minister in Los Angeles, is conducting the tour. Avak came to the United States in May to attempt to cure Vaughn Arakelian, son of a California vintner. While not completely cured yet, young Arakelian is reported to be "markedly improved." He is affected by epilepsy.

Almost three years ago, while working for a silversmith in Teheran, Avak discovered his power to heal, he said. He said he knew little about God, but slowly learned that he was an "instrument of God." A steady church-goer, member of the Armenian Gregorian Church, and a believer in the Holy Trinity, Avak stated that since he began to heal, he has not had time to attend.

Prays For Thousands

Since his discovery that he "was living within God, and God was living within" him, Avak has prayed individually for thousands of people. He first cured his employer of boils in two days, he said.

He is unperturbed by the excitement that has surrounded him since his arrival in the United States.

Of the people he has treated in the United States, he claims immediate results for 10 per cent of them, and gradual help for an additional 40 to 45 per cent.

Compared to Light

Dr. Davies, a minister for 36 years, said that he has never "seen anything like it. He has that simplicity of genius." While not believing that Ovak is divine, Dr. Davies compares to a light bulb, which has no power to give light until it is turned on.

Today, the group will tour Washington, and tomorrow night Avak will attend a dinner, being given by the Armenian Apostolic church here, at the new Colonial Hotel. He will leave early tomorrow morning for New York, and will return to Los Angeles on November 7.

Fathers Halt Pair's Jaunt With $30,000

New York, Oct. 21 (U.P.).—A pair of wealthy but angry fathers today brought back from Louisiana their respective son and daughter, each 15, to explain their 12-day, 1000-mile tour of the open road with $30,000 in paternal cash.

Morton Rosenblum and his girl friend, Joan Melson, who wears braces on her teeth, arrived in a plane today from Shreveport, La. With them were the fathers, Dr. Jacob Rosenblum and J. R. Melson.

Morton and Joan had set out from New York October 1. The boy had tapped his dad's safe for $10 and $100 bills. He put $30,000 in a suitcase.

Sunday, near Minden, La., State troopers picked up the four young occupants of a used Oldsmobile. Morton and Joan admitted their identity. In the back seat were two young boys, both hitchhikers, their feet propped up on a suitcase holding $24,000—remnants of the original $30,000.

Joint Plummer Estate Estimated at $145,000

An estate owned jointly by the late Clay Plummer, prominent Gaithersburg, Md., dairy farmer, and his wife, Mrs. Rosabell Plummer, has been estimated at $145,000, it was disclosed yesterday.

Plummer, who died last May, left only $2500 in his own name, according to a petition for the probate of his will approved yesterday in Montgomery County Orphans Court.

Attorneys said the estate, including real estate and personal property, is being appraised to determine the amount of Federal inheritance tax to be paid by Mrs. Plummer.

2 Yacht Victims' Bodies Recovered

The bodies were those of Mrs. Frances Opal Girard, f Jacksonville, Fla., and Richard Bard of New York.

Bard was a crewman and Mrs. Girard, was the wife of the yacht owner, A. H. Girard, who was rescued by the barge captain J. Miller Haldeman, immediately after the collision.

Girard was discharged this afternoon from the U. S. Marine Hospital where he had been under treatment for shock.

Forest Fire Levels Resort

Goose Rocks Beach, Me., Oct. 21 (AP).—Firefighters reported "everything just about gone" in this little summer resort village tonight as the worst of scores of New England forest fires swept on toward the fishing community of Cape Porpoise, where 500 persons were evacuated.

Biddleford Fire Capt. James Wynn reported that "house after house was going up in flames" at Gose Rocks, also known as Beachwod.

Milton V. Smith, Portland flier, said flames leaped 100 to 150 feet into the air.

Scores of forest fires dotted the drought-parched woodlands of New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine.

In New York State 13 Woodland fires, three of them uncontrolled, were reported upstate, while in New Jersey 12 blazes burned through tinder-dry woodlands.

Smith's Niece Is Threatened

jury, Goings said, "there was only one man before the grand jury yesterday."

Dan Dugan, Arlington County board member, had testified in the grand jury's customary secret session before Jury Foreman Erle Kirby produced a list of 14 persons the jury wished to question in connection with its investigation.

Smith, questioned at his newsstand near the Clarendon Traffic Circle yesterday, gave reporters their first knowledge that his niece had been threatened.

He said she was first accosted Saturday when she came out of a movie. A car with five men in it, drove up and asked her where Smith was, whether he was her uncle, and where they might reach him. Smith said Joyce refused to answer their questions.

On Sunday, he said, she came out of a movie in Colonial Village at 3:20 and was again approached by a car containing two of the five men she had seen the previous day, and a blonde woman.

Smith said his niece started to run when she saw the car. The woman in the car then called out that they would not harm her. One of the men, Smith said his niece had told him, said "Don't tell her, you'll only scare her."

On Monday the Davenport girl was stopped on her way to Washington-Lee High School, where she was a student. This time, the two men and the woman who had been in the car the preceding day stopped her. They said they had information about "Jones and Woodyard" that they wanted to sell to Smith, Smith quoted the Davenport girl as saying, and asked her to convey the message to her uncle.

It was at this point, Smith said, that police were notified of the communications between his niece and the unnamed persons in the car.

Yesterday morning, Joyce Davenport was again stopped on her way to school by the same persons, who asked for Smith's "reply" to their offer. Smith said his niece told them he had no interest in the information they offered.

"In that case," the men were quoted as saying, "we have some information we think Woodyard and Jones will be interested in."

The Davenport girl was stopped again, at the corner of Stafford st. and Washington blvd. near Washington-Lee High School. This time, however, there were three men in the car.

Smith said his niece told him the "third man" asked her if the blonde woman who had been in the car previously had told her to advise Smith to leave Arlington County. The Davenport girl said the man used "very strong language in talking to her." He told her to forget she had ever seen any of the persons with him, to forget what kind of car they drove, or what tags were used.

"If you don't," he is quoted as saying, "the same thing will happen to you that is going to happen to the woman who was with us earlier."

Joyce Davenport described the woman as a "pretty platinum blonde" and said all the men were well dressed. She said one had a two-inch scar on his right cheek.

She said that up until yesterday, the black Pontiac sedan used had Virginia tags, numbers of which were obscured by mud. Yesterday, the car had Maryland tags, which Miss Davenport remembered as 166-529. Smith said he had been informed that a police check showed this tag number had not yet been issued.

"Of course," said Smith, "this whole thing might be a prank. But I don't believe it is."

Meanwhile, the county grand jury investigation is inactive in a recess which will end tomorrow morning at 10. At that time, the six-man jury is expected to hear testimony of 14 witnesses, including county officials, policemen, and private citizens.

The testimony before the grand jury will be in secret session, and will not be revealed unless the jury decides that a crime has been committed, and presents an indictment in the Circuit Court. In such case, the witnesses who testified to such a crime would be called to testify again in open court to substantiate charges made by them in the secret jury sessions.

Tempers Rise In Women's Party Trial

Tempers were ruffled yesterday as the legal battle over who are the legal officers of the National Woman's Party dragged into its second day at District Court.

When Attorney Olive Lacey, representing the Anita Pollitzer faction, asked Witness Laura Berrien if the latter hadn't called a meeting of the national council by "misrepresentation," Associate Justice James Proctor intervened.

"There is a tendency to inject a lot of color into this trial," Justice Proctor said.

"I don't want my mind cluttered," he continued. "When I rule in this case it will be only on whether the Mayflower convention in January was legal or illegal. Please confine testimony to issues involved.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst and a slate of officers had been elected at the Mayflower meeting allegedly before the expiration date of offices held by Anita Pollitzer and her group.

Miss Pollitzer and 26 others named defendants in the case will have their day in court today when the defense presents its side.

Fairlington Survey Favors New School

Results of a survey of 85 per cent of families in Fairlington yesterday showed an overwhelming majority—2611 in favor of constructing a new elementary school in the development's north section.

The survey was taken by volunteer workers of the Fairlington (Civic) Association after the Arlington School Board voted to build a $175,000, eight-room addition to the aFirlington School in the south section.

The association, seeking a new north section school, has vigorously protested the board's decision.

Out of 2688 families interviewed, only 92 families favored the school board's proposal, the association's poll showed. In the north section, 1035 families wanted the new school, only 9 the addition as voted by the board. In south Fairlington, 976 voted for the new school to 83 for the addition.

The poll report was filed last night with William Montgomery Smith, local school board chairman. Chairman on the poll committee was Mrs. Robert C. Young.

The poll showed the 2688 families interviewed had a total of 3246 children from 1 to 18 years of age. Of the children, 1527 live in north Fairlington, 1719 in the south section.

Out of the 3246 children, the poll showed 2063, or 63 per cent, are now of preschool age—less than 6 years of age. By 1953, the report asserted, school facilities in the Fairlington area will "have to be tripled" to accommodate this group.

Next year, the report pointed out, 317 5-year-olds will enter elementary school, this compared to the 196 that entered elementary school this fall. The report predicted that 1948 "will be a critical year with respect to school facilities in Fairlington."

According to the poll, only 34 out of the 2011 families favoring the north section school, said they favored it if it could not be completed as quickly as the Fairlington School addition proposed by the board.

The association pointed out Arlington residents approved a bond issue last May to provide funds for building the new school.

THE RUSSELL'S POST "Apartment Wanted" AD BROUGHT 15 OFFERS!

"I once walked from Normandy to Berlin, but have walked twice as far in D. C. in search of a furnished 2-room apartment . . ." That's how Georgetown law student John C. Russell stated his housing needs to Post readers on October 2. By October 8 Mr. Russell's ad had brought "at least 15 offers," and he and his wife had chosen an excellent Arlington apartment — living room, bedroom, kitchen and bath, utilities included, for $70 a month. "We ran the ad in another paper, too," says Mr. Russell, "but Post results were far superior."

"What this country amounts to depends on what happens to its homes."...That's why the life insurance companies and their agents are bringing you this series of messages from the nation's foremost authorities to help you plan for happiness in the handling of your family money. (This is Message Number 23.)

The Birthday that Tommy tried to forget!

Many of today's homes are made unhappy by too great a burden of debt . . . yet, as this authoritative article shows, there is a way out

by MISS CORNELIA DUNPHY,
Home Economist for Community Service Society of New York

Miss Cornelia Dunphy

LITTLE TOMMY is a tearful witness that the best solution to the high cost of living is not to borrow money . . . or to accept all the credit that one can get. The best thing to do if you are too deep in debt is to get out. It's hard, but it can be done.

Tommy's father, let's call him Mr. Spencer, came to us a while back for advice. In spite of a better-than-average job, his family was in trouble from one debt piled on top of another debt, from loans taken out to pay other loans.

Mr. Spencer had not fully realized how badly off he was until one day, in order to meet a payment penalty date, he found himself forced to take the money he'd put aside to buy Tommy a bicycle for his birthday. Tommy tried manfully to understand, but it wasn't much of a birthday!

In general, we gave Mr. Spencer the same advice we would give to most families: To get out of debt, First: Add up all your debts and face the total. Second: Write down your running expenses, and see where you can cut down.

Don't rob Peter to pay Paul by attempting to take money from one fixed payment, such as rent, insurance, taxes, to pay another.

But this doesn't mean halfway measures will do. Ask yourself if it isn't worth more to your peace of mind to get out of the hole you're in than merely to escape the worry with extravagant amusements . . . See if you really haven't enough clothes and household supplies to get by on for a while . . . Get the whole family to agree that it's possible to economize on food and still eat well.

Third: Set aside a definite sum each week for paying off debts, and make it as large as possible. The longer it takes to get out of debt, the worse it is for your family. But remember, even if the process is slow, make it steady and consistent... And discuss your plan with your creditors—let them know you're trying.

Work it out together!

How to PLAN for Family Happiness

• Planning to get out of debt is only part of sound money planning. You'll be more likely to have enough money on hand when you need it, if you'll follow these few simple rules:

FOR TODAY... The first thing, for most families, is to take care of the larger fixed items such as rent, taxes, insurance, mortgage and installment payments, etc.

So start by adding up all your fixed items for the year, divide by 52, and set aside that amount weekly.

Also, every family should have a "rainy day" fund equal to at least four weeks' income. Set aside a little every week until you have that much. Then, you'll know how much you can spend for food, clothing, heat, light, amusements, and so forth.

FOR TOMORROW... We live in a changing world. Family needs and circumstances change . . . living costs . . . taxes. If you have not had your life insurance program reviewed lately, the chances are 2 to 1 that it should be brought up to date.

There are so many ways in which you can use your life insurance, that you should have the life insurance you now own checked to see if it is suited to your needs. This is a service that comes with your life insurance.

The person best equipped to help you with this is the well-trained life insurance agent. Get in touch with your agent, or write your life insurance company. INSTITUTE OF LIFE INSURANCE, 60 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y.

D.C. Purchases Cost $7,208,361

Commodities and equipment for District agencies cost $7,208,361 during fiscal 1947—a million dollars more than during the previous year.

Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan, in his annual report to the Commissioners, yesterday blamed "sharply rising prices" for part of the increase.

Volume of purchases also increased, he said, because commodities in short supply during the war became available.

Occasionally, he said, "we find a ray of sunshine in the clouds." Linseed oil, turpentine, and certain Water Department fixtures, for example, are lower than a year ago, he indicated, and more companies are submitting bids.

District purchasing agents augmented beef supplies for Gallinger Hospital and Glenn Dale Sanatorium by purchasing a dozen steers at Culpep, Va., for approximately 20 cents per pound. Inmates at Lorton, Va., reformatory did the butchering, he said.

Approximately $365,000 was spent to buy 170 new vehicles, including fire apparatus and ambulances, he said.

Considerable savings were made because the District pays no Federal excise or transportation taxes, he pointed out. Many items also were obtained at a reduction through Federal surplus property sales.

Man, 20, Is Charged With Assaulting Child

Joseph Grant Williams, 20, 931 French st. nw., was arrested yesterday afternoon on a warrant charging indecent assault on a 5-year-old girl.

Williams, an employe of The Washington Post was released on a $500 bond for his appearance in Municipal Court today. According to police, Williams denied the charge.

Jury Frees Barber On Racial Charge

Madison, Wis., Oct. 21 (U.P.).—A barber accused of charging a Negro minister $3 for a 75-cent haircut was acquitted of racial discrimination charges today.

The jury of 11 men and 1 woman held William H. Stratman innocent. It was the first trial here under Wisconsin's law banning racial discrimination in public places.

A letter from Stratman to Patrick asking the minister, Boyd M. Patrick, to get his hair cut somewhere else was read during the trial. Stratman testified his actio ninvolved no personal racial prejudice, but he had been losing business because Patrick was his customer.

Church Plans D. C. as World Headquarters

A ruling by the Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday paved the way for making Washington the future international headquarters of the Christian Science Church.

Robert O. Clouser, member of the board, said approval had been granted for the church to set up local headquarters in the former John Barton Payne home on the northwest corner of 16th and I sts. nw.

Attorney James C. Wilkes, who represented the church at yesterday's zoning hearing, said Washington Christian Science Headquarters would move soon from present quarters in the Munsey and Colorado Buildings.

Eventually, he said, the old Payne home will be razed and a "monumental type" building constructed to serve as a "Christian Science Memorial for the Religious Capital of the World."

Clouser said church representatives had indicated that international headquarters would be set up here but that national headquarters would remain in Boston.

The Payne home is owned by Washington and Lee University, the College of William and Mary, and the American National Red Cross.

In another action yesterday, the Board of Zoning Adjustment set a precedent by accepting the withdrawal of a case "with prejudice."

Mrs. Isabel Davis, owner of property at 2523 Massachusetts ave. nw., had asked the board to permit the property's use by American Forestry Association.

Opponents of the plan, including representatives of the Dupont Circle Citizens Association and neighboring residents, were ready to argue the case when it was withdrawn.

The board invoked the "prejudice" penalty — tantamount to blocking a renewal of the plea for one year—to prevent the petitioner from seeking similar action later, at a time when it might be more difficult for opposition to appear.

Suspect Enters Guilty Plea in Manslaughter

A man who killed his common-law wife and her lover with two blasts from a shotgun pleaded guilty to manslaughter yesterday before Associat Justice David A. Pine in District Court.

The defendant, Robert Green, 40, shot Evelyn Bryant, 24, and John Byrd, 27, April 6, 1946, after he surprised the couple in a bedroom at 319½ M pl. sw.

Prosecutor Grace Stiles agreed to drop charges of first-degree murder.

In another case a jury found Joseph Washington, 26, no fixed address, not guilty of manslaughter.

Washington was accused of stabbing James Bennett, 35 ,of 1116 9th st. nw., during an altercation in Mount Vernon Park July 24.

Frank Allen, 24, of 623 2d st. nw., was found of unsound mind for the second time since he was accused of rape-robbery in 1945.

Allen had been charged with raping and robbing a 30-year-old woman in a parking lot in the rear of 623 3d st. nw., June 16, 1946.

He was later adjudged of unsound mind and committed to St. Elizabeth's. Last May he was discharged from the hospital as sane and committed to District Jail pending trial preparation by Prosecutor Sylvan Schwartz.

'Test Tube' Baby Embraces Mother

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

TEST-CASE—Mrs. Julia Strnad, 31, has begun a custody battle in New York which may make legal history. She seeks to prevent her estranged husband from visiting her 4-year-old daughter, Antoinette, who, she claims, is a "test tube" baby, born as the result of artificial insemination. Mrs. Strnad is challenging the husband's parental rights, claiming that she is the sole parent and is seeking to amend a State Supreme Court separation decree, giving her husband the right to visit the child on Sundays

Guffey Settles Suit With Pew Out of Court

Philadelphia, Oct. 21 (AP).—Harry Shapiro, attorney for former U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey (D., Pa.), said that Guffey's $500,000 damage suit against Oil Executive Joseph N. Pew, jr., had been settled out of court.

Book Fair Raising Funds For Library

The Cleveland Park Book Fair, organized to raise money for a community library, opened at the Cleveland Park Congregational Church, 3400 Lowell st. nw. It will run through Friday.

One of the favorite features of the fair, according to Mrs. Joseph L. Rauh, publicity co-chairman, was the story-telling hour, from 4 to 5 p.m. Stories such as Uncle Remus are told to the children, divided in 4-to-8 year and 8-to-12 year groups, by members of the Story Telling League. In addition, eight talks were given by Washington authors of children's books, and one "chalk talk" was given by Lucia Patton, author and illustrator of "Little River of Gold."

In the fund-raising department, Mrs. Rauh estimated that the organization made about $200 yesterday from the sale of books. Although the goal is $2000, Mrs. Rauh said she believed it would be reached. Yesterday, the children, almost 500 of them, inspected and noted titles of books they would like. Buying will be done mostly in the last two days.

Here's Post-war Power for Pre-war Buicks

A brand-new 1947 Fireball engine puts today's Sparkling Zip into your 1937-1942 Buick

IF you've been itching to get the thrill of a power-packed 1947 Buick engine under your treadle toe, here's the quick and happy solution.

It's a factory-fresh Fireball engine right off the 1947 production line. It's exactly the same mighty package of power that goes into the flashing new Buicks. You can get it now to repower any Buick built in the last ten years.

How can we do it—when new cars are so hard to get? Here's the answer:

While shortages of bodies and other parts slow up completed cars, Buick engine production has forged ahead. So engines are available now—ready to go into your car and step it up with today's up-to-the-minute power performance.

And it's as simple as this: We take out the old engine—put this new one in its place—and your car's young again, rarin' to go, with a new lease on life and headed for thousands and thousands of miles of smooth and spirited service.

It doesn't take long—far less time than a thorough overhaul—and often at less cost. Convenient payments can be arranged, if you like.

It's the next best thing to getting a new Buick—and a good investment because it makes your car worth so much more.

Certainly well worth while looking into, isn't it? Come in and let's talk it over.

Prince Georges Would Sell Automobile License Tags

Legislation to enable Prince Georges County residents to purchase their automobile tags within the county, may be sought at this fall's special session of the Maryland General Assembly.

County Treasurer James B. Bland appeared before Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday at Upper Marlboro and asked the commissioners to seek such legislation. The county's residents now must go to Baltimore to obtain their licenses.

Bland pointing out that Prince Georges, Baltimore and Harford counties are the only ones in the State in which tags are not sold, proposed the sales he made by the county treasurer.

He told the commissioners the tag sales within the county would not only prove a convenience to residents but would provide a closer check on county automobile registration on which the county receives a share of auto tage revenue.

It is estimated that there are 38,000 passenger cars in Prince Georges County.

The commissioners ruled that only towns and taxing areas in existence on January 1 would participate in the estimated $75,000 to $100,000 tax funds to be distributed to the county, this year and that hereafter towns and taxing areas created during the year would not be included until the following year.

The commissioners yesterday received a petition from Harvey Thrig asking for a zoning ordinance to permit a trailer camp in the 7300 block of Brinkley rd., near Andrews Field. A public hearing will be held next Tuesday when the commissioners meet in Upper Marlboro.

The camp was ordered closed October 11 by the commissioners as not meeting health code requirements, but an extension was granted at the request of Army officials until January 1. The camp houses 27 trailers of whom 24 are for families of enlisted personnel at Andrews Field.

Speedier Justice Urged by Fay

George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District, yesterday urged speedier disposition of criminal cases.

"Delay is one of the greatest obstacles to law enforcement," Fay told an audience of more than 100,at the annual meeting of the Bureauof Rehabilitation in the .Y. M. C. A.

Deferring action on criminal charges lessens effectiveness of convictions as a "deterrent" to other "citizens gone astray," Fay asserted. He pointed out that in most cases of capital offense, execution is withheld for two years.

To speed up prosecution, Fay revealed, the District Attorney's office recently increased its complement of assistants, from 22 to 26.

Probe Started On Crippling Of Fire Alarm

Greenbelt (Md.) town officials have launched a full investigation into two recent cases of "apparent tampering" with fire department equipment, Town Manager James T. Gobbel disclosed yesterday.

Both cases, discovered in the last 10 days, resulted in temporary crippling of vital equipment which, had it not been discovered, might have had "serious, if not tragic consequences," the town manager declared. They involved "apparently deliberate" crippling of the town's alarm system and removal or lass of hydrant wrenches from each of the town's two fire trucks.

"I only hope they weer accidental," Gobbel said, "but it loks very much like both cases were the deliberate acts of unknown persons."

The crippling of the alarm system was discovered last week in a routine check which disclosed that a master switch in the basement of the firehouse had been disconnected. This followed by only a few days an inspection of fire equipment in which loss of the hydrant wrenches was noted, according to Gobbel.

Both cases are being thoroughly investigated, he said, but it has not been determined whether they were accidental or deliberate.

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older

THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regaining glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic Helps Build Sturdy Health.

21-Cent Milk

Many consumers, we suppose, are becoming inured to the plaint of rising costs as justification for price increases, and it probably will surprise no one that the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association has joined in the clamor. In its appeal before the Virginia Milk Commission, the association has cited an impressive list of items on which costs have gone up. If the commission grants the 1-cent-a-quart increase requested by the producers and the accompanying half cent which distributors want, home delivered milk prices will stand at 21 cents a quart in Virginia. Washington and nearby Maryland housewives will be affected by the Virginia commission's decision, since there is no control of milk prices here and members of the producers' association furnish 85 per cent of the milk in this area.

The most striking factor about the requested increase is that there is no public or semi-public agency with adequate figures as to production costs to compare with those cited by producers. Nor is there any consumer group with convincing data. This leaves the milk commission—and the public—more or less at the mercy of the producers. It is easy to show that an increase will cause an additional strain on family food budgets and will result in actual hardship in some cases. But more than a pious hope that the commission will consider the public interest is needed to confront the producers' demands.

A good deal of the producers' case as set forth in the hearing at Alexandria last week seems to be based on the fact that retail milk prices are higher in New York, Boston and other cities. We do not believe that this in itself is good reason for an increase here, and we hope that the commission will not accept it as such. For Department of Agriculture statistics disclose a considerable differential between farm labor costs in the Virginia-Maryland area and those in the New York milkshed. Moreover, Washington area producers have maintained prices in the past when prices have been reduced in New York. A further factor in the present request is the cost of feed. Unquestionably feed costs have risen in cases where feed must be purchased. But it does not follow that an increase in market price of feed constitutes a cost increase for a farmer who grows his own feed for use by his dairy cattle.

Though the present situation in which prices have far outrun wages ought to call for extreme self-control on the part of producers, dairymen should not be discriminated against solely because their product is an important cost-of-living item. We hope, however, that the Virginia Milk Commission will not be misled by generalities and will insist on specific evidence in items actually related to the cost of producing milk in this area. We hope also that the present unsatisfactory basis for evaluating producers' requests will result in some better method of obtaining cost comparisons which must be available if the public is to be protected.

Brazil's Break

Brazil's rupture of diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union is the logical result of Moscow's vituperative attack on President Eurico Gaspar Dutra. The Kremlin has again revealed a complete lack of understanding of Western psychology—a lesson that would have been learned long ago in anything but an inbred hierarchy. In this particular case the Russians appear to have underestimated the reaction of a proud, predominantly Catholic Latin people to the guttersnipe tactics which the Politburo can turn on or off at will. It is a healthy thing that the Kremlin has received this notice of the kind of storm its vitriol is brewing in the West.

The reason for Brazil's action was an article in the Moscow Literary Gazette, the same publication that recently defamed President Truman and evoked what we considered an ill-advised note from the State Department. Moscow has viewed Brazil with a fishy eye ever since the Brazilian supreme electoral tribunal outlawed the Communist Party there in May. The Literary Gazette took up the case, and denounced President Dutra for having accepted decorations from Hitler and Mussolini and accused him of being "Fascist-minded." The Brazilian protest brought the usual Soviet rejoinder that the Literary Gazette is not an official organ of the government, a transparency which even Moscow cannot have expected to convince anyone. Perhaps the most intriguing commentary on the whole affair was Pravda's explanation that "Brazil, with all the oil which Standard Oil is hunting, is of great interest to the United States." If our encyclopedia serves us correctly, Brazil is singularly deficient in known oil reserves.

The Wrong Pew

After the Howard Hughes-Elliott Roosevelt hearing before the special War Investigating Committee had proved to be an unsavory mess last summer, Senator Ferguson, who had been conducting the inquiry, came out for a joint Senate-House committee to carry on this probe. It was a tacit acknowledgment of the failure of the special Senate committee to serve any useful purpose. Today, however, that body will resume its rummaging among the vast quantities of data bearing upon the conduct of the war. This prospect is certainly not a happy one from the viewpoint of those who believe that Congress should use its investigatory powers for promotion of the national welfare rather than the creation of sensations.

According to Senator Brewster, its chairman, the special War Investigating Committee will this time undertake an inquiry into this country's failure to implement its own industrial mobilization plan worked out in preparation for the recent war. We do not agree with Senator Pepper that this is an improper subject for investigation. On the contrary, we think the people as well as the Congress have a right to know why the Stettinius report was suppressed and why its rational plan for organization of our war effort was ignored during many months of desperate conflict. There is also good reason to inquire why our experience in World War I was given so little consideration when it might have saved the Administration from faltering and ineffective half-way measures. The trouble, as we see it, is not with the subject matter of the inquiry, but rather with the type of investigation that the public has come to expect from Senator Brewster's committee.

What is obviously needed is an unimpassioned, factual study of the record with the object of avoiding similar shortcomings in legislation and executive organization when and if we have to mobilize for war once more. The Brewster Committee cannot be trusted to make such a study. It is our understanding that the Brewster Committee will expire at the end of the year. But in any event, a study of this character belongs only to the permanent Armed Services Committees of the House and Senate, or, better still, a joint body representing both these committees, as Senator Ferguson has suggested. It is a foolish distortion of the legislative process to let an important task of this sort fall into the hands of sensation seekers who have no authority to shape legislation to correct whatever abuses may be found. Beyond this fact, the Brewster Committee has destroyed whatever usefulness it might have had by the type of investigations it has conducted in the past. We do not think the public will trust it to examine witnesses fairly or to draw unbiased conclusions from whatever facts it may uncover. Clearly the inquiry ought to be left to the Armed Services Committees of which Senator Brewster is not even a member.

Wedemeyer Report

The State Department has a hot potato in its hands in the shape of the Wedemeyer report on China and Korea. Publication, it says, would be "actually harmful" to the countries concerned, including the United States. But nonpublication will simply increase the "urgings" of persons who are either lukewarm about Marshall aid to western Europe or anxious to see the United States shore up Chiang Kai-shek. They seem to think that General Wedemeyer recommends a plan of pro-Chiang action. We hope they are misinformed. But, if they truly reflect the Wedemeyer recommendations, the subject should again be clarified by Secretary Marshall. Nothing has occurred in China since the Marshall statement of January 7 to warrant any shift from the hands-off policy that was then enunciated.

It was probably foolish to send General Wedemeyer to China, anyway. Our theory at the time was that Secretary Marshall thought that by this move he would obtain surcease from members of Congress who wanted action in China. He got it during the time that General Wedemeyer was away. Now the agitation is back in full force, and Secretary Marshall cannot stay silent much longer. We hope he will reaffirm nonintervention till the civil war is over, and emphasize the nonintervention by withdrawing the military mission in Nanking. This is over a thousand strong, and, no matter how much they may stress their aloofness, they are, of course, helping Chiang Kai-shek in his war with the Communists and the anti-Chiangites. Neither peace nor unity can be enforced upon China, and certainly Chiang Kai-shek cannot be pushed down the throats of the Chinese people, who are calling a plague on both the Communist and the Nationalist houses.

Calling Names

In a time when the term "Communist" has lost virtually all meaning save as an epithet, a ruling by the New York State Court of Appeals that false use of this term is libelous serves a thoroughly salutary purpose. This is by no means the first decision of the sort. Courts have held repeatedly in recent months that because of the widespread popular aversion to communism and its adherents, false characterization of a person as a Communist or a Communist sympathizer does him a serious injury and therefore constitutes a basis for a libel action.

It is too much to hope, of course, that this judicial interpretation will put a period to the loose use of the epithet on the floor of Congress where members may indulge in it with impunity. Messrs. Thomas and Rankin will no doubt take advantage of this prerogative to go right on with their reckless assaults upon individuals who do not conform in every particular to their standards of Americanism. Ordinary speakers and writers, however, will be well advised henceforth to say no more than they can support in disparaging the loyalty of men with whom they disagree. This restraint upon invective should serve at once to protect innocent persons from calumny and to dispel a semantic fog which has been a disguise for the guilty.

Hollywood's Malaprops

All those jokes about the fatuity of the movie moguls seem to be sober truth. The performances put on by Messrs. Warner Wood and Mayer before the House Committee on Un-American Activities at the grand première of its sensational foray into filmland Monday were in the great ham tradition. Pity these tragic tycoons menaced on every hand by Communist writers and actors, sobbing on the broad, strong shoulders of that doughty dragon-slayer, J. Parnell Thomas. What rugged individualism! What a demonstration of capitalism courageous!

Why these strong, silent men of the motion picture industry chose to foul their own nest is hard to say. Perhaps they thought they could protect themselves by denouncing others. In an earlier day, when Wendell Willkie was their counsel and the Wheeler-Nye Committee attempted to prove that they were guilty of disseminating war propaganda, they had the wit—or at least Mr. Willkie did—to speak out for their own freedom. Mr. Willkie warned the investigating committee of 1941 of "the very genuine danger involved in the type of investigation which you are now proposing to start. The radio business," he said, "is already included in the original resolution. From the motion picture and radio industry, it is just a small step to the newspapers, magazines and other periodicals. And from the freedom of the press it is just a small step to the freedom of the individual to say what he believes."

These producers are inviting censorship. They are asking the Government to step in and protect them from their own employes—abdicating, as it were, the first function of the entrepreneur in a private enterprise system. One of them went so far, indeed, as to urge the outlawing of the Communist Party—a stratagem which no less an authority than J. Edgar Hoover has disparaged as ineffectual and a violation of individual liberty which could undermine the foundation of freedom for us all. If the movies are less American than they ought to be, perhaps it is because the men in the last analysis responsible for them have so little understanding of American ideals.

Teacher Of History

Many Americans, Secretary of State Marshall told an audience at Lafayette College the other day, do not know enough history to understand what is happening in the world. About three fourths of the speeches made in Congress, he said, could be dispensed with if the members of that body were better acquainted with what has happened in the past. The burden of his address was that the colleges and high schools have failed to make history the interesting, vital and living subject that it ought to be.

We wish that some well-informed spokesman for the audience had had the privilege of replying to the Secretary of State. For the most persistent criticism that is being made of General Marshall is that he is denying the people acquaintance with the history that is unfolding within his own office. There is no history so vital or so interesting as that of our own times. And in all the history of our times nothing compares in significance to the history of our foreign relations. Yet Secretary Marshall has failed to keep the people daily informed of the momentous events in which he is a participant. In lecturing the teachers on their shortcomings, he forgot that he, as Secretary of State, ought to be the greatest teacher of history in the land.

If Secretary Marshall were to examine the history of his own department he would find ample precedent for assuming the role of instructor in current events. Secretary Charles Evans Hughes, for example, found that daily press conferences and a policy of the utmost candor were the best methods of carrying the people with him in the policies he was pursuing in the early twenties. Clinton W. Gilbert writes of Secretary Hughes in The Mirrors of Washington:

> He talks to the country daily. He takes the people into his confidence, telling all that can be told and as soon as it can be told. He makes foreign relations hold front pages with the Stillman divorce case. He makes no step without carrying the country with him. He comes as near conducting a daily referendum on what we shall do for our "interests" as in a country so big as ours can be done; and that is democratic control of foreign relations . . .

We cannot help thinking that if Secretary Marshall were to review his information policy in the light of such examples and of the principles that stand out from his own speech on the teaching of history, he would relax the restrictions that are now keeping the people ignorant of much that is happening in the world.

AFL Bloc Voting Plan

An organization to be known as Labor's Educational and Political League has been launched with a pronouncement by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor. The league, as reported by The Washington Post of October 13, quoting from Mr. Green, "will be definitely against any member of Congress who voted for the Taft-Hartley Act." The avowed intention is to swing 30 million votes in the next congressional election.

If carried out, the program would mean that organized labor would constitute a bloc throwing its weight in favor of the opponent of each Congressman, up for renomination or reelection, who voted for the Taft-Hartley Act, no matter how meritorious his record might be as respects all other measures.

It would, if carried out, mean that the 30 million voters would put their supposed interests as labor union men above their interests as Americans and above the interests of the Nation as a whole.

This would tend directly toward the adoption of the bloc political system, which has greatly weakened representative government and sound national policy in several European countries. The effect will be evident if we suppose that other groups followed similar courses: that, for example, manufacturers combined to oppose all Congressmen who had favored antitrust laws, or that churches united to oppose all who had favored conscription, or that farmers' bodies agreed to vote against every Congressman who had sought to abolish laws for the support of the prices of farm products. And let us suppose, finally, that the implication in each case was that it was immaterial to the voters in these groups what the record and views of candidates were as to any other policies or legislation. It then becomes clear that sound policy and statesmanship in domestic and foreign affairs would be given a death blow under these bloc programs.

The AFL has long held and deserved a large measure of public confidence. It seems doubtful if its leaders will actually go through with this plan, a plan of crass expediency. If they do, the prediction is hazarded that the sound thinking of the membership will surmount that of the leaders and that the labor bloc voting plan will fail, with resulting loss of prestige to the leadership both among union members and with the country at large.

Threat To Air Safety

What the fates decreed should be a harrowing experience for some 40 humans rather than a major air disaster occurred recently when a Pan American Airways DC-4 en route to Miami from Havana passed through a freak hurricane which had invaded southeastern Florida. That the plane withstood the pommeling and the stress and strain imposed upon it by the storm certifies to the sturdy character of the ship's construction.

Reasonable precaution, however, seems to have been absent in this instance. One wonders why there should be misinformation on a storm whose existence and approximate, if not exact, whereabout were known for at least 48 hours preceding the flight.

Pan American Airways owes to itself a full and thorough investigation and to the public a full and thorough explanation of this incident. The CAB should also be interested. It seems logical to assume that CAB regulations were violated. If not, the more reason for CAB to become interested; for the safety of the air traveler is involved. One cannot help but reach the preliminary conclusion that the safety of the air traveler was compromised.

Marshall Plan Cartoon

The Herblock cartoon of September 30, of America standing between a tank for 331 billion dollars and a farm tractor for 19 billion dollars is the best summary of the Marshall Plan problem in existence. I saw it in the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune, but it originated in The Washington Post.

I suggest you reprint the cartoon full page size, and get other papers to do the same,—plaster the United States with it if there is any possibility of the Representative John Taber mentality becoming widespread.

I'm a former regular reader of your paper, now studying for a year in Switzerland.

Public Records

As a lawyer who knows that justice depends on getting the evidence (you might say free diffusion of information) I have been impressed by three recent incidents:

1. State Department's refusal to tell you the salary of one of its officers or employes.

2. Police Department's refusal to let a lawyer see all the records concerning the death of a person in Gallinger Hospital.

3. Congressional committees' refusal to permit members of the public to inspect reports of governmental agencies adverse to proposed remedial legislation.

All these incidents show a Federal trend to autocracy and lead to the suggestion that Congress study the question: "When is a public record not open?" W. R.

British Health

As a British visitor to Washington since last July, I would like to indorse Mrs. Lindbergh's statement in your paper of October 17. She has been visiting different countries in Europe and says: "Everybody over there is hungry."

I have been asked many times during this visit: "Are things really as bad in England as they say?" My reply is "much worse." The lack of fats is appalling and the health of the nation is deteriorating because of this and other things.

I can assure United States citizens that reports of the shortages in England are not exaggerated.

"Faith And Freedom"

Your editorial, "Faith and Freedom" of October 17, calls for approving comment. For my part, I have always supposed that a Nation-wide organization to insure the separation of church and state has existed since 1791, when our Bill of Rights was ratified. This organization is the American people itself. And Catholics were charter members; Daniel Carroll and Thomas Fitzsimons, Catholics, helped found it in the constitutional convention of 1787.

They accepted then, and Catholics accept now, all the constitutional principles on which American democracy is based, including separation of church and state as embodied in the first amendment. We see, as they did, the political wisdom of what you rightly call this "guarantee against governmental molestation of, or favoritism to, any religious sect"; and we regard its observance as a moral duty, binding on all citizens, as on Government.

It is highly regrettable today to see argument over separation of church and state becoming a cause of tension between religious groups and a principle of division among citizens. This defeats its original intention. Its purpose was to do within the national community exactly what President Truman in his letter to Pope Pius XII stated to be his own desire "to support and contribute to a concert of all the forces striving for a moral world." It was to help create and maintain an American community wherein both faith and freedom might flourish, through equal freedom for all faiths. Separation of church and state is a principle of political union between men of different faiths, designed to support their cooperation towards social justice and civic amity.

But in order that it may be such, it is, as you say, "important to recognize this fundamental principle for precisely what it is." Failure to do so is the cause of the "doubts" you mention, "whether the Catholic Church does in fact accept the separation of church and state upon which our democracy is founded." Such doubts can be entertained only by those who have reduced the principle to a meaningless slogan, useful, in your good phrase, as "a stick to beat a religious minority."

Sometimes, too, misapplications of the principle make me realize how well founded were the fears Peter Silvester of New York, expressed in the congressional debates over the First Amendment: "He apprehended that it was liable to a construction different from what had been made by the committee. He feared it might be thought to have a tendency to abolish religion altogether." This tendency is imputed to it by today's secularists, who see in separation of church and state a mechanism for insuring freedom from religion in political life, and even in education.

It is, in fact, in the field of education that the principle is most frequently misconstrued to be "precisely what it is" not. It is not a complete solution of the problem of the relationship of government to the Nation's schools. And it is this problem which is raised by the proposal that church-related schools be included in a program of Federal aid to education.

In this matter Catholics are not contending for "special favors"; hence if separation of church and state were understood for "precisely what it is," their position would not have "aroused suspicions" about their loyalty to the first amendment, as you say it has. Actually, their position is entirely American and democratic. They assert that nonprofit, church-affiliated schools of all denominations have a constitutional place within the American system of education. They conclude that if the Federal Government embarks on a program of general aid to education, it is not "favoritism" for it to include nonprofit, church-affiliated schools. Consequently, there is nothing in the Constitution to prevent this Federal aid. In fact, to deny it solely on grounds of the Catholic affiliation of the school would be an inverted kind of "favoritism", hardly distinguishable from "molestation"; for it would be a denial of the constitutional equality of the church-related school as a partner of the public school in American education.

Feudalism's Long Shadow

By Malvina Lindsay

Two Worlds

IT MAKES ME feel as if I were back in the begilt, romantic Middle Ages to read of the $370,000 wedding of the Spanish Duchess of Montoro. The bride wore a million dollars worth of jewelry . . . there were generous gifts to the poor.

It makes me feel as if I were back in the old carefree days when the Riviera set made the front page to read of the arrival in Lisbon of former King Carol of Romania and his wife, with 112 pieces of luggage, six dogs and a canary. Yes, these items are almost as relaxing—and as unreal—as the comics after so much hubbub about world hunger and want. Still . . . they make me wonder . . .

Now that is nonsense, say some of my friends. Don't become a neurotic world-saver. Come on to the fashion show in the Babylonian Room of the Metropole. See how styles have changed in the last two weeks. See how skirts hourly are getting a more antebellum sweep.

WELL, I must admit it gives me a reassuring sense of life as usual to learn that Paris again is gay—for those who can buy in the black market—to hear that the French Riviera has had a brilliant season and yachts are again hovering off Monte Carlo. Also that Rome shop windows show silk shirts at 60,000 lira, and that well-dressed gourmets eat expensive delicacies at sidewalk cafes. Still . . . it makes me wonder about the miserable wretches watching . . . and listening to Communist agitators.

Now, now, don't start that, warn my friends. First thing I know I'll wind up Socialist, perhaps get investigated for loyalty. Come on to the cocktail party—there'll be ham and turkey, and little pigs in blankets. Everybody's simply starved because yesterday was meatless.

Well, why not? Everybody's doing it—everywhere, even in China and India where there are starving masses. If the maharajahs with their tons of rubies and bedecked minions don't worry, why should I? If the relatives of Chiang Kai-shek can be charged with importing more than their quotas of luxury goods, at least some people in China aren't too concerned? Yet . . . there's such a thing as sitting on the edge of a volcano . . . or at Belshazzar's feast. And with all this talk about the rising masses of Asia, and the common man's last grapple with feudalism. . . .

Oh, forget it, urge my friends. I'm seeing goblins. Come on and send in my $8 a plate reservation for the annual banquet of the Jackdaws in Peacock Feathers. The world's always been this way. Some people have, some haven't. Why shouldn't those who have it spend? Doesn't it make business?

MAYBE they're right. Besides there's always been something glamorous about luxury on a big, showy scale—the Romans with their baths and banquets; the court splendor at Versailles—up to Marie Antoinette; the Russian aristocracy dancing under dazzling chandeliers in St. Petersburg palaces—up to the Bolsheviks; fabulous Balkan landowners having their hands kissed by serfs; Southern planters imbibing mint juleps on white-pillared verandas. Yet, of course . . . those things came to an end—sometimes with violence.

Ah, exclaim my friends, so I am advocating revolution! And do I want everyone who has anything to divide it with a lot of loafers?

No! No! It's rather revolution I fear. Isn't that what we're trying to stave off in Europe? But may not many Congressmen and other Americans seeing the outer flashier world of the black-marketeers and prewar parasites in Rome, Athens, Paris, other cities, question why help should be sent to the shadowy European world of hunger? At least most of the British well-to-do have the discretion to live austerely when their nation's life is at stake.

Ah, but I forget human nature, say my friends. The British are a disciplined people, and even they break over. For that matter aren't there two worlds everywhere, in some degree? Are we in America to stop eating because the world is full of hunger? Come on, let's get a snack to keep up our strength, some hot chocolate and French pastry.

Yes, of course it is human nature to eat expensive delicacies at sidewalk cafes while watched by the hungry; to entertain in splendor in countries that are falling apart; to enjoy the remnants of feudal luxury while surrounding peasants are starving; to stage weddings that are medieval pageants, to go to $8 a plate banquets, and in a world full of human ferment to egg on the dealers in chaos. It may be human nature, but . . . but I can't help wondering if it isn't also plain dumb.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Pericles And The Commissioner

ATHENS—On its craggy height above this ancient city, in unimaginable loveliness, stands the Parthenon, whose colonnades knew Pericles. In the bay below lies Salamis, where Themistocles tricked sluggish Sparta into the attack on the Persian ships. And at the mid-level between, amid the modern squalor of the King George Hotel, sits a former budget commissioner of the State of Pennsylvania, briskly dealing with the Greek budget as though he were back home in Harrisburg.

It is an odd contrast, but one which accurately conveys the character of the American Mission to Greece headed by former Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska. And it is crucially important to understand the character of the American effort here, if only because it indicates how deeply, completely and inescapably we have become involved in the political affairs of Europe.

The facts are, quite literally, staggering in their implications. To begin at the beginning, the present Greek government of Premier Themistocles Sophoulis is American-made. Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh, Governor Griswold and the chief of the State Department's Middle Eastern Division, Loy Henderson, had to intervene rather forcefully to secure its formation. Their intervention directly prevented the selection of a government of the extreme right, and secured agreement on the present cabinet representing all parties except the Communists.

Intervention in the formation of a cabinet in itself constitutes acceptance of an unprecedented measure of responsibility for the affairs of another country. But the process has by no means ended there. The way the budget problem is being handled is illustrative of the immense further steps that are being taken.

AS ORIGINALLY prepared, the new Greek budget amounted to a little less than four trillion drachmae. The Greek revenues amount to about two trillion drachmae. In the present situation in Greece, balancing the budget is the only means to prevent further and absolutely crippling inflation. The Griswold mission has assumed responsibility for balancing the budget. They have indicated broadly what cuts in expenditures must be made. They have insisted on the discharge of 15,000 superfluous civil servants. They may add another 10,000 to the list. They have obtained the approval of the Sophoulis government for their measures. And they have further arranged to place Americans in key positions in the more important ministries, in order to see to it that the approved measures are in fact carried out.

It comes as something of a shock to find Americans performing this sort of role in all the major spheres of Greek governmental activity. The men who compose the Griswold mission are chiefly former State officials or businessmen or Federal civil servants. They are utterly unchanged by their transplantation to an unfamiliar environment. They are even untroubled by their lack of experience in foreign affairs. And this is natural, and indeed unharmful. All of them are thoroughly experienced in practical affairs at home. They understand the job they have to do, and they are doing it.

Your reporter asked one of them whether he did not find it difficult always to be dealing with politicians and officials of another country. "Well," he replied calmly, "I haven't noticed much difference between the people I work with here and the people around the Statehouse back home. If they're up to anything here the Statehouse crowd haven't thought of, I'll be damned surprised."

WHAT IS more important, the Greek leaders accept and appear pleased by this decidedly novel approach. The war left Greece economically disorganized and politically in chaos. All wise men have long known what ought to be done. But no individuals or groups have had the strength to do it. The men removed from the padded governmental payrolls may be displeased. But the majority are happy to have the Americans use the leverage of their position to accomplish what is obviously necessary. If this were not the attitude, the Greek government would not have invited the Americans to extend their responsibilities still more immensely by advising on the military operations of the Greek army. And if the leading Americans were not satisfied with the record of Greek cooperation to date, they would not be anxious to accept this remarkable invitation.

It is infuriating that our Greek effort should be endangered, as usual, by the old errors of too little and too late. It is a source of deep pride that quite average Americans, laboring under the greatest difficulties, should be accomplishing so much. Finally, however, it is a cause for alarm that the United States has assumed these vast responsibilities overseas without quite grasping that such burdens, once picked up, cannot be laid down again. In our vague, somnambulist way, we have already begun to act abroad like the great power we are. The next stage is to stop sleepwalking and act as a great power quite consciously, using all our needed resources, and avoiding the sleepwalker's blind mistakes.

Calling Washington

Austerity And Fortitude

LONDON.—Now, in the third year after the war's end, the British people are putting up with scarcities and restrictions greater than those of the war. For everyone except a few spivs and racketeers, life is harsh, dull, monotonous—an existence not far from the line of survival.

Childs

The new austerity regulations have come on top of a standard of living that seemed, when measured against either peacetime or wartime America, to be bleak indeed. No more foreign travel. No more gasoline except for the barest necessity of going to and from work. The meager food ration is being cut and there are promises of further cuts to come.

The concern of Britons everywhere on the eve of winter is the fuel supply. Reserves of coal are said to be somewhat larger than they were at the beginning of last winter, with its unprecedented cold. The disastrous effects of that winter are still being felt in terms of delayed industrial recovery.

It has taken the Labor government nearly three months to reach an agreement with the miners for longer hours. The five-day week was introduced while British coal production was substantially under England's minimum needs here at home. The total amount mined in 1947 will be four million tons short, even though agreement on longer hours has now been finally reached.

BEGINNING NOVEMBER 1, the miners will work either a half-hour a day longer or an extra shift on Saturday. Even the liberal London News Chronicle was provoked to say:

"The fact that the summer has been mercifully prolonged and that stocks are substantially higher than they were at this time last year encourages us to hope that the nation may just scrape through this winter. But it will be a close thing—especially in view of expected transport difficulties—and there is not the slightest ground for complacency.

"Yet what a pitiful commentary on official dilatoriness this business has been; It was nearly three months ago that Mr. Bevin (the Foreign Minister) first raised the question of longer hours in the mines. The Prime Minister launched the negotiations between the coal board and the National Union of Miners a fortnight later."

The hope was that the agreement would be in operation by September. As the ordinary Briton knows full well, the delay will mean cold homes and offices. The memory of the miseries of last February and March is very vivid.

The British see their rations chipped away as a consequence of far-distant events over which they have no control. Thus, because of the strike of Canadian meat-packing workers, Minister of Food John Strachey has announced that the bacon ration will be cut from 2 ounces a week to 1 ounce. This means that the working man's "bit of bacon," on which he puts a high value, will be a mere tantalizing bite.

One is told by one's hostess in the country, with an implied reproach, that American buyers have paid a higher price for all the sardines in the Portuguese market. Therefore this small supplement, which could be bought "off ration" to vary a monotonous diet, will be missing during the coming winter.

THE FOOD Ministry has combed the earth—or, rather, the empire, where sterling is a substitute for dollars—for foods to fill the gap. As a result, some strange things are appearing on British menus. One is whale steak. Housewives report that if you cook it with onions, you can conceal, or nearly conceal, its oily, fishy taste.

The latest substitute from abroad is canned snoek, which is expected to arrive in sizeable quantity from South Africa. Snoek is what Americans call barracuda, a fierce shark-like fish that is sometimes called the tiger of the sea.

The hard-pressed people in these islands can still laugh at their plight. The announcement of the coming of snoek produced a rash of cartoons and jokes, many of them at the expense of Strachey, who somewhat superciliously announced that he had "been informed" that snoek was "palatable and nutritious."

But for many the reality is too grim for laughter. Single people living alone on one ration book know something very like constant hunger. The pinch is acute on pensioners and the great bulk of the middle class, who cannot buy the few luxury foods available at high prices.

For families with children, the food situation is not so difficult. Children get extra foods and free cod-liver oil. For workers taking one meal a day at a factory canteen, it is easier.

Always there is the extraordinary patience and discipline of the British people. Their self-discipline insures an equal distribution of the food that is to be had. That fact is particularly impressive in contrast to the black market countries of the continent.

U. S. 7th as Britain Leads in Shipbuilding

London, Oct. 21 (AP).—Lloyds Register reported today that Britain is building 2,112,669 gross tons of merchant shipping—more than half the ships on the ways in the world. The report said 483 ships now are under construction in British yards.

The United States, listed as constructing 55 ships totaling 177,669 gross tons, was seventh among the world's shipbuilding nations.

Migrant Labor Group Seeks Relief Plan

A welfare program for both the public and the millions of migrant workers will be the goal of a conference here today and tomorrow.

The conference was announced by the Rev. Tom Keehn, temporary chairman of the National Citizens Committee on Migrant Labor. The meetings will be at the National Education Association, 1201 16th st. nw. They will start at 10 a. m. and will be public.

The Rev. Mr. Keehn said millions of farm workers, with their families are roaming the country looking for work and getting no more than a bare living. Traveling in trucks and old cars, he said, the migrants have poor food, worse homes. There are no health services for them and there is no schooling for their children.

Blames Factory Methods

He blamed the evils of the migrant farm labor system on the use of facotry methods in the big farming sections. He said Congress made things worse when it ordered the Federal farm labor camps throughout the country to be sold or put in private hands by next January 30, and sold in any case by June 30, 1949.

He quoted Howard Whitman, writing in Collier's and Agnes E. Meyer, writing in The Washington Post, as pointing out that this order means pitching many migrant families out on the highways, or forcing them into private labor camps.

Health Services Stopped

The camps were set up by the Farm Security Administration and now are being run by the Agriculture Department. Their health services already have been stopped by act of Congress.

"Now is the time," said the Rev. Mr. Keehn, "to call a halt on this program and to prevail upon Congress to change its mind, to continue and expand the Federal farm work camps, restore the health services to migrant farm workers and formulate a humane program for efficient use of the available labor supply at fair wages and under decent working and living conditions."

Civil Service operated under a similar order during most of the war years.

THE CIA FIRINGS bring to mind a resolution adopted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars at its recent convention. That resolution demanded much tighter standards for CIA employes. It referred to an alleged feud between two Federal worker unions, one of which was referred to as a union of "doubtful loyalty."

The UPWA and AFL's American Federation of Government Employes both had locals in CIA's foreign broadcast intelligence branch. However, the AFGE local has been inactive recently.

Included in the firings, it's reported, was one CIA official who consistently sided with the UPWA in disputes with the AFGE.

It was also reported that three employes who were either UPWA members or former members were eased out of the intelligence agency several months ago.

PEOPLE: Charles Castella, Philadelphia division engineer of Public Building Administration, has been appointed acting executive officer of the Federal Works Agency . . . Sidney Mitchell, a former State official and more recently a New York banker, is administrative assistant to Herbert Hoover, chairman of the committee to study Government reorganization. The committee research director is Herbert Miller of the Citizens National Committee here.

GSI: Despite rising prices and the strong possibility of an operating deficit, top officials of Government Services say they will oppose a general increase of food prices in Government cafeterias.

Instead, they say, the profits of GSI park concessions could be used to more than offset the loss in operating cafeterias.

In several agencies there have been rumors of a new increase in regular lunches and other food items. The word of top GSI people should stop the talk.

Meantime, GSI is preparing to reorganize. Its new general manager is slated to be Robert R. Ayres, now associate manager. R. D. Lewis, now deputy manager, is in line to be appointed to the newly created post of secretary-treasurer. The changes won't become effective until December 31 when Capt. Frank W. Hoover, the present manager, retires.

The reorganization now under way will separate fiscal and financial affairs from management operations. The General Accounting Office, which now audits all GSI books, suggested the change.

However, GSI and GAO are still arguing one vital point—how much money in the form of rent GSI owes the Government. GAO wants GSI to pay a lot more rent than the agency believes it owes.

DEMANDS: CIO's national convention has called on Congress to raise the salaries of all Federal employes by a flat $500 a year; that race segregation in local schools here be ended, and that the President revoke his executive order on the Federal worker loyalty investigation.

Girl Refugee Nearly Dies In Box in Transit

Salzburg, Austria, Oct. 21 (AP).—United States military headquarters said today Ruth Slasak, a Romanian refugee, locked herself in a wooden box and was shipped from Munich Saturday in a vain effort to join her United States sergeant sweetheart in Vienna.

She nearly died. Military police heard the 21-year-old girl screaming for help at the German border during a routine check of baggage. She had been inside the box for six hours. Another German girl was fined recently for trying to ship herself by air to her sweetheart in New York.

Light's Force Forms Stars, Scientist Says

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Dr. Lyman Spitzer, Jr., director of Princeton Observatory, today reported to the Cooper Union Forum astronomy's newest theory of how the pressure of light is forming new stars.

The fact that a beam of light exerts a small push on whatever it strikes has been proven in laboratories. It would take about 50 years for this pressure to accumulate enough so that man's unaided senses might feel the effects.

Out in space, Spitzer said, vast numbers of small particles, of atomic size, are floating all the time. These particles are pressed by the push of light from stars. The light is from all sides, because stars are all around them.

Few Million Years

But wherever two such particles are close together, they shadow each other, so that less light strikes one side. The light ultimately pushes these two particles together, through the shadow lane between them.

Within a few million years, this collection of grains of matter by the pushing effect of light tends to bring all the individual particles together in great clouds of dust and of gas.

Spitzer said great telescopes, looking at the Milky Way, have spotted large numbers of such clouds. The clouds are not hot when first formed. But their grains attract each other by the force of gravitation, and the cloud begins to contract.

Like Bicycle Pump

This contraction, the astronomer said, causes heat, the same as a bicycle pump heats the air it compresses inside a tire.

Near the center of a heavenly dust cloud the gravitational pull is greatest, and contraction goes on rapidly, until the center becomes very hot.

Eventually this central heat reaches millions of degrees. At that temperature atomic energy forces begin to act. These are much the same forces as appear in an atomic bomb explosion.

The atomic forces change some of the mass of the particles into energy, which is terrific heat and electricity and magnetism, and a new star is born.

The Gallup Poll

Public Wants U. S. to Remain In U. N. Despite Red Obstinacy

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 21.—Despite noisy and mounting tension between the United States and Soviet Russia, the American public is not giving way to hysteria. It is evidencing very little desire to have the United States pull out of the United Nations because of Russia's continued bucking of the majority will.

Seven out of 10 Americans want this country's efforts to make U. N. an effective international agency continued. In every segment of the population and in all sections of the country the weight of opinion is strongly in support of this view.

Thousands of Americans were asked this question in face-to-face interviews:

Some people say that the United States should pull out of the U. N. organization if Russia continues to block the will of the majority of member nations. Other people say that the United States should stay in the U. N. even though Russia continues to block the majority. Which of these ideas do you agree with?

The national results are:

Stay in	73%
Pull out	13
No opinion	14

While all groups in the population lean very heavily toward the view that we should remain a U. N. member, those persons with the most education give that view much the stronger support, as the following table shows:

	Stay In	Pull Out	No Opin.
College	91%	7%	2%
High School	81	10	9
Grammar	63	17	20

Similar, though not as pronounced, gradation of opinion turns up when the survey is analyzed by occupation groupings:

	Stay In	Pull Out	No Opin.
Prof. or bus.	82%	10%	8%
White collar workers	76	13	11
Farmers	75	11	14
Manual workers	67	16	17

That this question has little chance of becoming a political issue in the near future is evidenced by the fact that the vote of Democrats and Republicans is identical with the national percentages.

In another question asked of the same representative voters a large majority declare that the United States should take an active part in world affairs. Isolationism is turned down by a 5 to 2 vote.

Do you think it would be best for the future of this country if we take an active part in world affairs, or if we stay out of world affairs?

National results:

Stay Out	26

Head of ITU Tells His Fear Of Open Shop

Baltimore, Oct. 21 (AP).—Woodruff Randolph, president of the International Typographical Union, declared today that putting nonunion men into organized print shops would in time mean the "absolute destruction" of the ITU.

Randolph

Randolph, whose union traditionally has operated on a closed-shop basis, made his statement in testimony before Chief Trial Examiner William R. Ringer of the National Labor Relations Board.

The union last August adopted a "no contract" policy and substituted instead "conditions of employment" under which its members would work.

The ITU and its Baltimore Local No. 12 are charged by the NLRB with refusal to bargain collectively in good faith with the Baltimore Graphic Arts League, composed of 22 printing firms.

The Taft-Hartley Law, under which this first case of its kind against a union is being heard, makes the closed shop illegal.

Under questioning by Gerhard Van Arkel, ITU counsel, Randolph said:

"We have 845 locals, of which 607 have 50 members or less. The destruction of each would be accomplished by injecting nonunion foremen in a small local.

"The hiring of one or two nonunion key men and the kind of pressure in a way which could not be proved or detected would result in a dissolution of that small local."

"A trade union has to exist by control of the labor supply," Randolph told the examiner, saying recruiting problems in larger cities would be magnified for the ITU and "there would be little or no economic stability" if nonunion men went into the organized shops.

Although the Government has not completed its case, Randolph took the stand out of order at the request of ITU counsel.

Earlier, he said informally that the current hearing has proved that "the Taft-Hartley Act will not work." It "compels antagonism" and thereby defeats its purpose, he said.

Randolph did disclose that his union has sent sample contracts to its locals suggesting 60-day cancellation clauses. He did not say whether this represents a change in the "no contract" policy but Van Arkel said that "we feel there was room within the policies adopted by the ITU for the presentation of such an agreement."

Growth 'Regulator' Found

Yosemite, Calif., Oct. 21 (AP).—Children's bodies have a protective mechanism which postpones their growth when they cannot get enough to eat, Dr. John B. Youmans, nutrition expert, reported today.

This delay mechanism prevents to some extent the aging of young bones and shields the child against certain diseases due to undernutrition, Dr. Youmans said.

He cited surveys indicating arrest of the growth process for from 8 to 23 months without disastrous effects.

The surveys, made in France, Spain and Germany, showed, in general that children continued to maintain a nearly normal weight at the expense of height. A slowdown in bone development, revealed by X-ray pictures, suggested that the aging process had been stayed and that opportunity remained for later growth in the skeletal structure.

Navy Seeks to Settle Shipyard Strike

The Navy took a hand yesterday in attempts to settle the four-months-long strike in East Coast shipyards.

Vice Admiral Earl W. Mills, chief of the Bureau of Ships, held what the Navy described as an "exploratory" meeting with John Green, head of the striking CIO Marine and Shipbuilding Workers.

Mills hoped to find, the Navy said whether "there is any possibility" of solving the dispute, which involves wages and working conditions at 10 shipyards.

AUTO PRICES: John F. Gordon, president of Cadillac Motor Car division of General Motors, yesterday discounted any possibility of lower auto prices in 1948. In Washington as a guest of Floyd D. Akers, president of the Capitol Cadillac Co., Gordon said relative to the auto outlook: "I would not predict an increase, but neither can I see any factor on the horizon that would indicate lower prices for the coming year." He expects "gradual improvement" in Cadillac output during 1948, but said this would depend entirely on the flow of materials. Gordon was accompained here by John E. Ahrens, Cadillac general sales manager, who explained that purpose of the visit was to sign officially the renewal franchise of Capitol Cadillac Co., 1222 22d st. nw.

Henry VIII's Iron Pants Found

London, Oct. 21 (U.P.)—The missing iron pants of King Henry VIII were back in the Tower of London today and a 400-year-old royal mystery was solved.

Trustees of the estate of the hereditary King's Champion, Frank Dymoke, found the missing armor in the dim halls of Scrivelsby Court, a moated castle in Lincolnshire.

Henry's pants had been accidentally joined to the top of a less distinguished suit of armor and thus escaped notice.

The reunited suit is a long-skirted model designed for fighting on foot.

The measurements show that Henry, in his prime, was a fine figure of a man, six feet tall and with a 34-inch waist. The popular conception of Henry as a fat man results from Holbein's portrait painted in Henry's declining years.

The Dymokes of Scrivelsby held the office of King's Champion for 700 years. Until 1821 the head of the family rode in full armor to each coronation ceremony where he flung a gauntlet before the assembly in a challenge on behalf of the King.

In payment, he received from the monarch a gold cup and a suit of armor.

Wall Streeters Seek To Avoid Suit by U. S.

By Drew Pearson

Wall Street lawyers are going into a huddle with the Justice Department today in a last-gasp effort to stave off the biggest anti-trust suit the Nation has seen in years. What they are trying to head off is a crackdown on the 17 biggest banking houses in New York and the Justice Department's demand that they quit monopolizing the money marts of the Nation.

Weinberg

Wall Street lawyers now have adopted the clever strategy of asking that the case be arbitrated by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which has changed a lot since FDR promised to drive out the money changers and which is now safely dominated by Wall Street.

However, Attorney General Tom Clark, with strong backing from President Truman, is determined to go ahead with the case—even though it involves the former banking firms of three members of the Truman Cabinet.

The list of defendants in this case reads like the guest list at one of Mrs. Astor's swankiest parties. It takes in the blue bloods of New York's investment banking business, from the relatives of the late J. P. Morgan to Sir William Wiseman, former head of British Intelligence and now head of Kuhn Loeb.

Includes Lehman Family

It also includes the family of New York's former Governor Lehman—namely Philip Lehman, Robert Lehman, Allen S. Lehman. Also on the list are John Hertz, former king of the Yellow Taxis, and John Hancock, right-hand adviser and war assistant to Bernie Baruch.

Thomas S. Gates, chairman of the board of the University of Pennsylvania and member of Drexel & Co., is also on the list, as well as Dillon Read, the former firm of Secretary of Defense Forrestal, and Harriman Ripley, the former firm of Secretary of Commerce Harriman and Acting Secretary of State Lovett.

The list also includes some of the men who controlled war production as members of the WPB—such as Sidney Weinberg, head of Goldman Sachs, and Arthur Bunker of Lehman Brothers, who acted as wartime czar of aluminum production and threw his weight in favor of Alcoa's monopoly.

The Justice Department is now charging that this long list of banker defendants not only conspired to monopolize the sale of stocks and bonds in the United States, but also stifled other business competing with their banking clients.

Stifling American Business

For instance, if a manufacturing firm which has not worked through these 17 blue-chip bankers applies to them for money, the money is refused, according to the Justice Department, if the applicant firm competes with a company whose financial deals the bankers already handle.

This, the Justice Department claims, puts the control of vital American business throughout the Nation virtually in the hands of 17 firms in Wall Street.

By placing directors on the boards of companies which they finance, the big bankers continue to dictate policy long after their stock or bond issue is floated.

How widely the "17 Club" controls American money markets is shown by the following Justice Department figures: between 1936 and 1945, the 17 now facing Justice Department prosecution handled 67.9 per cent of all the securities sold in the USA.

There are a total of 254 well-recognized investment houses in the country, but the 237 who didn't belong to the "17 Club" handled only one third of the security business.

Members of the "17 Club" who got most of the gravy were: Morgan Stanley, with 14.6 per cent; Dillon, Read (Forrestal's old firm), with 8.5; Kuhn Loeb, with 6.8; Blyth & Co. (Charles E. Mitchell's firm), 43.

Secret Insurance Company Deal

The Justice Department also has discovered that these 17 blue-chip bankers have conspired with some of the big insurance companies to dominate the money markets.

On December 5, 1941, just two days before Pearl Harbor, Justice Department records show that many of the "17 Club" got together with Prudential Insurance, Equitable Life Assurance, New York Life, Mutual Life of New York and Home Life, to work out a deal whereby the insurance companies and the investment bankers cooperated in floating securities. This was followed by another meeting on May 5, 1942, at which all members of the "17 Club" plus additional insurance companies agreed:

1. That insurance companies would get first whack at 50 per cent of any stock and bond flotation in which they express an interest;

2. Insurance companies refrain from bidding on stock and bonds offered through competitive bidding;

3. Insurance companies also discourage other investment bankers from selling securities through competitive bidding.

All of this, the Justice Department claims, has kept money rates at "artificially high, noncompetitive prices" and made the costs of floating stocks and bonds "exorbitant."

Other Charges

Some of the other charges prepared against the "17 Club" and their investment trust include:

(a) Agreeing not to compete among themselves in merchandising securities;

(b) Fixing uniform prices among themselves;

(c) Forcing any company for whom they float one stock issue to let the "17 Club" float all other stock in the future;

(d) Banning all outsiders from handling "17 Club" securities;

Grade A entertainment . . . Having thus fulfilled its primary obligation to the movie-going public. "Crossfire" earns its right to speak its mind in a more serious vein . . . it uses that right with a bluntness and a dramatic wallop . . . The Roberts Young, Mitchum and Ryan are excellent.
Don Craig, TIMES-HERALD

One on the Aisle—

'Rose Marie' Is Now 23

Friml Operetta At the National

By Richard L. Coe

From Yesterday's Late Editions

SOMEWHERE IN THE SECOND ACT of "Rose Marie" at the National last night a hard-working trouper named Nina Olivette seemed to say to herself "aw nuts" and went off into a vaudeville act.

This was a very bright idea. You could hardly call it inspired, but by really kicking the thing around Miss Olivette made it possible to laugh with the show and not at it.

"Rose Marie" is 23 years old and looks every second of it. If it were intended as a caricature of all the musicals you ever saw, heard of or had nightmares about, it couldn't be funnier.

The songs are sung so indistinctly that if you didn't know the music backwards (which is more than you can say for the orchestra), you wouldn't have a clew as to what was being sung.

The jokes, every last one of them, are like this: "Hardboiled! You're not even poached!" Or "It's not the high-up buildings in New York that are frightening; it's the low-down people." And when somebody made that crack about saloons and salons and then added would one be open after the show, you knew he meant every word of it. Those people needed a drink.

The dancing is more than incredible. It seemed to reach a nadir when some maidens came on decked out in some sort of cloth you would have thought went out when Agnes de Mille came in, but shortly after that one was treated to the totem pole dance to end all totem pole dances. This consisted of one of those line-up jobs in which people do something, the next person does it and so on down the line. We seem to recall that this trick was once quite captivating, but then we were a mere child at the time and so was the trick.

Electrician Scores Again

To make matters even merrier, in the midst of this "Totem Tom Tom" hi-jinks, the National's electrician must have misread his light cues, an habitual trick of his which this time caught the chorus as surprised as the audience.

The chorus, too, is really quelquechose, as Rose Marie herself is wont to say. Everyone in it has a "pinch-me-I'm-dreaming" air, as if to suggest they feel surprise at being out on the stage. The feeling is quite understandable.

With the exception of Miss Olivette, who starts working like a plowhorse the minute the curtain goes up, the principals give the illusion of having been drafted. Rose Marie has a voice that recalls a blast of wind against tissue paper on a fine tooth comb. The hero walks as if in a dream and sings as if he were taking a shower.

While you may feel our report is a trifle unkind, something like it seems to have been tacitly shared by the company onstage. Every so often you could catch members of the ensemble sneering happily among themselves and when the comic came to his line "I'll certainly be relieved when all this is over," he got hoots of laughter from his fellows and from the pit.

It could be you might mesmerize yourself into getting back into the 1924 season and relive your happier days; if so, you're welcome to it and, being a sentimental guy, we'll understand.

But if you go with the idea of seeing a burlesque on all the cliches of musical comedy—including, we swear it, a totem pole doing the Charleston—"Rose Marie" is just your dish. We haven't laughed so hard since the Marx Brothers in "A Night at the Opera."

"ROSE MARIE." The Messrs. Shubert present the operetta with music by Rudolf Friml and Herbert Stothart, book and lyrics by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein 2d. Staged by Lillian Udvardy. Dance numbers by Boots McKenna. Orchestra directed by Frank Cork.

TOMORROW: Not having read "Forever Amber," Richard L. Coe admits it's something of a problem to review the film at the Palace. But he tries.

'State of Union' Votes for Prexy

Hollywood.—Want to vote for President?

Step on the set of "State of the Union", at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Hollywood's preelection straw ballot and you can cast your vote in lot.

Frank Capra has set up a ballot box on the set, and all visitors, actors and members of the crew have been asked to cast their vote for the man they would like to see in the White House.

The director-producer of the Liberty Films production, which M-G-M releases, has the only key, and the box won't be opened nor its contents divulged until the close of the picture.

No Near Neighbors

Hollywood.—Former Saxophonist Fred MacMurray received a flute and a book of instructions from his standin as a birthday gift while he was filming "The Miracle of the Bells," a Jesse L. Lasky-Walter MacEwen production for RKO Radio release. The star claims studying the flute is his only extra-curricular activity now.

French Star Joins Fontain's Cast

Hollywood.—Marcel Journet, prominent French star of Paris, New York, and Montreal, has been signed by Rampart Productions for role of Joan Fontaine's husband in "Letter From An Unknown Woman" now in production at Universal-International. The Pic-stars Miss Fontaine and Louis Jourdan.

This will be Journet's third film since arriving in Hollywood at the first of the year. He previously appeared in "Assigned To Treasury" and "Foxes of Harrow."

Esther Brings a Friend

Ray McDonald Joins Metro Star on the Capitol Stage

ESTHER WILLIAMS is being joined by Ray McDonald for her one day of personal appearances on the Capitol Theater stage Thursday.

McDonald ought to be right at home on the Capitol stage, for despite his youth, he's a veteran vaudevillian. Ray once teamed with his sister Grace and a mighty cute couple the youngsters made. His success on Broadway in "Babes in Arms" brought him to M-G-M for "Life Begins for Andy Hardy," "Babes on Broadway," and "Presenting Lily Mars." His first film since his Army days, "Good News," will be along shortly.

Miss Williams, the swimming star who's taken to musical films with high zest, also stars in the screen attraction, "This Time for Keeps." She's supported by Jimmy Durante, Johnny Johnson, Lauritz Melchior and Zavier Cugat's band.

NAVY DAY isn't going to find the Trans-Lux napping. A special program has been set for the week beginning Thursday.

"Zipper Fleet" will be the Trans-Lux short of the week, going via flashbacks in wartime combat and then showing the decommissioning of inactive Navy ships.

Outside the theater will be a V-2 rocket head—one from the desert proving grounds which has soared over 100 miles into the air.

The lobby will be turned into a gallery to exhibit work of Navy combat artists, "Operation Palette." This has been on a two-year world tour and will be its first showing in the Capital.

THE NATIONAL Theater's bookings for the next month are filled. After the current "Rose Marie," the same company will play "The Merry Widow" beginning Sunday matinee. On Monday, November 3, Maurice Chavalier will open a one-week engagement through the following Sunday. There will be no midweek matinee for Chevalier, but there will be a matinee Saturday, November 8.

Monday, November 10, will see the opening of a two-week run for "Song of Norway," the Edwin Lester production based on the life and music of Edward Grieg. The musical has had two years on Broadway and another in five cities on the road.

"CROSSFIRE" today begins its second week at Keith's, where the future bookings include Jimmy Stewart in "Magic Town" and the newest Walt Disney feature film, "Fun and Fancy Free."

"Crossfire" was described in these columns as "an exceptional melodrama and an absorbing picture." Its theme is anti-Semitism. Played by a fine cast including Robert Mitchum and Robert Young, it boasts one of the year's finest screen performances by Robert Ryan. It is, in short, despite some shortcomings, a picture to see.

JACKIE ROBINSON, the Dodger first baseman and "Rookie of the Year," will make his Washington stage debut at the Howard Friday as headliner of the footlight revue. Robinson is now making his first stage appearance at New York's Apollo Theater.

THE MONTGOMERY Players, the active Chevy Chase-Bethesda dramatic club, is holding tryouts tonight at 8:30 for "Shadow and Substance." The role of Bridget, created by Julie Haydon, is still open, as are several other parts. The players' audition will be held at the recreation center on Norwood dr. Bessie Sanders is directing the play.

"CHILDREN OF PARADISE" today begins its second week at the Little. This is the romantic melodrama of the theater and underworld of nineteenth century Paris which was made for the most part in great secrecy during the German occupation. Jean-Louis Barrault, one of France's great contemporary actors, heads the cast.

WEDNESDAY'S usual meeting of the Washington Film Council will be held tomorrow night instead of at the Wednesday lunch period. This will be a special meeting in conjunction with the D. C. Library Association and will be devoted to a discussion of the role of films in public and research libraries. "Men Who Grow Cotton," a Department of Agriculture color short, will be followed by a panel discussion enlisting Rogert Albright, Mrs. Aubrey Lee Graham and Arch A. Mercy. The time is 8 o'clock, the place the Jefferson Auditorium, South Agriculture Building, 14th and Independence ave. sw.

Only Ted Williams Repeats on All-Star Team

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

I AM NOT UP to jousting with the Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S. J., president of Fordham University, who this week has gained more yardage in the newspapers than his football team has gained on the gridiron.

POVICH

At a Fordham communion breakfast in Newark the other day, the Rev. Gannon explained Fordham's de-emphasis of football, illustrated recently by the 75-0 defeat by Penn State, with the observation that topflight football is no boon to a college, "and if I have anything to say about it, they (the teams) will never get too good."

Father Gannon took a swipe, too, at sports writers, calling them "tyrants of tyrants . . . who think a university's sole purpose is to provide them with an income," but this benevolent tyrant isn't going to get mad about that right now.

The Father Gannon comment that fascinated me was: "When you have a top team, no self-respecting school will play you. Topflight football does not pay off, financially, scholastically, socially or athletically."

I'm ducking any debate with the Rev. Gannon. It's your witness, Notre Dame University.

THE MOST DESPERATE if not the best pro football deal in recent years was made yesterday by the New York Giants, who were floundering without a man who could throw a pass, and losing customers as well as ball games.

Beaten in all four of their games thus far in the National Football League, the Giants gave up their best running back, Bill Paschal, and their draft rights to George Connor, Notre Dame tackle and captain, for Paul Governali of the Boston Yanks, who can throw a pass.

The Giants were doing no good, either in the league standings or at the gate, without a passer. They never have recovered from the blow of Frankie Filchock's banishment.

In their Polo Grounds opener the other day, the Giants drew only 34,000 against Boston. They have almost that many season tickets sold. They didn't lure many fans who had not already invested in season tickets.

IT WAS GETTING increasingly rough for the Giants. Their big home games are still are to be played, and they weren't winning and friends with their puerile performances to date. The Giants were fielding probably the worst team of their history, at a time when they were faced with competition.

Across the Harlem River, the Yankees of the All-America Conference have been stealing the show with such personalities as Buddy Young and Spec Sanders captivating the town's pro football customers. It wasn't looking good for the Giants.

They gave up more than Governali is appraised at to land him from Boston. He's an old-timer with only one football virtue—he can throw a pass, and without a man to throw the ball, the Giants not only were going nowhere but with great rapidity.

In Paschal, Coach Steve Owen gave up his best runner. But what hurt him more was the release of his rights to Connor, who is probably the best college football tackle extant, and of Owen it has always been said that he wouldn't swap one good tackle for an All-American backfield.

THE PENN-NAVY battle at Franklin Field on Saturday will offer an All-American sideshow when Dick Scott, Navy's center and captain, lines up against Chuck Bednarik, Penn's center and captain.

It will be a head-to-head clash of the men who are rated the Nation's two best centers, and out of it probably will come the All-America selection. Bednarik was named on most All-America teams last season, leaving Navy's friends outraged at the omission of Scott who they devoutly believed proved the better player in the last Navy-Penn game.

There was doubt at the start of the week that Bednarik would play. He was badly bruised high on the chest in the Columbia game, but is now said to be fit again. Scott is in good shape, and apparently in as good voice as last year when he looked Bednarik in the eye and reportedly said, "Play nice, Sonny, and you won't get hurt."

NBA Clearing House

Referee Gallagher Proposes Way to Prevent Fight Flops

Referee Marty Gallagher came up with a proposal yesterday designed to prevent such mismatches as that which took place between Stonewall Jackson and Pat Demers at Turner's Arena Monday night.

Jackson kayoed a feeble and spiritless Demers in the seventh round of a bout which might have resulted in a tragedy. Demers remained unconscious for five minutes.

Gallagher, who was the third man in the ring, has proposed that a national clearing house of fighters' records be set up by the National Boxing association.

Complete and accurate reports on fight results and on the condition of fighters would be kept by member states. These reports would be forwarded to a central office.

The records would then be distributed nationally to local boxing commissioners by the NBA. When an out-of-town boxer appeared in an area where previously he had not boxed, all information about him would be at the finger tips of the local commissioner.

Gallagher's plan has been presented to District boxing commissioner Harvey L. Miller who said he would forward it to NBA authorities with his endorsement.

Monday's debacle at Turner's saw an apparently unconditioned and weak Demers get pushed around with ease by the local Pheleps schoolboy. As early as the fourth round fans were calling, "stop the fight."

Jackson finally knocked out the Boston lad in the seventh round with about two dozen roundhouse punches to the head which left Demers unconscious for five minutes.

Navy's Soccer Team Meets Duke Today

Navy's undefeated soccer team meets the Duke Blue Devils at Lawrence Field, Annapolis today. The Middies regain the services of scoring threat Martin Benton but center forward Chuck Howe and fullback Red MacLearnen will miss the scrap because of injuries suffered in last week's victory over North Carolina.

Giants Trade Paschal for Paul Governali

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—New York's winless football Giants finally found a friend among their rivals in the National League today when the Boston Yanks came through with a passer in a trade that will help the entire circuit in its boxoffice battle with the All-America Conference.

The move, designed to strengthen their sagging offense and attendance figures to match, brought Paul Governali, a native New Yorker, to the Giants, who in turn sent Fullback Bill Paschal to the Yanks along with their claim to an All-America tackle, George Connor of Notre Dame.

"We had to do something," said Coach Steve Owen, whose Giants have a record of three loses and one tie in league play this season, "and I think we made a good deal."

Ironically, it was Governali, an All-America halfback at Columbia in 1942, who engineered the Giants' latest defeat by hurling two touchdown passes for the Boston Yanks last Sunday.

His departure from Boston means that the Yanks will rely chiefly on Frank (Boley) Dancewicz for their passing in the future.

Since the National League's trading deadline had expired, today's deal was accomplished through waivers. Boston released Governali and New York claimed him, having first choice because of a last-place record. In turn, the Giants released Pashal and Detroit, the only other team below Boston in the standings, waived him on to the Yanks.

Michigan Beats Out Irish Again As Top Team

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Although they can't prove a thing, for the simple reason that the two teams don't face each other this season, many of the Nation's sports writers expressed confidence today that Michigan would whip Notre Dame if the two should square off on a football field.

By an overwhelming majority, a cross section of the voting in the weekly poll of the Associated Press selected Fritz Crisler's mighty Wolverines as the top team in the land and assigned second place to the unbeaten Irish for the second straight time.

Of the 186 writers who participated in the most extensive voting in the history of the poll, 147 of them named Michigan first on their ballots. Since the Wolverines drew only 93 first-place votes a week ago, many observers were more impressed with Michigan's 49-21 walloping of Northwestern than with Notre Dame's 31-0 shut out over Nebraska.

How They Rank:

Team	Points
1—Michigan (147)	1790
2—Notre Dame (21)	1553
3—Texas (18)	1351
4—California (1)	969
5—Illinois	932
6—Army (2)	806
7—Georgia Tech (2)	801
8—Pennsylvania	797
9—Penn State (1)	324
10—Southern California	311

The second ten: 11—Wake Forest (1), 155; 12—Southern Methodist (1), 114; 13—Virginia, 91; 14—Kentucky, 82; 15—Duke, 71; 16—UCLA, 59; 17—Baylor, 19; 18—Louisiana State, 18; 19—Vanderbilt, 14; 20—San Francisco, 13.

Michigan Gets 1790 Points

On the usual basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second and so on, Michigan wound up with a total of 1790 points.

Notre Dame received 21 first-place votes, 2 less than a week ago, but gathered a flock of second-place ballots.

Texas, which defeated Arkansas 21-6, for its fifth win in five starts, was placed first on 10 ballots and remained in third place iwth 1351 points, while California, which kept up a similar pace with an identical triumph over Washington State, remained in fourth place with 969 points, although the Bears got only one first-place vote.

Illinois, sixth last week, moved into fifth place after its 40-13 win over previously unbeaten Minnesota and Army moved up a notch to sixth place on the strength of its 40-0 showing against Virginia Tech.

Georgia Tech Falls to Seventh

Despite a 27-7 triumph over Auburn which kept their all-victorious record alive, Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets slumped from fifth to seventh place, five points behind Army.

Pennsylvania, 34-14 winner over Columbia, and Penn State, which crushed Syracuse, 40-0, retained their eighth and ninth positions, respectively.

The only newcomer to the top 10 was Southern California, which moved from eleventh to tenth place by virtue of its 48-6 rout of Oregon State, replacing Vanderbilt, knocked out of the unbeaten ranks by Kentucky.

None of this week's top 10 has met defeat this season. Seven are all-victorious and the other three, Illinois, Army and Southrn California, have been tied once.

Sharkey, Sexton Clash on Mat

Big Babe Sharkey, the Texan, gets another chance at Frank Sexton, the wrestling titleholder, tonight at Turner's Arena, with the champion risking his crown in a one-hour time limit match.

Nanjo Singh, the "Cobra Clutch" king, will meet Farro Rinaldo in the semiwindup. Wladislaw Talun will face Jack Paulos, Henry Kulkovich will take on Abe Stein and Ken Ackler will meet John Vansky, the first bout going on at 8:45.

THE NUSSBAUMERS HAVE A QUIET EVENING AT HOME

Her First Guests . . .

Marie Nussbaumer Cooks For 3 Big, Hungry Redskins

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Like most young husbands, that jet-job sporting a Washington Redskin uniform is going through a trying time.

Bob Nussbaumer's wife is learning to cook.

Pretty Marie, with her groom of four months firmly established in the affection of local grid addicts, came to the crucial point of her culinary development last night.

She and Bob had dinner guests. Marie did all the cooking, from roast beef to pumpkin pie. Who attended? No less a pair of connoisseurs than Slingin' Sammy Baugh and Dick Todd.

If three important members of the Redskins are healthy today Marie will have taken the first big step toward the success already achieved by "The Bomber." Bob, now nursing leg injuries suffered at Milwaukee Sunday, is already making Redskin fans forget Steve Bagarus.

In four games he's caught 16 passes for 290 yards, the record shows, but it doesn't show the pugnacity that brings 180-pound Bob back after every vicious tackle with a jerk of the pants that means: "Let's do it some more!"

Bob's the former Michigan speedster who came to Washington in a Green Bay trade that made everybody happy. Surplus quarterback Jack Jacobs went for an earnest, almost unstoppable ball-carrier who seems certain of smashing his mark of 14.3 yards a catch with passes last year.

A member of the Phillies baseball farm chain for one year, Bob met his young wife in Utica, N. Y., where she worked in newspaper display advertising. There followed a fast courtship, Bob's speedy rise to esteem with the Redskins, and Marie's big moment last night.

Wonder if the locals could do without Baugh, Todd and Nussbaumer for a couple of weeks?

Lions Defeat Ramblers, 4-3, On Late Stand

The Washington Lions held a one-goal lead throughout the final period to defeat the Newhaven Ramblers, 4-3, before 2728 fans last night at Uline Arena.

After getting off to a 4-0 lead in seven minutes of the first period, the Lions saw their margin slowly vanish as New Haven rallied to trail by 4-3 at the finish of the second session.

New Haven Gets Three

Washington's Scotty Mair accounted for the game's first goal at 22 seconds of the opening period as he took a Ken Schultz pass and beat Rambler Goalie Jim Henry from close in. Mair and Schultz teamed to score an identical goal at four minutes to put the Lions ahead, 2-0.

Then Defenseman Pat Wilson passed Henry at 6:50 and the Lions continued to pour it on. Bob Walton picked up the puck at center ice, skated into Rambler territory, passed to Schultz who whipped the puck right back and Walton drilled it in from directly in front of the cage.

Gordon Scores One

The Ramblers got back one of these goals as Jackie Gordon scored a few seconds before the end of the period.

In the second period, the visitors took the play away from Washington as Eddie Kullman and Buck Davies passed Lion Goalie Gordie Bell to cut the Lion lead to 4-3. Henry, in the Rambler net, made several great saves to break up Washington drives.

DiMaggio, Kiner Also In Outfield; Mize on 1st

By Joe Reichler

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Six National League players and four American Leaguers make up the 1947 major league all-star team as selected for the Associated Press by 233 baseball writers throughout the Nation.

Strangely enough, the World Champion New York Yankees show only one representative while the Brooklyn Dodgers, National League pennant winners, did not place a single man. Neither did the St. Louis Cardinals nor the Detroit Tigers who finished second in their respective leagues.

The New York Giants, Cleveland Indians and Boston Braves, neither of whom finished better than third, placed two men apiece.

One representative from the Yankees, one from the Boston Red Sox, one from the Cincinnati Reds and another from the Pittsburgh Pirates completed the team. Last year the American League dominated with seven representatives as compared to three for the National.

The All-Star Team:

CENTER FIELD—Joe DiMaggio, Yankees.
SECOND BASE—Joe Gordon, Indians.
THIRD BASE—Bob Elliot, Braves.
SHORTSTOP—Lou Boudreau, Indians.
CATCHER—Walker Cooper, Giants.
PITCHERS—Ewell Blackwell, Reds, and Warren Spahn, Braves.

DiMaggio Second High

Only one member of the 1946 team, the first ever selected for the Associated Press, repeated in 1947. He was Ted Williams, the slugging outfielder of the Red Sox who led the American League in batting, home runs, runs batted in, runs scored, extra base hits, total bases and bases on balls.

No player was an unanimous choice. Williams, the American League's triple crown king, drew the most support from the scribes, being named 209 of the 233 ballots cast. Joe DiMaggio, the Yankees' great centerfielder, ranked close behind Williams with 207 votes.

Johnny Mize, who tied Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh for the home run title of the major leagues with 51 round trippers, gathered the third highest total of votes, 191—189 of them for first base, to win that position handily. His other two votes were for the outfield.

Kiner Rounds Out Outfield

Kiner, the hard-hitting sophomore flychaser, received 137 votes to join Williams and DiMaggio in making up one of the hardest hitting outfields ever selected for one team.

Lou Boudreau, playing manager of the Indians, currently mentioned in assorted trades involving nearly every team in the American League, ranked fourth in vote getting with 177 for shortstop.

Walker Cooper, the Giant's hard-hitting catcher, who made a fine comeback following a disappointing 1946 season, paced the receivers with 141 votes.

Another comeback kid, Joe Gordon, whom the Indian acquired from the Yankees in a preseason trade for Pitcher Allie Reynolds topped the second baseman with 113 votes.

Feller Gets 55 Votes.

The smallest number required by any winner went to Bob Elliott of the Braves, whose 99 votes were enough to win him third base in a hotly contested battle with George Kell of the Detroit Tigers.

Ewell Blackwell, lanky no-hit hurler of the Reds, dominated the pitchers. The majors' biggest winner polled 158 votes to only 55 for Cleveland's Bob Feller to win the No. 1 berth among the righthanded pitchers.

Warren Spahn, the Braves' 21-game winner, gained the No. 1 lefthanded pitching honors by polling 115 votes to 61 for Joe Page.

Page, the ace relief artist, who was the hero of the Yankees' seventh game win over the Dodgers in the World Series, surprised by getting more votes than all the other

Clemson and South Carolina Meet

Battle Royals, Barricades! In Columbia It's 'Big Thursday' and Anything Can Happen

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

THURSDAY WILL BE just another day in these parts, but in Columbia, S. C., its "Big Thursday"—and oh, brother, what a day!

It's New Year Eve, Mardi Gras and wackiness day combined when the Clemson Tigers and South Carolina Gamecocks clash on the gridiron.

For the benefit of you poor natives of other States who don't understand what this day of incredible celebration is all about, here's the story:

It all started on Thursday, November 12, 1896. On that day, the South Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical Society sponsored a football game between Clemson and South Carolina.

A capacity crwd of 2000 fans went wild with excitement over the game, which had been scheduled as a minor part of the State Fair. Since that time it has become the main feature of the event.

In 1902, emotions were so stirred by the struggle that students of both schools grabbed guns, bayonets or any other weapon at hand and lined up behind barricades preparatory to wiping one another off the face of the earth.

Clemson Alumnus Morris Supplies Facts

Former Clemson football player, Edgar Morris, '08, furnished the material for this article about "Big Thursday." Morris, who lives at 112 13th st. nw., will be on hand for tomorrow's contest at Columbia, S. C., together with hundreds of other Clemson and South Carolina alumni from Washington.

Christie Benet, a 22-year-old assistant coach at Carolina, stood between the drawn up battle lines and by the most persuasive sort of oratory, envinced the students to arbitrate their quarrel. Thus, he averted what might have been a major American battle.

Benet is now a lifetime trustee of Clemson College, which has his undivided loyalty 364 days of the year. But on "Big Thursday" he sits in the box of the South Carolina University president. He's never forgotten the one year he played for Carolina.

After that 1902 trouble, the schools severed relations until 1909, when the rivalry was resumed and has continued to this day.

Last year's "Big Thursday" was probably the best of all. It had everything, including bogus tickets, 10,000 gate crashers, a half-time battle royal, spectators standing on the playing field and in the end zones and, incidentally, a 26-14 South Carolina victory.

Harper Gault, in his entertaining story, "Big Thursday in South Carolina," describes some of the hilarity of the occasion as follows:

"A lady from Greenwood dropped down on Coach Rex Enright's Carolina bench. A passing drunk patted her on the shoulder. 'Thash all right, lady, keep your seat—we'll put you in in just a minute . . .'

"Asa Livingston, news butcher at the game the past 26 years, had a field day. He sold the same paper to one inebriate seven times."

Yes, it will be a legal holiday in Richland County Thursday; Governor Strom Thurmond will spend one half on each side of the field; and 25,000 people will be going beserk.

Cause the folks down South Carolina don't care what goes on anywhere else in the world that day—it's their "Big Thursday" and their going to have one hell of a good time.

Discord Gains Starting Place in Selima by Winning at Laurel

AT LAUREL.

DEAR FOLKS:

Expenses have increased under the new management of Laurel but so has betting. For instance the handle of $922,864 on Monday was 32 per cent over the similar day last year when play totaled $699,046. This is the highest single day's increase to date. Apprentice Leon Buttler is getting close to Don Padgett in the race for jockey honors. Padgett has 19 to Buttler's 14. Here's the answer to my friend's winning $3 whipsaw bet in which a 7-10 shot won. A second horse broke down and a third finished second. Happened last Friday. Aboko was a winner at $3.20. Maria, the next horse, broke down but Farfalina, the other half of the entry went at $4.80. The third horse was Piet which moved into the winning position at $8.80 when Dr. Almac was disqualified. The bet was worth $71.30. The field for the Pimlico Special is shaping up. Right now it looks like Cosmic Bomb, Fervent, Loyal Lelion against Armed. There's a strong possibility that Stymie and Rico Monte will go. Laurel never has been more beautiful then now. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Best Bet—BIG IF.

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 21.—Discord, an aptly-named daughter of Sweep All and Off Key, ran right into a starting position in Saturday's $25,000 added Selima Stakes by a smashing victory here today.

Racing in the colors of J. Warfield Rodgers, the 2-year-old filly came with a stretch rush that earned a photo decision over the Salubria Stable's Wee Nip. In third position was King Ranch's Great Weapon. The second and third finishers were coupled in the betting as the Trainer W. J. Hirsch entry.

With Jockey Doug Dodson aboard, Discord won her second race in four tries and was clocked in 1:45 for the mile and 70 yards. She returned a $6.60 mutuel.

Saturday's Selima is at a mile and a sixteenth. In addition the winner, She Dares, Bell Histoire, Flower Box and Right Naswer of today's field are eligibles for the big weekend test.

Wee Nip set all the pace and lost the big pot in the final jump. She Dares, French Flower and Flower Box were all prominent in the early running. Wee Nip entered the straightaway with a five-length lead, only to tire. Then Discord began her drive and the two went into the finish line as a team with the camera separating them.

The Georgetown, the advertised feature, went to Lazy F. Ranch's Nathaniel, a $6 shot, ridden by Dodson. The 3-year-old came around the pack to have a commanding lead over a three-way photo for place, which went to L. J. Lepper's Off-Islander. Third money went to A. B. Hancock's With Honor. The time for the 6 furlongs was 1:11 4-5.

Jockey C. H. Williams was taken to the hospital for observation after an accident in the day's steeplechase. He was aboard Mrs. Corliss Sullivan's Hemlock when the son of Sun Beau crashed into a wing of the fourth fence.

H. E. Talbott's Big Wrack was the surprise winner at an $18 mutuel. Alvin Untermyer's Avis Bois was second and Albert C. Bostwick's Scurry Gal was third in a test of two miles over 13 jumps. The winner was clocked in 3:54 4/5.

The daily double paid $79.60 on the combination of 6 and 4. Mrs. W. C. Bryon's Trout Lake came from far back to take the opener at $14.40 while Mrs. George Fox of Laurel watched her Bungalese easily score in the seconr event at $7.60.

Bewitch Withdrawn From Selima Stakes

Laurel, Md., Oct. 21.—The Calumet Farm's Bewitch was withdrawn from Saturday's Selima Stakes and will be retired for the remainder of the season, Trainer Ben Jones announced today. The daughter of Bull Lea and Potheen has developed a leg soreness and Jones said the 2-year-old filly would be "fired" before she was turned out. Her absence will make the Selima a wide-open affair.

Bowling

GALLIHER and Huguely's crack team, composed of Ed Blakeney, Whip Litchfield, Dick Lee, "Bub" Guthler and Lou Jenkins, will attempt to sew up the first series in the Men's Major District Bowling League tonight against second place Burr Heishmann at the Rosslyn alleys.

The G. and H. team is leading the loop with 11 victories and 7 defeats, and a clean sweep tonight would put the "clincher" on the series.

Mann's Potato Chips and Winchester Packard, tied for second with Burr with 10 and 7, also will see action. Mann's will face Arcade Pontiac at Clarendon, while Winchester will play Winn's Motors at King Pin. The other loop game finds Heurich playing host to Maple Edge Pins at Brookland.

IN THE LADIES' District Major League four games are on tap. King Pin, leading with 12 and 3, will play at Hi-Skor; Ice Palace will be host to Brookland; Rosslyn will be at Lafayette and College Park at Mount Rainier. The College Park girls hope to close up the gap between them and King Pin.

Drought May Delay Hunting

Harrisburgh, Pa., Oct. 21 (AP).—Gov. James H. Duff said today that unless rain breaks the month-long drought in Pennsylvania, "it will be imperatively necessary" to postpone opening of the Commonwealth's small game season due to starte on November 1.

"The whole forest area of Pennsylvania is in a more inflammable condition than I ever before have seen it," Governor Duff told a news conference. "It's impossible to estimate the dangerous conditions of Pennsylvania's forests.

Mondschein Outstanding For Violets

Coach Jack Hagerty, of Georgetown University, extended himself to avoid overconfidence among his gridmen yesterday as they prepared for Friday night's invasion of New York University at Griffith Stadium.

Jubilant over their 12-0 upset of Tulsa last week, the Hoyas tended to look with contempt on the Violets who have won only a single game so far and lost three others as the opposition rolled up 110 points.

No matter what their previous records, N. Y. U. and Georgetown have generally made predictors look silly during their long series. Last year the Hoyas were supposed to win by four touchdowns and barely escaped with a 19-12 victory. As far back as 1928, when N. Y. U. was a 30-point favorite, Georgetown won a 7-2 victory.

Leading the Violet attack will be Irv Mondschein, one of the country's outstanding athletes. The big halfback, switched from end, is a three-time winner of the National A. A. U. Decathlon championship. He high jumps 6 feet, 7⅞ inches, broad jumps over 23 feet.

A premedical student of the scholastic type, Mondschein, a 210-pounder standing over 6 feet tall, indicated his natural athletic ability by scoring 24 points in the first basketball game in which he played. Georgetown got a good view of him in 1946 when he romped 53 yards for one of the Violets' touchdowns at the Polo Grounds.

Navy May Be Catching Fire

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—There was no let-up for Coach Tom Hamilton's resurgent Navy football players today as they plunged further into the job of preparing for one of the toughest games of a gruelling campaign.

The Middies, who snapped out of the doldrums and jolted Cornell, 38 to 19, last Saturday, run up against a highly recomended Penn eleven at Franklin Field this Saturday.

But Hamilton noted today a gratifying mental uplift in his cohorts as a result of the Cornell affair. Some backfield juggling is still possible, but Reaves Baysinger, backed by Bob Horne, has latched rather firmly on the starting quarterback post, and Bill Hawkins is entrenched at fullback.

The line is well established, except that Ed Golding and Ken Schiweck are staging a merry fight for the right guard assignment.

Three Teams Tie for Second

Captain and Mrs. Hunt Win District Scotch Foursome Golf

Captain and Mrs. R. B. Hunt of the Army-Navy Country Club carried off low net honors with a 62 in the annual District of Columbia mixed Scotch foursome at the Manor Club yesterday.

Three teams tied for low gross at 71. They were: Mrs. Landra Platt and Ralph Bogart of Chevy Chase, Mrs. M. Trouchard and Eddie Semmler of Kenwood, and Betty Meckley and Charley Price of Kenwood.

A record field of 60 teams competed in this novel event in which shots are alternated after selective drives.

The Hunts toured the back nine of the regular course in 41 and returned over the inside or ladies' course in 36 strokes to give them a 77 less their handicap of 15 for a net 62.

Outstanding hole of the day was an eagle on the sixteenth when Charley Price drove the green and Mrs. Meckley sank a 12-footer for a 2.

The following teams tied for low net at 65: Mrs. R. E. Aldred, Washington and W. A. Walsh, Washington; Mrs. J. T. Powell, Kenwood and W. B. McFerren, Indian Spring; Mrs. Cochran Fisher, Columbia and Howard Nichols, Columbia; Mrs. R. E. Zuber, Manor and Maurye Fitzgerald, Kenwood; Mrs. Ora Emge, Prince George, and Martin McCarthy, Columbia.

Trojan Horse Awakes, Hopes To Kick Bears

Los Angeles, Oct. 21 (AP).—The slumbering fiants of Troy have awekened after two sleepy seasons, and it may be woe to the foes of Southern California from now on. And that, say Trojan supporters, goes for California, too.

Coach Jeff Cravath, who had trouble keeping his charges interested in their gridiron work during 1946 and 1946, now has the old Trojan horse galloping at a merry clip. That old wheeze about big and dumb has been changed to big and beautiful in the past two weeks as USC meted out 22-0 and 48-6 pastings to Ohio State and Oregon State.

No wthey're ready to take a whack at the new Golden Boys of Berkeley, with considerable confidence that the winner will be the heir apparent to the Pacific Coast Conference title won last year by UCLA's Bruins, who, of course, still can't be counted out.

Besides a new-found team morale, principal factors in the resurgence of Troy, say observers, are:

1. A powerful 208-pound-average line sparked by right end Paul Cleary and left tackle Jumbo John Ferraro, 240-pound All-America in 1944.
2. The development of not one, but two, sharp T-formation quarterbacks and passers, Junior George Murphy and Soph Jim Powers.
3. The flowering of a half-frozen, hard-running halfbacks, any one of which might break up a ball game on a quick opening play.

The forward wall has held four opponents to 288 yards total running and given up only two touchdowns.

All told, the Trojans have run up 108 points to foes' 13; have made 868 yards running and 480 passing to their opponents' 288 and 318.

War Vets Play Tonight

Roosevelt Had Misgivings About Russia, Byrnes Says

measures and keep the Allies informed.

Mr. Harriman was instructed immediately to inform the Soviet government that we could not accept a provisional government in Romania made up of representatives from one political party. His instructions also stated that measures should be taken to support the present government in maintaining order; that freedom of press should be granted in accordance with the armistice agreement; that all political groups should be disarmed; and that full

Russian Ultimatum To Romania Reported

"Then, the report stated, Vyshinski looked at his watch and told the King he had just two hours and five minutes to make it known to the public that General Radescu had been dismissed."—Byrnes, writing in today's installment, on Russia's coup in Romania.

three-member consultations should take place in the Allied Control Council on major political matters.

Mr. Molotov told Mr. Harriman that three power consultations were going on with Vyshinski in Bucharest.

On March 5, our Ambassador presented a letter to Mr. Molotov stating that the question of the Radescu government was a matter for direct consultation and agreement by all three governments. He advised Molotov that the Soviet member of the Allied Control Council had not kept the United States representative informed and that the Soviet military authorities had weakened the ability of the Radescu government to maintain order. He followed this with another note the next day rejecting the idea that the intermittent contacts with Vyshinski constituted the tripartite consultations agreed upon at Yalta.

Ultimatum to King

WHILE these exchanges were taking place between our Ambassador and Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow, here is what was happening in Romania:

On February 27, Mr. Vyshinski had arrived in Bucharest and requested an audience with the King that evening. He was received by the King and Foreign Minister Constantine Visolanu. Mr. Vyshinski stated that General Radescu was incapable of maintaining order; that the Soviet government was unwilling to interfere in Romania's internal affairs, but had the responsibility of seeing that order was maintained behind the front and, therefore, asked that the Radescu government be dismissed immediately and replaced by a government based on "the truly democratic forces of the country." He was told that consideration would be given his request.

Burton Y. Berry, our political representative in Bucharest, was unable to obtain an interview with Vyshinski. He then informed Vyshinski in writing of the American point of view—that no decisive action should be taken prior to consultation.

According to the information sent us by Mr. Berry, Mr. Vyshinski the next day demanded an audience with the King and asked for his decision on the suggestion of the previous evening. The King replied he had communicated this information to General Radescu and had started consulting party leaders for the purpose of choosing another Prime Minister. Vyshinski declared this answer was unsatisfactory. Then, the report stated, Vyshinski looked at his watch and told the King he had just two hours and five minutes to make it known to the public that General Radescu had been dismissed. By 8 o'clock, he added in emphasis, the King must tell the public the name of his successor.

The Romanian Foreign Minister reminded Mr. Vyshinski that the King was a constitutional monarch and had to proceed in a constitutional manner; that he could only consult party leaders and follow their advice in selecting some individual to form a government. Vyshinski retorted that Radescu was protecting Fascists and by retiring 10 officers the previous day under a royal decree had performed an unfriendly act toward the Soviet Union. That decree, he said, must be annulled immediately. The King acceded to this request and Mr. Vyshinski left. In leaving he slammed the door so hard that the plaster around the door frame was cracked badly. It has never been fixed; it remains to testify to the strength of his feeling and of his arm.

The King announced that he had asked Prince Stirbey to form a government. Prince Stirbey tried to comply but could not induce the Communists to join in forming a government. Shortly afterward Mr. Vyshinski sent word to the King that the Communist leader, Petru Groza, was the choice of the Soviet government. Nevertheless, the King continued to consult party leaders and on the evening of March 1, Vyshinski again saw the King to inform him personally that the Soviet Union wanted Groza appointed. The King then decided to charge Groza with the formation of a government.

King Rejects Cabinet

BECAUSE the first Cabinet suggested by Groza was not representative of the people, the King refused to accept it. Vyshinski then sent word that cancellation of the Groza appointments would be considered by the Soviet Government as a hostile act. Mr. Vyshinski was quoted as saying that unless the King accepted the Groza government by the afternoon of the following day, he would not be responsible for the continuance of Romania as an independent state.

At the same time Groza announced that the Soviets had promised great improvement in relations between the Soviet Government and Romania, mentioning the return to Romania of control over its transportation system, the cession of Transylvania from Hungary and a relaxing in the terms of the armistice. The result was that the King summoned the leaders of the historic parties Monday night and appealed to them to disregard political considerations and support his action in accepting the Groza government.

The leaders of the historic parties could not agree and the King was urged by some to abdicate However, he concluded he could best serve the people by not deserting the country. On Tuesday night, March 6, the Groza government was sworn in and immediately afterward Marshal Malinovsky arrived in Bucharest where he and Vyshinski had an audience with the King. They told the King that they could not concentrate upon front line activities if they had unrest behind the lines. The Romanian government had failed in the past to maintain order, they said, and it would not be permitted again.

On March 7, the day after the Groza government was installed, Mr. Molotov informed our Ambassador in Moscow that the questions raised in his letter of March 5 had lost point since the crisis in Romania had been overcome by the formation of a new government.

The following September, while in London, Mr. Molotov urged that we recognize the Romanian government. I told him we had not recognized the Groza government because of the character of the government which had been installed by virtue of a two-and-a-half hour ultimatum given to the King by Vyshinski. Mr. Molotov then admitted that Mr. Vyshinski had "helped in the formation of the government," but said the Soviet government had acted because "there was very serious danger of disorder and civil war."

These developments, of course, had been reported in full to President Roosevelt. As a result, instructions had been sent to Mr. Harriman to propose to Mr. Molotov the establishment of a joint committee in Bucharest to safeguard the application of the principles announced in the Declaration on Liberated Europe. Mr. Molotov's rejection of this proposal was blunt. In a note dated March 17 he stated that no action was required; that our proposal would emasculate the Allied Control Council, and asserted it was untrue that our representative on the council had never been consulted.

All of this occurred while the Allied armies were closing in on Berlin and President Roosevelt was anxious to avoid giving aid and comfort to the enemy by a public display of disunity. The President told me he had grave misgivings about the future. However, he decided that, for the time being, our protest should be filed through our Ambassador and that he would resort to direct communication to Stalin only after other efforts were exhausted.

In the fall of 1944, Churchill and his Foreign Minister, Anthony Eden, had visited Moscow and, while there was no formal agreement, we knew they had reached the informal understanding that, if the British found it necessary to take military action to quell internal disorders in Greece, the Soviets would not interfere. In return, the British would recognize the right of the Soviets to take the lead in maintaining order in Romania.

President Roosevelt's personal relations with Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill have been the subject of considerable debate in the years since his death. Mr. Byrnes, who was perhaps his closest adviser in the months before his death, dismisses as "a legend" the belief that our relations with the Russians began to deteriorate only after President Roosevelt died. He supports this with the story, which has never before been published, of an angry exchange of messages between Stalin and Roosevelt over Russian suspicions of secret negotiations between British and American military leaders and the Nazi General Kesselring. This will be published tomorrow, in the ninth installment of Mr. Byrnes' "Speaking Frankly."

D. C. Sales Tax Favored in Poll

Results of recently-conducted poll show more than 1000 District residents favor by almost two-to-one substitution of a sales tax for D. C.'s income tax.

The poll, sponsored by the D. C. chapter of the National Home and Property Owners Foundation, was taken by means of a printed ballot from visitors to the Foundation's exhibit at the home show of the Home Builders Association which ended Sunday.

A total of 1239 Washingtonians voted. Of these, 811 answered "Yes" and 428 "No" to the question:

"Do you favor the repeal of the District income tax and substitution therefor of a sales tax?"

According to Foundation officials, pool results will be presented to its board of directors for study and possible action.

Early this month, two of the District Commissioners came out in favor of adoption of a 2 per cent sales tax and repeal of the present 'inequitable' personal income tax.

Va. Methodists Urge U. S. to Take DP Quota

Support for Alcoholic Aid Law Asked; 166 Pastors of Conference Reassigned

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—The Virginia Annual Conference of the Methodist Church called on the Government today to "admit a just portion" of displaced persons "under a quota plan set up by the United Nations so that they (DPs) may become self-supporting citizens."

The closing session of the six-day meeting also approved resolutions introduced by the Rev. Henry Lee Robinson jr., of Richmond, chairman of the conference commission on social welfare, asking:

1. Support from all members of the church for forthcoming legislation in the General Assembly to create facilities throughout the State to aid in the rehabilitation of alcoholics, and that local churches "give serious consideration to their program of alcohol education, as a preventive measure."

2. That Virginia Methodists cooperate with other Protestants in sharing clothing, shoes and bedding through the Church World Service for early shipment overseas, that they increase gifts to the committee on overseas relief, and that they support the President's voluntary food conservation program by observing eggless and meatless days and avoiding waste.

3. Governor Tuck to distribute copies of the Mitchell report on State social welfare agencies, and the State Legislature to augment the work of the commission, with appropriate legislation and funds.

A statistical report presented this morning shows the conference has 274,497 members, of whom 229,679 are active. Money raised for all purposes during the year amounted to $4,323,220.

One hundred and sixty-six pastors of the Virginia Conference were assigned new pastorates by Bishop W. W. Peele, presiding officer. All 14 superintendents of last year were returned to their former posts but a somewhat larger number of pastors were moved than in previous years.

Among the principal changes in the larger churches in the conference was the assignment of the Rev. Alphaeus Potts of Trinity Church, Petersburg, to Berryman Church, Richmond, where he will succeed the Rev. P. M. Hank, who will go to Bassett.

Among principal changes in the larger churches of the conference was the assignment of the Rev. Clifford Ramsey of Broad Street Church, Richmond, to Calvary Church Arlington. The Rev. J. T. Allen of Del Ray Church, Alexandria, was assigned to Park View Church in Portsmouth.

All 14 of the district superintendents of last year were returned to their posts.

Chest Campaign Among Federal Employes Will Get Under Way Today With 3 Rallies

Volunteer Solicitors From All Agencies To Meet at 12:30 P. M.

Three large Community Chest meetings today of Government workers and officials will signal opening of the annual drive among Federal employes.

Government Community Chest volunteer solicitors from all Federal agencies will meet at 12:30 p. m. at Departmental Auditorium, between 12th and 14th sts. nw., in a campaig rally. General solicitation of Government workers' contributions begins this afternoon.

The rally will feature speeches by Undersecretary of Commerce William C. Foster, Government Unit Chairman W. John Kenney, Undersecretary of Navy, and Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., Assistant Secretary of Treasury.

Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder will address 2000 Treasury employes at 9:30 a. m. at Keith's Theater. The campaign movie, "The Red Feather," will be shown.

Another meeting will be held at 11 a. m. at the Department of Justice for Justice employes.

At 12:15, more than 700 members of 50-odd men's service clubs are expected to meet at the Mayflower Hotel for speeches by Foley and other drive leaders.

Clubs attending will represent Arlington, Fairfax, Montgomery and Princes Georges Counties, Alexandria and the District. Host group is the Washington Rotary Club.

The Community Chest this year hopes to raise at least $3,900,000.

Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, chief of Army information, yesterday opened the Army's Chest campaign in a talk before division chairmen at the Pentagon.

In other meetings yesterday, special gifts unit workers made a report to their chairman, E. Cortlandt Parker; the campaign advisory committee met with Chairman Foley; workers of District 23 of the residential unit met with their chairman, Mrs. Charles Saltzman; and Division H of Area 3, business unit II, met with Chairman Carl Ford.

Fifty Girl Scouts will receive letters of commendation tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. at St. Martin's Catholic Church parish house, 1900 N. Capitol st., for Community Chest work they did during the summer. The work, sorting 325,000 red feathers and 200,000 window stickers, required an estimated 1500 hours.

61,000 From District Helped By Travelers Aid Last Year

Nearly sixty-one thousand Washingtonians, including a Government official, "borrowed" the solution to their travel troubles last year.

That figure was cited yesterday by the Travelers Aid Society of Washington, Inc., a Community Chest agency, to emphasize advantages of its reciprocal system.

The Government official was without wallet and train tickets at 20 minutes to train time in a Boston station. He caught the train with Travelers Aid money, ticket and reservation.

He was one of the 61,000.

In Washington, thousands of stranded travelers, fretting children traveling alone, invalids unable to make train connections are helped every year.

Reciprocity is the very basis of the Travelers Aid. Only non-residents are eligible for help.

Families, run-away children, unmarried mothers share in its benefits, 1946 case histories disclose.

Lost wallets are everyday occurrences at the Travelers Aid desk.

A Washington veteran with his wife and child left Washington with terminal leave bond cash to feed and house them until he landed another job. Their money ran out the same day he found the job.

The Pittsburgh Travelers Aid arranged room, food and carfare while they contacted Washington and learned the veteran's was a legitimate case. The Pittsburgh unit carried him until his first pay day.

San Francisco's Travelers Aid information service helped an 8-year-old Washington boy across the country, paved the way for a reunion with his father.

The agency is about 91 per cent financed by the Community Chest. The Community Chest this year is seeking $3,900,000.

Real Estate Agent Held In Fraud

Postal Inspectors Say He Sold Lots To Veterans, Failed To Deliver Deeds

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

A real estate operator, who, postal inspectors say, was selling lots to veterans and not delivering the deeds, yesterday was held under $1000 bond by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

The man, Matthew P. Lucas, 50, 1006 N st. nw., was arrested Monday at his home by Postal Inspector Keith E. Meyer following a five-months investigation.

Lucas' broker's license was suspended February 5 by the District Real Estate Commission. The suspension followed a hearing at which three persons testified they had not been given deeds to the property for which they had paid Lucas.

Advertised Lots, Homes

Inspector Meyer said the charge was the result of Lucas advertising lots and homes for veterans in local newspapers. The papers are sent through the mail.

Meyer said Lucas had persuaded veterans to give him deposits ranging from $500 to $1200 for lots in Bethune Gardens, a real estate development in Prince Georges County near 23rd and Alabama ave. se.

The inspector estimated that Lucas had collected approximately $15,000 from prospective purchasers. He was supposed to have paid $10,000 down on the $42,500 plot from which the lots were to have been partitioned.

According to the postal inseceptor, Lucas, had applied only a small amount of the money he obtained from the veterans toward the land.

Commissioner Turnage continued the case until Monday.

Complaints Lodged

Charges against Lucas before the Real Estate Commission were an outgrowth of complaints. Witnesses included Police Pvt. Paul E. Gothard, 1132 Gowad rd. se., who paid $500; Mrs. Beatrice Sydnor, 3301 Warder st. nw., who paid $400, and Melvin Belfield, 1316 W st. nw., who paid $400.

They charged Lucas with "failing within a reasonable time to account for, or remit, money coming into his possession belonging to others," and demonstrating "such unworthiness or incompetence to act as a real estate broker as to endanger the interests of the public."

Lucas testified he had received an option to purchase about 40 acres of the proposed development.

Due Here Tonight

Richmond Has Preview Of Meteors

The Orion meteors, due in District skies tonight, staged a flash preview by daylight over Richmond, Va., yesterday.

Observers at Byrd Airport there described them as tiny silver spots, traveling so rapidly that only a jerk of the head could follow them from horizon to horizon. They were first spotted by a weather observer as he sent up a weather balloon. He used a telescopic instrument to follow the course of the flying spots across the sky.

Other meteors wore seen later in the day with the naked eye.

The Washington weatherman, something of a sky watcher himself, predicted clear skies for tonight's show.

The Rev. Francis Heyden, S.J., assistant director of the astronomical observatory of Georgetown University, says midnight tonight will be the best time to look for the shooting stars. At that hour, he said, they may be seen towards the east but more nearly overhead.

Father Heyden, more of an authority than a press-agent on celestial displays, gave out with the information yesterday on Orion meteors.

They get their name, he said, because they seem to be emanating from Orion, the huntsman constellation. Actually, they are debris left in stellar space by the famed Halley's Comet, last seen by the naked eye in 1910 and not due to reappear until 1986.

They are seen as shooting or falling stars after they enter earth's atmosphere, usually about 70 miles up; are heated to incandescence by friction of their speed with the atmosphere, and generally burn themselves out by the time they are 40 miles from the earth surface, explained Father Heyden.

As to their size: Father Heyden said one the size of a marble lights up itself and the atmosphere around it till it appears to folks on earth as a star of the second magnitude; one as large as a fist (and they are unusual) glows like a heavenly fireball.

Encore performances may be given for several more nights, he said.

Cathedral Raises Nearly Million In Building Drive

Nearly one million dollars has been raised to date in the national five-million dollar Washington Cathedral building drive, it was disclosed last night.

Purpose of the campaign is to build the Nave and Patriot's Transept, the latter to include a War Memorial Chapel. The edifice on Mount St. Albans is now 40 per cent finished; the new project will make it 66 per cent. Its cornerstone was laid 40 years ago this month.

Of the amount raised to date in cash and pledges, over $400,000 has come from Washingtonians of various denominations interested in what is known as "The House of Prayer for All People"—the Cathedral. The local quota has already been exceeded by $50,000. Campaign workers hope that a current drive in Boston will send the national total over the million mark.

No Word of Gas Hike

Local officials of six oil companies said yesterday they had received no word of a gasoline price boost here to parallel increases effected yesterday by Standard Oil Co. of Indiana in 11 Midwestern States.

Three said a Midwestern increase would not necessarily be reflected by an increase on the Eastern seaboard, but one cautioned: "We never know when a price change is going to come."

Flooded Playgrounds Proposed for Skating

Flooding of "three or four" District playgrounds to provide out-of-door ice skating was proposed yesterday at the meeting of the District Recreation Board.

Milo C. Christiansen, recreation superintendent, was authorized to look into the possibility of erecting boards on playground areas and flooding them during freezing weather.

The board also requested the Office of National Capital Parks to study the possibility of installing freezing units at the Reflecting Pool to provide all-winter skating.

In other actions the board:

Suggested that the Commissioners appoint a committee representing renters of canoes, the Red Cross, Habor Police, local canoe clubs and the Recreation Department to draw up regulations for the use of canoes on the Potomac.

Announced the appointment of James W. Geater, 3809 10th st. nw., as director of Negro neighborhood centers.

Transatlantic Flights From D. C. to Resume

American Overseas Airlines' transatlantic flights from Washington, suspended since September 30 by the 18-day pilots' union strike, will be resumed today, with a Constellation leaving the ATC Terminal of National Airport at 1:05 p. m. for London.

The strike was settled Monday when the company and the pilots signed a one-year contract covering wages, hours, working conditions and other matters.

Starting today, two Washington-London flights weekly will be operated by the airline. One will leave on Wednesdays, the other on Fridays at 1:05 p. m. Intermediate stops will be made at Philadelphia, New York and Shannon.

Meetings In Schools Uncensored, Wender Says

Letter Sent to Civic, Citizens Groups Was Reminder of Rule Against Violent Talk

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The Recreation Department has no intention of censoring discussions in school buildings, Harry Wender, chairman of the Recreation Board, said yesterday.

He told board members at their regular monthly meeting that a circular letter sent to citizens and civic associations using school buildings was no more than a reminder that board rules prohibit discussions that "incite to violence or lead to acrimonious dissent."

The letter, he said, "should never have been interpreted as an effort by the board to interfere with the rights of free speech."

Wender charged that The Washington Post in its editorials had misinterpreted the intent of the letter and in its news accounts "failed to give a fair story of what took place."

Newell Remarks Cited

The board voted at the meeting that remarks made by Clifford H. Newell, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, before the Brookland Citizens Association did not warrant withdrawal of permission for the group to meet in the Brookland School.

The Lincoln Civic Association, a Negro group, asked the board to cancel the permit.

Newell in his speech described race segregation as a "natural state" and groups which oppose segregation as "unscrupulous" and "un-American."

Mrs. Alice C. Hunter, Negro member of the recreation board, moved that the request be denied.

"One thing we appreciate most about our country is the opportunity of free expression and criticism," she said in making the motion.

"Mr. Newell's talk was an expression of an individual in regard to a problem as he sees it. It is a matter of present-day importance and it is of benefit to the public to discuss it frankly."

Letter Sent by Christiansen

The circular letter that Wender referred to was sent to the associations by Recreation Superintendent Milo C. Christiansen following a meeting of the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association at the Crosby Noyes School. The group discussed what they should do to enforce covenants designed to prevent Negroes moving into the neighborhood.

"The Recreation Department was condemned for having permitted that discussion," Wender declared.

The remarks of the speaker as reported in The Washington Post might have incited "violence and disorder."

Christiansen was required to advise groups using the schools of the board rule against that type of discussion, Wender said.

"It was not that we be censors, but that we let them judge for themselves."

Policeman Loses Case by 5-to-1 Vote

Outnumbered on the witness stand five to one, a Washington policeman yesterday lost his case against three District citizens he had arrested without a warrant in their home.

Judge Armond W. Scott, dismissing the case, ruled it a mathematical victory for the three defendants and two witnesses whose denials of disorderly conduct contradicted the policeman's version.

The patrolman, Pvt. Edward J. Long of No. 12 Police Precinct, testified he was passing the home, at 14 R st. ne., early last Friday morning, when he "heard cussing." He said he entered the open door and tried to arrest James Clark, 34, of 222 E st. ne. Clark, he said, refused to be arrested.

Long said he called for reinforcements, and with nine policemen backing him up, arrested Clark and his host and hostess, Nicholas Boxwell, 54, and wife, Ellen Boxwell, 35, of the R street address. They denied any initial disorder.

Georgetown University's campus has changed its garb in preparation for freshman class elections today.

Pamphlets blanket hallways, store windows and hallowed campus walks in an attempt to get out the vote.

"He doesn't pop, he doesn't crackle, he doesn't crunch, but its Phoenix for a strong Freshman class" is a typical party platform.

B. J. Phoenix, 18, of Chicago, is one of the three remaining candidates for the class presidency. Other candidates for the class presidency are William Wickkiser, who led in Monday's primary, and Anthony Bivona.

The said seniors and juniors held their elections October 10 and 13 respectively. Sophomores elect their favorite sons tomorrow afternoon.

He Hit the Ceiling

There was a young man went to Wheeling;
He got news very appealing.
He was told to come back,
And claim a $12,000 shack—
But—alas!—he won not even the ceiling.

The above is dedicated to Gerald Smith, 27-year-old Capitol Heights, Md., mechanic who learned yesterday that he had not won the $12,000 model home in the local homebuilders' jingle contest.

Smith, who is married and the father of a 2-month-old baby, lives at 601 48th ave., Capitol Heights. Saturday he attended the housing show at the armory, dropped an entry in the jingle contest box, then left for Wheeling, W. Va., to visit relatives.

Sunday morning newspapers announced that jingle entry No. 002000 had won the $12,000 house. A friend of Smith's, believing this to be the mechanic's number, telephoned Wheeling police.

Smith thought he was receiving official notification when Wheeling police contacted him and relayed the friend's information. Smith's elation fell with a thud when he checked and found his ticket stub bore the wrong number.

The Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, donor of the model home, said yesterday that the winner is a woman, that she has been located and that her name will be disclosed at noon tomorrow.

Post Reporter Speaks

We must continue feeding the people of Europe, not so that they can beg for more but because it is the only way they can get back on their own feet, Alfred Friendly, reporter on The Washington Post's national bureau, declared yesterday.

Speaking before members of the Optimist Club at a meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, he warned that "unless France and Italy get food, they will go to one of two extremes."

He said he could not predict whether it would be to communism or the Right Wing. Friendly returned recently from a six weeks' tour of Europe with Eugene Meyer, chairman of the Board of The Washington Post. They made a study of the food situation on the tour.

Class A License Shift

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday took under advisement an application to transfer a Class A licensed liquor store from 907 H st. nw. to 2905 Georgia ave. nw.

Protests were lodged against the transfer by the Pleasant Plains Civic Association, the Monroe Elementary School P-TA, William B. West, dean of men, Howard University, and citizens in the immediate neighborhood.

They maintained the store would be too close to Howard University and the Monroe School and that the neighborhood already has an ample number of liquor stores.

The transfer included changing the name of the store from the D. C. Liquor Mart, Inc., to a partnership of Charles and Morris Shoock.

Parking Lot Closed

The Government parking lot behind the Coast Guard building at 13th and Pennsylvania, nw. will remain closed, it was announced yesterday.

Fairfax to Seek $520,000 From State for Schools

Fairfax County School Board yesterday voted to seek $520,000 from a State literary loan fund for construction of two elementary schools. The proposal was sent to the county board of supervisors for approval.

School Superintendent W. T. Woodson said the proposed schools would be built at Sims Corner and Hollin Hall. The first would relieve the crowded conditions at Franconia, he said, where classes have overflowed into two quonset huts. The other would provide relief to the Groveton School.

W. F. P. Reed, owner of the Beacon Hill Airport in Groveton, brought an official of the Civil Aeronautics Authority to the board meeting to discount danger to the pupils at Groveton School from planes taking off from the field. State Corporation Commission representatives said the permit for the airport was granted at a public hearing before the present school was built.

Medals Made in Vienna Mint Will Be Displayed in District

The Washington Post

BRONZE MEDALS sent to American Mint employes from Vienna Mint workers are displayed by Eleanor Hayden, secretary to Leland Howard, assistant director of the United States Mint

The Bureau of the Mint today has a collection of 44 of the medals produced by the Mint in Vienna, Austria.

And 100 employes of the Mint throughout the country are proud possessors each of a medal from Vienna.

The medals represent the heartfelt thanks of employes of the Vienna Mint, whose cry of "hunger" last spring brought a gift of food from employes of the United States Mint.

In answer to a letter, sent directly from Mint employes there to their counterparts here, 81 CARE packages found their way across the sea for distribution among 156 workers at the Vienna mint.

The money, more than $800, was collected from workers in this county by Miss Eleonora Hayden of 5505 Chevy Chase pkwy. nw., secretary to Leland Howard, assistant director of the United States Mint. She arranged with care to send the packages of concentrated foodstuffs to Vienna.

Cast in bronze, the medals were sent as a personal "thank you." They included heads of Strauss, Beethoven, Bach, Schubert, Wagner, Goethe, and a representation of Melancholy and reproductions of the Austrian National Library and St. Stephan's Cathedral.

With them came a simple letter, which read in part:

"It is but little to be mentioned that now, more than ever, this present of substantial and relishing food has caused the greatest joy and heart-felt thanks of the receiver.

"The staff of this office has the intention as utter proof of their thankful mind to collect the most beautiful medals, manufactured by the Vienna Mint and to send them to the Bureau of the Mint at Washington with the request to kindly distribute them to the givers."

Auto Theft Ring Smashed As 2 Drive Into Police Trap

Flushing two men in a stolen automobile after lying in armed ambush for five hours, Prince Georges County police yesterday said they had broken up a ring of thieves who stole and stripped vehicles for the accessories.

The band, of undetermined number, stole "somewhere near 100" automobiles from the District and abandoned them, stripped, in nearby counties, county police said.

Arrested, and charged only with the larceny of one automobile, were John A. Thompson, 18, of 26 N st. nw., already under indictment in the District for grand larceny of an automobile, and Alton W. Swann, 31, of 626 Morton pl. ne.

Caught in Wooded Area

Police said they were apprehended near midnight, Monday, as they drove into a wooded area near Oxon Hill, Md., where three officers lay in wait for them. A second stolen car had been found there, stripped of accessories, five hours earlier, police said.

Police Officers Lawrence Riddleberger and Charles Perrygo and Detective John W. Siddall carried out the vigil in the hope the thieves who abandoned the other car would return. Equipped with guns and flashlights, they waited out the hours in silence, they said.

Both suspects were held under $2000 bond each for police hearing Friday at the Marlboro police station.

Sheriff Elmer N. Quaid, of Charles County, long a "graveyard" for abandoned, stolen automobiles, placed two detainers against Swann, charging him with assault with intent to kill two deputy sheriffs who attempted to capture him October 9 for questioning in a car theft.

Arrested at Garage

Thompson, according to District Precinct Detectives John G. Williams and Charles I. Smith, is under indictment for grand larceny in the theft three weeks ago of an automobile owned by Theodore Roberts, 1106 16th st. nw.

Following the arrest of Thompson and Swann yesterday, Prince Georges police apprehended Jerome C. Robinson, 25, of Ironside, Md., as he drove into a garage at Oxon Hill. Charged only with petty larceny, he was later turned over to Baltimore authorities for questioning in a sto nelcar case, police said.

The auto-theft ring, county police said, specialized in stealing Chevrolets, driving them to out of the way spots, and stripping them of heaters, radios, hub caps and other accessories.

Two Teen-Agers Arrested for Hold-up

The combined efforts of six Prince Georges County policemen resulted yesterday in the arrest of two juveniles less than an hour after they allegedly had held up and robbed a Hyattsville man near Laurel.

The youths, 15 and 17, were taken in custody after a two-mile auto and foot chase which ended when the officers split up and converged on their quarry in a wooded area off Defense hwy. near Simon's Curve.

The youths were spotted on Defense hwy. in an automobile owned by George Alfred Shahan, of Hyattsville, about half an hour after Shahan reported they had robbed him of his auto and 57 cents as he finished changing a tire on the Laurel-Bowie rd. near Baltimore blvd. Prince Georges County Detectives Richard Pearson and Earle Huber started the chase and were joined by four other officers who arrived in two cruisers as the boys abandoned the auto and fled into the woods.

Both of the boys admitted robbing Shahan, police said, and both admitted having previous police records. They were turned over to Maryland State Police at Waterloo, and will face a hearing in Prince Georges Juvenile Court tomorrow at 2 p. m.

U. S. 1 Rerouted From Alexandria Business Section

Changes in routing United States Highway No. 1, the main Washington-Richmond artery, through Alexandria were announced yesterday by the Virginia State Highway Department.

The changes, the department said, will take much of the heavy traffic out of Alexandria's main business section and will steer much of the through traffic away from the congested Mount Vernon blvd.

Beginning at the intersection of Franklin and Patrick sts., the new routing will continue by way of Patrick, Wilkes and Henry sts. to the Old Georgetown rd. and the present United States Route No. 1 just east of the Southern Railroad crossing.

Eliminated from Route No. 1 will be portions of Franklin, Washington and Powhatan sts. to th latter's intersection with the Old Georgetown rd.

The changes have been approved by the United States Route Numbering Committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials, the Associated Press quoted department officials as saying. They will take effect immediately.

Wrong Idea

Apartment Asks Flat 10% Rent Increase

The Sedgwick Gardens, Inc., owners of a 120-unit, five-story apartment house at 3726 Connecticut ave. nw., yesterday asked the District Rent Control Administration to grant a flat 10 per cent rent increase.

John J. Wilson, attorney, of 815 15th st. nw., told Denis W. Lane, rent control examiner, that the firm spent $27,000 in 1946 and 1947 on installation of an automatic elevator, carpeting and new refrigerators.

He also declared that operating costs jumped $12,300 from 1945 to 1946 because of increased employment and salary rises, as well as the higher price of materials.

Tenants' Consents Ruled Out

A third point in the landlord's case—the agreement of 88 tenants to accept the 10 per cent jump in return for a lease through December 31, 1948—was tabled by the examiner, who ruled that "these consents do not bind us in any way."

One of the tenants opposing the rent boast, G. L. Shinn, an attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission, said that if the increase were granted, "it would be unfair to those of us who did not sign, since we will have to pay the increase but will not get a lease."

He also objected on other grounds, charging that the changeover from operation of two manually-operated elevators to one automatic elevator constituted a reduction in service.

Rent Raised Once, Tenant Says

Another tenant who opposed the rent increase, John R. Radford, jr., said he had lived in the building since 1933 and during that time his rent had been raised once and his garage rent jumped 300 per cent.

Wilson said present rents in the building ranging from $32.50 for a single room to $120 for six rooms were "inadequate." He said a $2.50 to $5 rent raise authorized in 1945 on 20 units also was "inadequate" and that the 10 per cent jump being considered would result in about $10,000 additional revenue.

Police Boys Club 5 Wins 90-Pound Title

Police Boys' Club team No. 5 won the 90-pound first-half championship at Fairlawn yesterday, edging out previously unbeaten team No. 4, 6-0, on a last-minute score.

Paul S. Lawrence, 51, of 1630 R st. nw., adjutant general of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, died yesterday at the Mt. Alto Veterans Hospital.

Highest ranking full-time officer of the VFW, Mr. Lawrence had been reappointed only a week before entering the hospital for treatment of a heart condition, September 15.

A veteran of both World wars, he was wounded in the Argonne Forest with the 37th Division. He was a lieutenant colonel in World War II and commanding officer of a 36th Engineers Battalion in the assault landing in North Africa.

He also held the Legion of Merit, Purple Heart and European medal with eight battle stars and bronze arrowhead. He returned to the United States for treatment of combat disabilities incurred in Italy and was released to inactive duty in June of 1945.

He was a resident of Valley Stream, Long Island, and a native of Ohio, where he attended Jacobs Business College and the University of Dayton.

Following active service in World War II, he served as veterans' relations adviser to OPA Administrator Chester Bowles and had served as veterans' liaison officer for the Office of Civilian Defense in New York City before entering military service.

Mrs. Symington was the author of an autobiography, "By the Light of the Sun" and numerous magazine articles.

College Head Urges Equal Financial Aid

America, proponent of democracy, was called to task here yesterday for "inequality" in financing its public institutions.

Dr. Horace Mann Bond, president of Lincoln University, near Philadelphia, termed the situation 'saddening' in an address before members of the Conefrence of Presidents of Negro Land Grant Colleges. The three-day conference opened yesterday in Room 5140, Social Security Building.

"It is our duty," Dr. Bond told the college presidents, "to insist in this American Nation, which never hesitates to teach democracy to other nations, that this democracy be applied in equalizing expenditures of public funds for our own public institutions."

Largely because of lack of funds, Dr. Bond said, the Negro Land Grant colleges "have merely built the foundations so far for service to American society."

2 Sailors on Way Back to Brig After Air Escape

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—The two sailors who escaped from a brig by air Sunday morning and crash landed on the farm of U. S. Senator C. Douglas Buck (R., Del.) near Wilmington were on their way back to the brig today, this time by land.

A Navy spokesman said station security personnel left for Wilmington this morning to return Robert Naylor, 23, and Joseph Gionet, 19, to the lockup aboard the aircraft carrier Blck Island.

The sailors reportedly made their way from the brig at daybreak Sunday, found a single-engine Fairchild, PT 19 owned by Lieut. Donald E. Walport located conveniently at the Naval air facility, jumped in and sared away.

Although neither was a qualified pilot, Gionet had been taking flight instructions under GI bill educational provisions at a nearby airport, the Navy spokesman said. He kept the plane in the air until it ran out of fuel over Senator Buck's farm, 10 miles south of Wilmington.

First Wave Of British Comes Ashore

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THIS week a wave of Anglo-Saxons is washing over Washington. First comers are the Robert Luytens. His father, Sir Edwin Luytens, one of Britain's most distinguished architects, designed that imposing Massachusetts ave. pile, the British Embassy.

The younger Luytens is also an architect and this is his first visit to the United States. So far he has crammed in all sorts of sightseeing, from the Boston Fine Arts Museum to William and Mary College. He's here, too, to write a series of articles for Harry Luce's new, soon to debut, intellectual magazine.

One of the four Luytens sisters is the wife of Herbert Agar, author of "Time for Greatness." Mrs. Luytens, a White Russian, is a bio-chemist by profession, yet managed to run a smart and most successful dress shop.

Sir Edwin also designed India's city of New Delhi. The viceroy's palace, his son reports, has recently been transformed into a scientific laboratory.

Harcourts Coming

VISCOUNT and Viscountess Harcourt are arriving next week. Lady Harcourt is more familiar to Washingtonians as Mrs. Lionel Gibb. Pretty, bright, the widowed Betty brought her two sons here during the war, got a job in the British Embassy.

Later she was promoted to diplomatic status, became an attache. Returning to England after the San Francisco Conference, she married Bill Harcourt some months later.

Lord Harcourt is partly American. His grandmother, Mary Morgan, a sister of the senior J. P. Morgan, became the wife of Walter Hays Burns and their daughter is the present Dowager Viscountess Harcourt.

London Editor Here

ARRIVING last night, after a quick Hollywood dash, were the Arthur Christiansens. Still under 40, Mr. Christiansen is one of the youngest managing editors of a really great newspaper.

Roly-poly, apparently unruffled by journalistic crises, he directs Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express which rolls up a four million circulation, the largest, we're assured, of any daily newspaper in the world.

He's called "Chis" up and down Fleet Street and is a terror on the badminton court. The Christiansens are here vacationing a la busman, picking up the latest quirks in our newspaper world.

Canadian Wit

WHILE we're at it, we might as well go all out British and report that Jack Meikle, who used to toil at the Canadian Embassy, is back from a brief sojourn at home. He reported casually that despite dollar shortage and other depressants, wit is running high north of our border. Impressed, we begged for a sample. The former pride of the Canadian navy cleared his throat:

"An Englishwoman, who had never crossed the ocean before, had been in Canada a few weeks and was planning a trip to the States. The travel agent whom she contacted asked whether or not she wanted to travel by Buffalo. The English lady hesitated a bit, then replied thoughtfully, 'No, I think I'd rather go by train?'"

The wives of members of the Judge Advocate General's department gave a luncheon yesterday at the Officers' Club of the Army War College. Guests of honor were Mrs. James Forrestal, wife of the Secretary of Defense; Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army, and Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice.

A reception was held at 12:30, and luncheon at 1. Around 100 guests attended. Mrs. Thomas H. Green, wife of the Judge Advocate General, was hostess, and Mrs. C. B. Mickelwait was chairman of the luncheon.

The first luncheon of this season for the wives of the officers of the Quartermaster Corps stationed in Washington is to be held on Wednesday, October 29, at 1 p. m. in the Officers' Club of the War College.

Mrs. Thomas B. Larkin, wife of the Quartermaster General, and Mrs. William H. Middleswart, wife of Brigadier General Middleswart, will act as hostesses. Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army, and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, wife of the Chief of Staff, will be honor guests.

This will be the first of a series of luncheons to be given during the '47-'48 season. It is expected about 150 persons will attend.

Men's Style Picture

The 'New Look' Has Eyes on Comfort

By Peggy Preston

The change is not world-shaking, but it's there, make no mistake about it. We're talking about men's fashions, which, believe it or not, have a "new look."

Yesterday we answered a call to "view the fall showing of the world's finest custom-tailored garments for men" in the Pan-American room at the Statler. The invitation was issued by the Custom Tailors and Designers Club of Washington, of which Roy B. Matheny is chairman. Garments were on display from two dozen citizens in the United States and Canada, and Washington was represented by a pretty snappy cutaway frock suit.

Now what we saw was enough to turn a girl's hair gray overnight. For instance, there was the cutaway frock coat, shown with a turned-down collar. And what do you suppose they suggested wearing with it? A plain gray fedora!

Topping Traditions

No wing collar? No top hat? Why, men just aren't supposed to go around breaking fashion traditions in that manner!

"Oh, you'd be surprised how much change there has been in men's fashions in the past 10 years," said Mr. Matheny, who was unofficial master of ceremonies for the show which closed last night after a two-day run. "Look how we have substituted a soft collar for a wing with a dinner jacket. And I'll wager that in the not far distant future we'll be wearing a turned down collar with a full dress coat."

Trend Toward Freedom

Then Mr. Matheny went on to explain the "new look." The trend, he says, is toward more comfort and freedom. Suit jackets are being cut with more fullness across the shoulders and in the back. No longer do they constrict the wearer by fitting too tightly. And this goes for business suits as well as sports jackets. Heavily padded shoulders are definitely passe and a more natural line is being featured in top-bracket clothes.

Trousers are pleated at the waistband, a feature that allows for more comfort and also helps keep the crease intact. And it's true. Cuffs are stopping right at the shoe tops. So start hemming, boys!

Other news is in colors. Full dress suits were shown in blue only. There wasn't a black suit in the room. Color has been added to business suits as well as sportswear through subtle blending of varicolored yarns, also by skillful use of brighter stripes, overplaids and checks. Woolens in new lighter weight and colorful patterns are being tailored to make them suitable for both town and country wear.

Hot weather clothes were represented by tropical worsted suits of wool in extremely light weights and offered as the coolest, smartest outfits a man can wear for summer.

You didn't have to be from California to like the pastel-toned dinner jackets of tropical worsted. One jacket in light blue was shown with contrasting dark blue trousers. Another dinner jacket of maize yellow with shawl collar, had cocoa-brown trousers.

"Those Californians," said Mr. Matheny, pointing to a really terrific sports jacket, full and wide from shoulder to hem, "they've started something. Easterners are gradually adopting all their ideas about clothes. And why not? They're made for comfort."

Mrs. Mesta Returns

Mrs. George Mesta is back in town from her summer home at Newport and is at the Sulgrave Club until Saturday. She will return in November and will be at 2300 S st., for the season.

Remembers Seven Administrations

Mrs. Borah Is Busy Writing Memoirs

By Marie McNair

INTO Mrs. William E. Borah's memoirs of almost 40 years as a Senator's wife will go her favorite anecdotes on the foibles of Washington society.

The changes which her observing eyes have watched through seven administrations—the part her distinguished husband played in each, will also come in for a fair share of the book which is slowly but surely taking shape.

Ghost writer for the widow of the Senator from Idaho is her niece, Mary Louise Perrine, whose one ambition since she was a tiny girl has been to write.

Niece Is Ghost Writer

"She follows me around with a tablet and pencil," says Mary Borah, affectionately known as "Little Borah" to her friends. "Whenever she hears me tell a story she puts it down."

One story which Mrs. Borah delights in telling is when she first arrived in Washington as a senatorial bride. According to protocol, wives of the new Senators are expected to call on those wives whose husbands' terms in the Upper House predate their own.

Tiny, blonde and shy, Mrs. Borah, armed with visiting cards set out one Thursday afternoon. At one Senator's home—his wife was a cave-dweller, too—the Italian butler announced her to the hostess. Then she stood desolate for the next 15 minutes with nobody speaking to her or making an effort to see that she met any of the other guests. She departed, crushed in heart and spirit.

Chancing to meet the Senator's wife a week or so later, the latter gushed: "But why didn't you tell me what your name was?" With great dignity Little Borah replied, "Your butler announced me."

"But you look much too young to be a Senator's wife," the lady babbled on, "and besides you know these foreigners, you can't half understand what they say."

Although battered with invitations from the Senator's wife after that, Mrs. Borah says, "I never went back."

Little Borah's birthday last week—October 17 to be exact—was celebrated jointly with Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's which comes on October 15, at a birthday party given by Mrs. Wilson's longtime friend, Mrs. Charles B. Rollins, who was Mrs. Frank Mason Dillard until her recent marriage.

Birthday Clebrated

"I felt like I had been on the 'Truth Or Consequences' program," Mary Borah chuckled, "I got so much loot." The afternoon started off with cocktails for about 100 women, members of the Virginia Garden Club who were going on a banquet. Twenty guests stayed for a buffet supper with twin birthday cakes for the two honor guests.

TOWN TOPICS: Scottish-born Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver, whose ancestral home in Borthaugh, Roxburghshire, is now owned by the Duke of Buccleluch, has opened a studio-gallery at 1830 19th st., in the house that once was a part of Gunston Hall School.

An artist herself, and a musician, Miss Lindsay-Oliver has on exhibition paintings from California, Texas, Virginia, Maryland and New York. Of her own work she has on view symbolical illustrations of dramatic episodes in her major musical composition, "The New Day," dedicated to service for peace of the world. Every day from 1 to 4, Miss Lindsay-Oliver is at her gallery to welcome visitors.

Back in town and looking for a new home are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee Preu who've been at Faholo, their summer home at Dark Harbor, Me. Barbara Preu has been painting like mad all summer all around Maine's rugged coast and its verdant countryside. Anyone know of a vacant spot?

In the drawing room of her house on Monday Miss Phillips gathered about 50 of her friends. The high ceilinged room has bright colored oils by Mrs. Moffat hung against its white walls and green satin draperies are at the long French windows.

Mrs. David K. E. Bruce was at the party, wearing black full-skirted wool. Mrs. Edward Burling, who is back from the Eastern Shore, dropped by with Mr. Burling, and Harry Covington was there with the Lyttleton Foxes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Glover, jr., were guests, and Comdr. and Mrs. F. J. D. Pemberton of the Canadian Embassy.

Capitalites Rush Food Overseas To Aid Europe's Hunger Stricken

By Bessie Hackett

AS LAWMAKERS and official committees debate on the best method of helping Europe's hungry, thousands of Washington residents and scores of organizations are providing their own solution. They're busily packing food boxes and sending them overseas.

Both CARE (Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe) and the American Women's Volunteer Service, two of the largest relief package agencies in the Capital, report a new alertness to suffering abroad and an increase in the volume of orders received.

Volunteers at AWVS headquarters, 1800 Connecticut ave. nw., are working at double speed between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m. daily to get 1000 Christmas food boxes off. Although the Yule deadline is past, announces Mrs. G. Howland Chase, chairman of the AWVS food packaging service, orders are still being received for regular delivery to individuals abroad.

Cost of the 7-pound AWVS parcel is $3.50, and the organization services all countries in both hemispheres, with the exception of Russia. The name and address of the donor are included in each box.

The contributor may submit the name of a friend he wishes to help or may choose from a list of needy persons in the AWVS files. In the case of "repeat" orders—monthly or weekly donations to the same individual—the packers vary the contents. Order blanks may be obtained by writing to the Connecticut ave. address or by telephoning Dupont 1481. "It's a very easy way to help," says Mrs. Chase. "We take over all headaches of shopping, packing and mailing."

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

Mrs. Dorothy Scates (left), president of the Washington Zonta Club, and Miss Edythe Barker pack food boxes to be sent to needy European families. Each member of the club has pledged at least one individually addressed parcel

In Paris, Jefferson Caffery, United States Ambassador to France, presents Madame Gaite, a French war widow, with a CARE package donated by employes of the State Department in Washington and the American Embassy in Paris. Contributions were sufficient to supply 100 parcels. Two orphans, Michele and Gerarde Jugant (left), also received a package

Food for Wedding Gifts

Although the English Speaking Union so far has placed orders for a quarter ton of CARE food packages to England as its wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth, it is emphasized that similar wedding gifts may be sent by any other organization or person. It is understood the Princess will be advised by Douglas Fairbanks, jr., chairman of the Share-Through-Care Committee, of the number of packages at her disposal in CARE warehouses in England. It is expected that distribution to needy British families will be made before the wedding by the Princess through her social services. CARE headquarters here are at 1344 Connecticut ave. nw.

The name and address of the contributor will be included in each of these CARE packages containing 21.37 lbs. and 40,963 calories of food most needed in Great Britain. Each parcel costs $10 and is planned to fill the particular diet deficiencies of the country to which it is sent. Since the flour emergency appears to be over in Britain, this commodity has been dropped from the British package but is included in that designed for the continent. Guaranteed deliveries are made from CARE warehouses abroad.

In addition to individual donations, scores of groups have been helping out the European situation through CARE packages. An estimated 1½ million pounds of concentrated foods have been sent during the past year by persons in the District of Columbia alone and an almost equal volume from nearby Virginia and Maryland.

High Schools Contribute

High schools, Sunday schools, groups of workers, bands of neighborhood housewives, women's clubs are among the types of senders.

Calvin Coolidge High School youngsters for instance, reveals CARE's Washington office, took up a collection to help needy high school students abroad. They planned to send one package from each of the 30 classrooms. They were able to send 80 boxes—and more than 25 letters of thanks were posted recently on the bulletin board.

Taxing themselves on a monthly basis, students at Montgomery Blair High School in Silver Spring have "adopted several European families which receive CARE packages regularly. State Department employes recently sent $4000 worth of CARE packages to needy civil service employes in France, Austria, Greece, Italy and other foreign countries.

For the past three months, employes of the Library of Congress have been sending CARE packages every pay day to destitute librarians in Europe.

Food collection on a big scale is being undertaken by the Church World Service Center, official overseas relief agency for 26 major Protestant churches.

Especially active just now in the wheat section of the country, the organization has launched a program of county drives for donations of wheat and other grain.

Farmers deposit their donated bushels in the nearest grain elevator, whence the elevater owner sometimes sends the grain to cereal mills but more often directly to Baltimore and New York for shipment overseas. Processing is less expensive in Europe, declares Graham R. Hodges, promotion director of the center. About 10 bushels, he explained, are held out of every 100 to pay for handling, processing and transportation.

Grain Sent Abroad

The drive started in Texas during the end of June and many carloads already have been sent abroad, mostly to Germany where the need seems to be greatest. Publicity given the Citizens Food Committee has boosted contributions.

Last week, reports Mr. Hodges, a man in Frederick County, Md., drove up to the New Windsor warehouse with a truckload of flour for European relief.

Before the drive ends this fall, the Church World Service Center anticipates it will have sent several million bushels of grain—wheat, corn and rye—to the National Committee of Protestant Churches Abroad for distribution where it will do the most good.

Offering special appeal to women is the center's project of "packing a purse for relief." Thousands have been sending in their discarded handbags bulging with such items as needles and thread, buttons, scissors, pencils, lipstick, toilet necessities, hose, underwear, safety pins, combs, etc. Names and addresses are included in the purses, which are packed and sent overseas unopened. Recently 155 of these purses were received from a very small church in West Virginia.

The organization's headquarters is being flooded also with Army barracks bags filled with clothing donations. On October 10, the Junior Women's Club of Berryville, Va., collected a record 10,000 pounds of clothing for overseas relief. The garments are reconditioned and baled for shipping, the bags (which hold a capacity of 35-50 pounds) are washed and sent out to others on the long request list.

The Federation of Churches is the Washington agency for the Church World Service Center, or those interested may write or send donations directly to New Windsor.

Big outlet for aid to Jews abroad is the Jewish Community Council of Washington, which has just launched its annual food campaign for the Joint Distribution Committee of SOS—Supplies for Overseas Survivors.

Canned Goods Donated

Through an arrangement with a national food manufacturing company, one case of canned goods is donated for every case purchased at factory price, said Mrs. Nat H. Levy, who added that she expects to send the first large check to the company this week. More than 20 Jewish women's organizations have pledged to support this drive for food, clothing, medicines, and household comforts for the 250,000 Jews still living in displaced persons camps or trying to rebuild their lives in European cites. In addition, many of these groups are maintaining their own relief projects.

Large food packages bearing the stamp of Zonta International are already crossing the Atlantic bound for needy families or individuals abroad. Each member of the Washington Zonta Club has pledged herself to send one parcel and members are making up their own packages. It is expected that the project will be adopted by Zontans throughout the country when Zonta International holds its conference here this weekend.

Many groups, including a number of sororities, are sending clothing contributions through the Friends' Service Committee Relief. The Friends report a particular need in Europe for men's and boys' clothing and, with winter practically here, stress is laid on woolens. Shoes are much in demand, too. Those for women should be at least 3 inches wide across the ball of the foot and the heel must not be higher than 2 inches. Volunteers to help with sewing and reconditioning garments will be welcomed at the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw., from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., Mondays through Thursdays.

Many Rush Food

These are but a few of the people around you who are doing what they can to rush aid to Europe—immediately. And there are many more agencies of course, than those listed above.

Hunger is one ailment that time won't cure. It takes food to do that—nourishing food and plenty of it. Also, thousands of people abroad less fortunate than you, are going about in rags and stand a good chance of shivering through the winter—if they're lucky (or unlucky) enough to be alive. When you buy those new longer-length dresses, don't leave your knee-length frocks and suits hanging in the closet. Gather them up and carry or send them over to a relief agency. Hundreds overseas will think your castoffs are simply wonderful.

Food-Saving Menu Lists 'Veal Paprika'

A "peace plate" of veal paprika, Brussels sprouts, and mashed potatoes is suggested for dinner tonight by the Citizens' Food Committee.

Less tender cuts of veal can be used in the savory main dish. Baked custard bread pudding is suggested for dessert to supply needed milk in the family diet and keep left-over bread from going to waste.

Here is the recipe for veal paprika given by the Consumer Service Section of the committee:

VEAL PAPRIKA

2 ounces salt pork, cut fine
½ cup minced onion
1 peeled clove garlic, minced (optional)
2 pounds boned veal shoulder or round, cut in 1-inch cubes
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon paprika
1½ cups boiling water
¾ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons flour
¼ cup cold water

Saute first four ingredients in let until meat is brown on all sides. Add seasoning and water. Cook, covered, over low heat for 1 hour or until veal is very tender. Remove veal to hot platter; keep hot. Add sour cream to pan drippings, then stir in flour and water which have been blended to smooth paste. Cook over low heat until thickened. Pour over meat. Serves four.

Ankle Annie Gives Age Away by Her Gait

By Ida Jean Kain

With skirts inching down and shoes acquiring fancy straps, our gal Ankle Annie is going to stand out like a sore ankle . . . bandaged. You've all seen Annie trip past, toeing out at a terrific angle, and with each step she barely misses whacking the ankle bone.

If Annie but realized that this gait stamped her age, she would train those toes to head straight forward. Back in the gay 90s, toeing out was considered elegant, and girls were taught to walk in that manner.

Now we know better. Toeing straight ahead is the only correct way to walk, for it throws the weight toward the outer border of the foot, which is the strongest part of the foot. The heel hits the ground first, and the weight shifts forward along the outer edge of the foot to the ball of foot, and the toes give the push-off. The best exercise for the foot is always to walk correctly. Toeing out throws the weight toward the weak part of the foot, the inner border, and the ankle will be prominent and, because of faulty position, will look larger. Also, throwing the weight toward the inside of the foot weakens the arch.

Corrective exercises will help to strengthen weak arches. A simple exercise is to walk along the seam of a rug, or a line on the floor, walking across the room with the weight thrown toward the outer borders in an exaggerated manner.

Of course any kind of walk can be a means of locomotion. But a correct walk is the most beautiful walk and it can help a girl go farther . . . perhaps down the middle aisle.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman, 36, and Man, 40, Talking Marriage, Lock Horns Over Her Desire to Give Up Job And Be Supported; Man Wants Her to Earn

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For some time I have been considering marriage to a man of 40, and when I told him I planned to quit work when I became a wife, he said, "Not if you marry me, you don't." Also, "What would you do all day?" Then he added, "I want to quit, too."

I am 36 years old and have served 17 years in the business world, which I dislike. The office grind fatigues me; and if I'm fagged out now, with no household tasks, I certainly would find it hard going to double in brass as wage-earner and homemaker.

I can't keep the pace of some women I see, who manage big houses, large families, a busy social life, sometimes even a career on the side, without seeming to tire. While I envy their vitality, I haven't got it; individuals differ in stamina and pep.

When I explained this to George, he offered to help with the housework and said we'd eat out often to relieve me of cooking, provided I keep my job. But it's my conviction that a wife should work outside the home only if it's absolutely necessary to make ends meet—or if she prefers business to domesticity.

Man Resents Her Plan for Leisure

TO THIS George says, "All right; if you can get along on $160 a month, we can marry and you can retire." But I detect resentment in his tone; a sort of jealousy of the leisure I might enjoy at his expense.

He has given up the profession he practised for seven years because it was too nerve wracking, he says. He has never worked on salary, because he feels he couldn't take orders from anyone else; and consequently he is now in business for himself—which swings like a pendulum between profit and loss.

I would prefer a less precarious livelihood and firmly contend he should either go back to his practise or take a salaried job. With his background and education he should command fairly good pay—certainly more than $160 a month.

I think it's selfish of him to even suggest—as he has—that I be "a wage slave," as he calls it, while refusing to be one himself. In my opinion, he is fully capable of supporting a wife; and I think he should be willing to do so, if he loves me as he says he does.

He thinks I am expecting too much of him and looking only for ease and security; that I am not looking at marriage as a 50-50 proposition, as he says it must be. What do you think? R. M.

Trade of Views Is Tragi-Comic

DEAR R. M.: I think your exchange with George in re marriage is tragi-comic, a travesty on help-meet planning. Obviously George isn't sure he can support himself, much less you.

He'd like somebody on call to take care of him in a pinch, preferably a wife who was a combination mother-sweetheart-big business-woman, I gather. And by happenstance he has fallen into an emotional dependency relationship with you—who also want to be taken care of, by a combination father-lover-big businessman husband.

If you marry, a cat-and-dog life is indicated; but considering the tone of your courtship, maybe you wouldn't mind that too much. As for your view that he can (if he will) and should support you, there is a chance that you might wrest a livelihood from him, by sticking inflexibly to that stand.

Wise for Woman To Stand Ground

IN MY OPINION, this much is certain: If you falter in your demand for retirement (or wholly domestic) privileges, he never will put his shoulder to the wheel in an all-out effort to make the grade as full provider. But by enforcing your terms as the price of your hand, you may start him in the direction of mature manly performance at long last—and he may profit in all ways, even though he gripes about it to the end of his days.

Lastly, assuming you win and retire to domesticity at George's expense, against his preference, there is some probability that he will register resentment by acting the miser. What then? Having handled your own funds for 17 years, you'd find it very difficult to be a wife on dole; hence my advice is to thresh out budget agreements, too, before stepping into the traces. M. H.

TOMORROW: Husband, youthful at 51, distresses his wife by including his 85-year-old father in all their social plans.

New Rinse Gives 'Lift' to Hair

Color styling for the new short hair fashions was the subject of discussion at the eleventh annual Washington beauty and style show which closed yesterday after a three-day session at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Leta Harrison of New York described to visitors the need for emphasizing the color of the hair now that elaborate coiffures are out-dated. She pointed out that faded and discolored hair can be restored without the use of old-fashioned dyes. A new rinse, now on the market and available only to trained beauticians, will give the hair a "lift," improve the color without actually dyeing the hair. Called a "color cocktail shampoo" it washes the hair and colors it at the same time.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

1. Some of my mahogany furniture has become rather gummy and when I polish other pieces the polish seems to sink in, leaving the furniture dull. I should like to scrub the furniture and restore the luster. Do I use plain soap and water? When I have washed the furniture should I wax it or put polish on it? How often should furniture polish be used?

1. Your furniture should be washed well to remove all accumulated polish and dirt. To do this, use a mild soap and very little water. Wring a clean soft cloth out of warm soapy water. Use just enough soap to make a froth, not heavy suds. The amount of soap you use is important, for if you use too much you will have to go over the furniture to rinse it. Go over the furniture a small area at a time, polishing dry as you go.

Whether you put wax or furniture polish on the cleaned furniture is a matter of choice. If it is important to you to build up a protective finish which will guard against light blemishes and scratches and you've the time and energy for repeated vigorous buffing, use wax. Furniture polish can be buffed more quickly, but it leaves less wax on the surface and does not offer the same protection as a wax finish. Three or four times a year is enough for applying furniture polish or wax to furniture.

3. Please tell me how to remove old cigarette burns from mahogany furniture. M. L. H.

2. Light cigarette burns may be treated by rubbing with a scratch-concealing polish to blend the burn into the wood. If the burn is deeper and more noticeable, rub with a fine abrasive made by mixing rottenstone or powdered pumice into a paste with linseed oil. Rub only over the stained area. Wipe dry with clean, dry cloth and polish entire surface. If this treatment doesn't remove the blemish, refinishing the entire surface by an expert is necessary.

PETUNIA!

I dust the bulbs with energy
And multiply
The light by three.

Right, Petunia! Dust on light bulbs make a big difference in the brightness of a room. Dust them regularly, along with the lamps.

Bishop-Bracken

Will you explain the complete care of sterling silver to me? My silver has developed recurrent rust-like spots, which I am now treating. Why is it that even after cleaning the silver thoroughly, I can still remove a great deal of black substance, which I identify as more tarnish? No matter how long I rub, I continue to get it off. V. O. J.

Use a good silver polish to clean your sterling and apply it with a clean, soft cloth, preferably flannel. Rub the silver lengthwise rather than crosswise and never in a circular motion. Use a small brush to thoroughly clean ornamental parts. Rinse in hot soapy water and polish dry. Wrap the thoroughly dry silver in tarnish-resistant paper, or a cloth made especially for wrapping silver or place it in a chest with lining treated to resist tarnish. If your silver is in daily use, you should take care to remove tarnish from day to day as it appears.

The spots you describe as rust-like may have to be buffed off by a jeweler if silver polish isn't effective in removing them. Stop rubbing your silver with polish when the tarnish seems to be gone and it is bright and shiny, for the black substance will continue to appear on your cloth no matter how long you rub.

I burned a piece of maple furniture by placing a toaster (on a thick table pad) on it. There is a large mottled white spot, but the wood is not warped and I hope the finish is not damaged. Will you please tell me what treatment to use on this spot? G. F.

If the burn is only finish deep, you may remove the spot by rubbing over the stain with a paste made by mixing a fine abrasive like rottenstone or powdered pumice with linseed oil. Rub only with the grain of the wood and take care not to get the paste into surrounding areas. Wipe dry with a clean, soft cloth and polish the entire surface with furniture polish or wax. If this doesn't remove it, refinishing the entire surface will be necessary.

What do you do about getting rid of and preventing silverfish.? H. W. A.

Silverfish eat starchy and sized materials and have a great liking for rayon clothes in closets. So, in fighting them frequent airing and brushing of clothes containing starch, books, and rayon materials is important. Also, once or twice a month, spray with liquid insecticide. Spray the places where silverfish are prevelent, bookshelves, baseboards, cracks in walls and damp places in bathrooms and kitchen. After spraying, dust or blow fresh pyrethrum or 10 per cent DDT powder into these places.

Chilean Guest Praises U. S.

By Genevieve Reynolds

"There's nothing like personal contact to promote thorough international understanding and good will," observed Senorita Maria Riverra, vice president of Circulo Pro Paz J. Cooperacion Americana in Valparaiso, Chile.

"If I were rich, I would send every Chilean teacher and student to the United States for a visit," she declared. "In turn, I'd give all your students and teachers a trip to my country."

For 17 years the distinguished-looking, black-haired, brown-eyed senorita worked to develop inter-American friendship. As past president of the Valparaiso YWCA she intensified and broadened international programs. And she expects to do even more when she returns to her homeland this week. Currently chairman of the YWCA's cultural committee, plus the peoples' mandate committee in Chile.

Visits 'Y' Branches

Senorita Rivera has been visiting various branches of the "Y" throughout this country. Of all the cities she has seen—she thinks Washington is the most beautiful. "I'll be describing the Library of Congress to my friends for the next six weeks," she smiled. "But I shall never finish telling about the great hospitality of the people I have met."

A career woman, she holds a responsible position with the oldest bank in Chile, Banco de A. Edwards.

Problems the Same

Referring to over-crowded school rooms and shortage of teachers in her country, she said. "I was surprised to find that a similar condition is prevalent in the United States," adding, "see, how a first-hand look around here indicates mutual problems. That's what I mean by on-the-spot observation and personal contact."

The affable senorita was guest of honor at a tea yesterday afternoon given by the World Fellowship Committee of the YWCA here, at the home of Mrs. Hugo Farman, 2810 Cathedral ave. nw. Today she will be honor guest at a luncheon in the Hay Adams House at which the Peoples Mandate Committee will be hostess.

Women's Committee Hears Paris Report

Mrs. Lillian Mowrer and Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan were guest speakers yesterday at the first luncheon meeting this season of Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace.

Mrs. Mowrer, District chairman, reported on the International Assembly of the Women's World Fellowship in Paris, from which she has just returned. She outlined the assembly's accomplishments and described its personalities, stressing that the group was middle-of-the-road and that no extremist opinions were voiced.

The most important accomplishment was, she said, the organization of a permanent assembly with 18-member countries and a secretariat in Paris.

Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan discussed the U. N. General Assembly. Mrs. Phillip Amran presided and introduced the speakers.

Armitages Have Daughter

A daughter, Nena Ann Erica, was born to Lieut. Comdr. Gordon Armitage and Mrs. Armitage on October 15 in Cosham, England. Mrs. Armitage is the former Miss Jeannette Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marle Foster of Washington. During the war, Commander Armitage was stationed in Washington.

Advocates 'Resistance' Tactics Against Inflationary Prices

"Inflationary prices will drop if individuals will refuse to buy anything but absolute necessities," said Mrs. Aryness Joy Wickens, assistant commissioner for program operations, Bureau of Labor Statistics, in a talk before the Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters last night.

"Trade sources inform us that in some cities prices for certain types of women's clothing already have come down as a result of consumer resistance," she explained.

She pointed out that the dress manufacturer has the option of whether he will manufacture in one price line or another. "It is here that the voice of the consumer can have a very real effect," emphasized Mrs. Wickens.

To aid the President's voluntary food rationing program to aid Europe, she suggested that individuals use domestic fruits and vegetables in lieu of meats.

Earlier in the day, more than 200 Washington residents attended the first of a series of "Know Your Washington" sessions, sponsored by the Voteless District League of Women Voters.

They heard addresses by Meyer Jacobstein, research counsel for the Library of Congress Legislative Reference Service, and William A. Roberts, former people's counsel for the District.

Gleaned for the Housekeeper

Never leave medicine or any kind of drink uncovered in the sickroom.

If the gas burners of the stove make a roaring noise it indicates there is too much air coming through.

Old putty may be softened by placing in boiling water and allowing it to stand in it until the water cools.

Tailor's thread will hold on sonny's trouser and coat buttons for some time. It is well to invest in a spool of it.

A few drops of lavender in a cup of hot water will sweeten the air in the sick room without being offensive to the patient.

Jovial Miklos Gafni Tells How To Prepare Hungarian Dishes

By Lucia Brown

With a taste for good food sharpened by years of near starvation in a Nazi concentration camp, Miklos Gafni is almost as accomplished a cook as he is a singer.

The Hungarian tenor, who will appear in concert at Constitution Hall Thursday night, is fond of preparing the flavorsome dishes of his native land. And he likes to eat them even better than he likes to cook!

"I've been enjoying my own and other people's cooking so much in recent months that my weight's gone up to 210 pounds," the jovial singer laughs ruefully. "In fact, I'm dieting right now. I'd like to lose a few pounds—but not get down to the 80 I weighed after two years with the Nazis!"

Despite his diet, the Hungarian consented to give recipes for two of his favorite dishes. Here they are:

CHICKEN HUNGARIAN STYLE

Clean and cut up a roasting chicken as for fricassee. Chop up and fry five medium-sized onions in 3 tablespoons of fat. When onions are golden brown, add salt and plenty of sweet paprika. Put chicken into this and saute about 10 minutes. Add water to barely cover and cook slowly until chicken is tender. Thicken gravy and add sweet cream. Serve with chopped parsley.

PALACSINTA
(Hungarian Pancake)

3 eggs
1 pint of milk
1 cup flour
½ tsp. butter
A little salt

Mix eggs with milk and flour. Melt ½ teaspoon of butter in saucepan and pour enough batter into pan to cover bottom thinly. Fry on both sides.

Prepare following filling: ½ pound pot cheese (or cottage cheese) mixed well and stirred together with 2 tablespoons of sugar, the yolk of 1 egg, and a little vanilla. Place filling into pancake and fold. Heat together.

Washington eligibles please note! Despite his cooking talents, the Hungarian tenor is looking for a wife. Since most of the members of his family were killed during the war, he has no real home now. He'd like to marry and settle down—and he's partial to American girls!

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

Preparing tasty Hungarian dishes is the favorite avocation of tenor Miklos Gafni, who will give his first Washington concert in Constitution Hall tomorrow night

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

THERE'S GOOD NEWS TONIGHT. Radio Funster Barney Grant opens tomorrow at the Fiesta in his "Radio Frivolities of 1947." With him will be Singer Gloria French, Dancer Deanna Lure, the Aero-stepping Arlos, all hailing from the better Manhattan bistros . . . Some fine shows are being cooked up by the Fiesta management. Belle Baker is booked to open November 6, Jerry Lester for November 20.

The Lotus stars the Three Arnauts and their famed European music hall act in tomorrow's new revue. Ramos and Nannette, Latin dancers; the gay Castle Sisters and Buddy Shaner's songs, too.

MIMI KELLERMAN, lovely and mischievous, will be the new Balalaika star beginning next Monday. Mimi hasn't been in Washington since her Troika appearances when she kept male ringsiders in a grinning trance. Next week the Balalaika will also reinstate its "Chauve Souris" skits (by popular request, no fooling). The first one will be that quaint dancing party of the three midgets . . . Dancer Vanya has returned to the Don Cossacks. But Balalaika's owner, Mischa Bess, plans to get even by borrowing two of the Don Cossack dagger dancers later this fall.

Robert Gaumont, French tenor and said to be a very Jean Sablonish sort of a guy, will open at the 400's Fame Room tonight . . . On the first floor of 400 you'll find the new Coronets, a trio headed by one of the prettiest members of the musicians' union. Accordionist Mitzi Joyce.

ALL THE SUPERLATIVES in the dictionary could be poured over the Ted Lewis show at the Cairo—and no more than justice would be done. From where we sat it looked like the best floor show that's ever rolled into our town. Ted Lewis, that old medicine men of show business, keys up a flock of the finest acts you've ever seen, keeps them on their toes, whirls his battered top hat, blows a bit into his old clarinet, does "Me and My Shadow" with magical timing. Every act is incredibly good, polished and perfectionized to the last degree. Among these diverting people are Elroy Peace, anthracite-colored comedian—supercomedian, we mean; Geraldine Du Boise, wicked little brunette who, with Lewis, panics the audience in "I'm the Form, You're the Face"; Paul White, a brown boy with a million dollars' worth of smile and taps; and a whole passel of brilliantly talented young singers and novelty performers. They say Lewis is getting $8000 a week for this show. It's worth it.

BACK AND FORTH. When Dona Mason of the King Cole Room appeared on Jerry Carter's WTOP program last Saturday she was by way of returning a call. For the night before Jerry had sung a guest spot at the K. C. Room . . . A rumor keeps bobbing up that Jerry will soon be singing at the Old New Orleans.

A model of that ill-fated queen of the seas, the Normandie, attracted much attention at Flora Orr's big cocktail party for Virginia Price at Normandy Farm. Owner Marjorie Hendricks also has a collection of menus from the Normandie.

LITERARY PREFERENCE. Leonard Mitchell, the sophisticated managing director of Olmsted's, thinks that Evelyn Waugh ("Brideshead Revisited") is the greatest of living British novelists . . . Armando, major dome at Ciro's, spends his Sunday evenings with a Scotch-and-soda and a volume of d'Annunzio. "A bad man but a great writer," says Armando . . . Manager "Bill" Sheehan of the Hamilton Hotel likes the realistic, hard-bitten stories of James Cain ("The Postman Rings Twice").

MUSICAL RELATIVES. Nat Conway, leader of the Neptune Room's Shoreliners, is a nephew of Michel, owner of Michel's, was with his uncle's band in the Volga Boatman and Troika, now only memories. Michel's two sons will soon be playing at Constitution Hall—Stanley doing a violin concerto with Michel Piastro's orchestra, and young Teddy as 'cellist with the same group.

Master Plan For Wildlife Is Announced

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—Providing more quarry for Maryland hunters is the purpose of an agreement of Departments of Forests and Parks and of Game and Inland Fish, announced today.

A joint announcement by State Forester H. C. Buckingham and Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Game and Inland Fish Department declared they had approved a memorandum of agreement under which the two departments will work together in promoting wildlife on State-owned or leased lands.

Vaughn said the agreement was a master plan of game management covering specifically the development and maintenance of food, cover and restoration.

"Of course, the details for each area will be worked out by the district forester and the wildlife field superintendent because the problems vary throughout the State," he said.

Buckingham remarked that although State forest lands had been obtained to conserve timber and watersheds and provide recreation, "good forestry practice is good game practice."

The two officials last week visited western Maryland, where they inspected present refuges. They found the Green Ridge area in Allegany County had an unusually large number of turkeys.

Public shooting areas which are to be supplied with surplus game from the refuges will be marked with metal signs, Vaughn said, because many hunters never knew whether they were shooting on public or on private land.

Meanwhile, it was announced the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission will conduct a public hearing at the Tri-State Sportsman's Club in Salisbury, Md., November 3, and hold its quarterly meeting the following day.

Gasoline Pollutes Woodsboro Wells

Frederick, Md., Oct. 21 (Spl.)—Gasoline in artesian wells in the northern section of Woodsboro is becoming a serious problem along with the shortage of water, residents of the town declared today. In recent weeks most of the wells in that section of the community, 10 miles north of this city, have become polluted with gasoline, apparently leaking from an underground storage tank in the locality. Town officials admit they don't known the source of the pollution and they are at a loss to remedy the condition.

Siren Alarms Driver And Well It Might

Frederick, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—A dentist from near Middletown, Md., had visions of motorcycle police when the siren began to scream, but a second later he realized the noise came from the car he was driving.

It took another second to figure out the vehicle was not his own. Driving back to a business establishment he had just left, he found his own car still parked—a model identical with the one into which he had climbed by mistake.

The car with the siren belonged to W. Lee Elgin, State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

4 Bay Ferry Boats Get 2-Way Radios

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—Governor Lane announced today the installation of two-way static free radios in four boats of the Chesapeake Ba yferry system.

It is expected that the radios—the first of their kind installed in a ferryboat with a regular schedule—will be in service tomorrow.

B. Frank Sherman, general manager of the ferry line, said the $7000 project was rushed to completion before fogs on the bay interfere with service.

Catonsville Man Heads Hereford Association

Kansas City, Oct. 21 (AP).—R. C. Riggs of Foxhall Farms, Catonsville, Md., was elected president of the American Hereford Association at its annual meeting last night. He succeeds Allen Feeney, Phoenix, Ariz.

Jack Turner, Kansas City, secretary, reported that "Hereford breeders broke all existing records for volume of business in the fiscal year just closed by recording 356,530 registered Herefords, a gain over last year of over 20,000."

Va. Outlines Hospital Needs For 20 Years

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—Virginia's estimated hospital needs during the next 15 to 20 years were disclosed at a public hearing held in the auditorium of the State Library building here today.

The report, which was prepared by the Division of Hospital Survey and construction, was presented by A. Gibson Howell, director of the division. Almost one year was spent in collecting and preparing the material.

On the 20-year basis it was estimated that at least 16,400 new and replacement beds would be needed for the different types of hospitals—general, mental and tuberculosis sanatoria.

The construction program is planned as part of a national one under which the Federal government is expected to furnish one-third of the costs of approved building. At the present time, the remaining two-thirds must be put up by the localities in which the institution would be located.

The master plan envisions increasing the number of general hospital beds in the State from about 6000 to 12,745 and gives an A-1 priority to seven rural areas and nine intermediate areas.

The plan splits the state into five base regions and these in turn are sub-divided into intermediate and rural areas.

A-1 priority ratings included construction of a new 50-bed hospital at Clupeper and a 45-bed addition at Warrenton.

Reserve Called Army Backbone

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Raymond S. McLain, special liaison officer for the Army's chief of staff, told a radio (Station WMBG) audience here today that a large, well-trained reserve is the backbone of any modern army.

He said the adoption by Congress of universal military training is essential to the military preparedness of the Nation.

McLain said the development of the atomic bomb and other new methods of warfare gave the United States an advantage over any potential foe. He insited, however, that a trained reserve would be the determining factor in any future war.

Richmond Building Of WAA Gutted by Fire

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—A fire of undetermined origin today gutted a block-long War Assets Administration building.

Fire department spokesmen said the building—a one-story structure which housed the general accounting section of WAA—and its contents were "nearly a total loss."

Prisoners Enjoy Short Liberty

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—Two men identified by Anne Arundel County police as prisoners in the county jail enjoyed a few hours of freedom yesterday, but were back in custody today awaiting possible additional punishment.

Police Sergt. Brooke Meade said James Kelly, 23, and Adkin Whitner, 19, slipped away from work with a prisoners' road gang near Glen Burnie.

He said they hopped into a car owned by James Parker, jr., employed on a housing development at Glen Burnie, and motored down Ritchie hwy. toward Annapolis. The car struck a guard rail near Lipins Corner, Meade added, but continued to the capital.

City police stopped the pair in the car on Main st. and turned them over to county authorities.

Church Lets Contract

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 21.—The contract for the construction of a new Sunday school building for the Methodist Church of Bowling Green has been awarded to the Patrick Doland Co. of Richmond, and work will begin at once. The addition will cost $43,000.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

This is a story about a cab driver who talked himself out of a fare. He's Wayne O. Winstead of 503 Marshall st., Falls Church, Va., who drives for Yellow.

Winstead

The other day Wayne answered a call from one of our more fashionable apartment hotels. On arriving at the proper suite, he found a well-dressed woman waiting beside a big trunk.

"Ah," mused Wayne, "Going away, eh?"

"Yes—I'm leaving my husband."

"Oh, that's too bad. Have you thought it over carefully? I mean—don't you think you ought to reconsider? You know, you might never see him again."

The woman frowned in indecision, and took a long drag off her cigarette. Wayne started to move the trunk out, but kept one eye on his fare.

Suddenly she threw the cigarette aside and sighed:

"Maybe you've got something there, driver." Then, brightening, she added: "What do you say we put the trunk back in the apartment?"

Wayne grinned, and followed instructions. The lady fished a dollar out of her purse, and handed it to him.

"I'm sorry you talked yourself out of a fare, but I'm glad you changed my mind. Thanks."

CONFESSION

Mrs. L. reports that she needs our help to straighten out a minor accident.

Her car scraped against another auto at National Airport last Saturday, but Mrs. L. left the scene without stopping to identify herself. Now she writes:

"The damage probably wasn't very much, but I'd like to square things. Would you please ask the owner of the other car to identify himself to you? You're so kind to dumb dames, maybe you'll help me, too."

Sure—but where do you get that "dumb dames" stuff?

If women are smart enough to get men to do things for them by pretending they're not smart enough to shift for themselves, then they're much smarter than the "dumb males" who are deluded into considering themselves smarter than the . . .

Aw, let's forget it. It's too involved.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Did you ever notice how shabby your old shoes look after you've just bought a new pair?

PERSONAL NOTES

Comdr. E. P. Jones, 2509 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va.: By this time I wish I'd never mentioned Rita. Let's pretend I didn't.

Julian P. King, House of Delegates, Annapolis, Md.: Thanks. Major Barrett expects to apprehend the rascal at any moment.

Martha L. Solomon, 2002 Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria, Va.: Very good, but too late.

Steve Douglas, WRC: We carried a story about John Howard Faust, "the singing cab driver," on March 20, 1945.

Carole Kurz, 302 H st. nw.: Since you're only 10 years old, Carole, you go ahead and call the Weatherbird "Humie" if you like. Personally, I'd like to forget about the humidity.

F. J. Kraus, 1126 16th st. nw.: I'll bet you'll never hear a psychiatrist tell the story that way.

S. L. Cohen, 21 Riggs rd. ne.: Why does it have to be in Boston? What do you have against Boston?

Gert Brown: The poem is very funny, but do we have permission to use it?

Roy F. Brown, 4109 Hayes st. ne.: You're right, but you're late.

Sergt. Gerald A. McConnell, USMC, 2429 S. 27th st., Arlington, Va.: Sounds like a good idea to me, but they say they'd have to buy too much new equipment.

G. Spatz, 1750 Que st. nw.: Weebee denies that he's full of hot air, and claims that his predictions are as accurate as those of the Weather Bureau itself.

Myrtle Mitchell, 3620 16th st. nw.: To change his name, our Weebee would have to get a court order.

PLUG

Bill Thickstun of 1101 Euclid st. nw. writes:

"I wonder if you can mention the practice dances held by the District Recreation Department at Central High School, 13th and Clifton sts. nw., every Friday at 8:30 p. m.

"People of all ages who are either learning to dance or desirous of brushing up on their steps are invited—free of charge. Can you give us a mention?"

Sure, just so you promise not to rumba to Chopin.

ADD NAMES

Philip H. Ege of the United States Horticultural Station at Beltsville, Md., points out that John W. Ball missed a few names in his recent report on the Agriculture Department.

In addition to the Days, Knights, Sundays, Mondays, etc., District Liner Ege finds all sorts of weather included in the roster. For example:

Two Raines, one Blizzard, five Hales, one Snow, and four Frosts—one of them "Jack."

THE FUTILITY OF IT ALL

J. Matthew Gaffney of 3208 Lee hwy. says that this poem originated up in Minnesota, sometime around the Paul Bunyan era:

Little fleas have lesser fleas
Upon their backs to bite 'em;
Lesser fleas have smaller fleas
Et cetera, ad infinitum.

Leonard Lyons:

NEW YORK.—The deputy sheriff of Kings County took three convicted prisoners to Sing Sing last week. During the train ride he heard the first prisoner say "Judge Sam Leibowitz gave me a 2½-to-5-year sentence. this'll be his stepping-stone to City Hall. He'll be mayor next." . . . "You're wrong," the second prisoner said. "He gave me 5 to 10 years. That means he's going to Albany for the Governorship." "You boys must be speaking of President Leibowitz," said the third prisoner, "because he sentenced me to 20 years to life."

PLEASURE: Ray Lev was at a party Tuesday night, and sat at the piano for two hours playing the numbers requested by the guests. Miss Lev noticed Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, sitting in a corner and apparently enjoying themselves. "How can you be having such a good time?" the pianist asked. . . . "Because early in my career," explained Miss Eldridge, "I resolved never to learn a parlor-piece, so that I never could be called upon."

PROMISE: When Jerome Zerbe was chief photographer's mate for the San Francisco area, he covered the three-day inspection visit of the then Senator Truman, who was chairman of the War Investigating Committee. Truman was accompanied by his naval aide, Capt. John Kennedy. One of the photos Zerbe took showed Truman on the bridge of destroyer.

Last Sunday Captain Kennedy phone Zerbe and said that Truman wanted more copies of that photo. The Navy Department had no copies . . . "I've saved prints of all the interesting people I photographed," said Zerbe. "I'll look in my San Francisco album.". He found that he had kept many photos of the interesting Captain Kennedy, but none of the uninteresting and unpromising Senator from Missouri.

RESOLUTION: The members of a United Nations Committee were discussing a resolution which had been proposed. Mrs. Gertruda Sekananinova, the Czech delegate, tried to get the chairman's attention, and finally was given the floor. "May I," said Mrs. Sekananinova, "draw the commitee's attention to the fact that our resolution ends in a preposition?"

CHATTER: The Civil Aeronautics Board will be queried about the legality of the flight of the licensed Bermuda Sky Queen, the chartered flying boat which came down off Newfoundland. The C. A. B.'s licenses apply only to American flights and not to international operations. Scheduled airlines, incidentally, must carry a three-hour gasoline reserve; chartered planes, such as the Bermuda Sky Queen, need carry only a 45-minut reserve.

Eugene Lyons is writing a book about Herbert Hoover . . . Ambassador Bill Pawley is back from Brazil . . .

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
